

Boulton

to, in their marriage ceremonies. That's just to have those different lives." Boulton's life as an administrator began in 1972 when Chancellor Ferebee Taylor brought Boulton to the University to combine many pre-existing student programs into a single division of student affairs.

"The history of it had been that we had some very strong departments that indeed had grown up separately," Boulton said. "There was just a lot of things we wanted to do from a management standpoint."

The Division of Student Affairs, which Boulton developed as an administrative unit, supervises daily aspects of student living and coordinates many student activities on campus.

His first action was to move the offices of academic advisers from upstairs in South Building into Steele Building, adjacent to South Building on Polk Place.

Boulton said the move was symbolic of his effort to become more in touch with the student body.

"Part of that was that there was still a missing piece," Boulton said. "At that time, the advisers were in South Building, upstairs, and I had hoped that if the advisers and student affairs were together in this building, it would serve the students better. I wanted that very much."

When Boulton arrived at UNC, he was hired as the dean of student affairs, but in 1977 the Board of Governors promoted all deans of student affairs in the UNC system to vice chancellors. But Dean Boulton said he kept his title to stay close to students.

"I said, 'Well, if you're going to make me a vice chancellor then you have got to keep me a dean because I am not going to get away from my students,'" he said. "For me a dean is one who has direct contact with students and a vice chancellor does not."

Boulton said talking and interacting with students was something he enjoyed too much to risk giving up.

"The most enjoyable part is having interaction with student groups, and I mean in the normal way — not in a crisis situation," he said. "The normal part of it is the most exciting for me."

Boulton described his job as that of a manager who had to care about the University.

"It's exciting for me," he said. "When your managing a business like the division of student affairs with 14 departments and about a 28-million-dollar budget and 400 employees, you've got to be a manager."

Boulton also likes to talk about how the University has changed and how the Division of Student Affairs has helped the University adapt to students' changing needs.

"One of the things we wanted to do was build up enough money so we could renovate the residence halls," he said. "You can see we are well along on that. We built a brand new Student Health Service; it's now paid off."

"We built a brand new residence hall, Carmichael, and now we're renovating Old East and Old West."

Since his arrival at the University, the student affairs division has created four new departments — the International Students Center, the N.C. Fellows Program, the black cultural center and the Disability Services Department.

"We're in constant change," he said. "The student body, in the 20 years that I have been here, has changed more dramatically than indeed the previous 175 years put together."

Boulton has three children, two of whom attend UNC. He said the University never took away from his family life. "We are constantly together, and I have never felt that I have had to give any of that up," he said.

As an administrator, he has also been involved in his share of controversy.

In 1974, Boulton discontinued a coed-floor residence program in Winston Hall, precipitating a sit-in in South Building.

In 1983, the UNC Board of Trustees formally reprimanded Boulton for hiring several University employees to lay tile in his kitchen.

But Boulton said his most painful experience was when a group known as Students for a Student Voice in 1986 petitioned the chancellor to acknowledge a lack of confidence in Boulton and the student affairs division. "It was a mean-spirited kind of thing," Boulton said.

Boulton said he had tried to look beyond his negative experiences with students.

"They're either all my students or none of them are my students," he said. "I take the Rhodes Scholars along with the ones who are in trouble."

"There are people, who, from time to time, will, not knowing who you are, assume you're not doing your job, or not like the way you do your job," he said. "Over the years I've learned this is not the student body."

from page 1

Speaker

"Our job is to represent all the different needs of the students," she said. "I will be a speaker who ensures that all of those needs are met. The students have put their trust in you and I ask that you put your trust in me."

Charles-Pierre said he hoped the close vote would not factionalize congress in future debates.

"I'm not here to be divisive," he said. "If I became a divisive member then it would be against everything I said."

Charles-Pierre said he would continue to serve congress and would be available to Sarratt. "If she wants me there, I'll be there," Charles-Pierre said.

In his nomination speech, Charles-Pierre said he would bring dynamic leadership to the post of speaker without sacrificing neutrality. "I will be the kind of speaker who can be fair," he said.

Lloyd and former Student Body President John Moody often disagreed, but Student Body President Jim Copland said he hoped for renewed cooperation between congress and the executive branch of student government.

"I felt good about the leadership of either candidate," Copland said. "I am very confident that I will be able to work with Wendy. I have worked with her in the past."

Copland said he had a good working relationship with both candidates in the past and hoped to maintain those relationships in the future.

The close vote showed the ability of each person to lead, Copland said. "I think it's a tribute to their record and their potential," he said.

He said Sarratt and Charles-Pierre each had a role in student government after the speaker election. "Wendy will take a more active role in the leadership of congress," Shah said.

Shah said she would try to act as a liaison between congress and the executive branch of student government. She said she would also strive to create a positive atmosphere in congress.

Rep. Wayne Rash, Dist. 17, won the position of ethics committee chairman by a vote of 23-14. Rash defeated Rep. Roy Granato, Dist. 13, on a platform of restoring respect to congress.

"I would strive to create a better image of congress," he said. "I decided to run for Student Congress because I was tired of hearing the negative rap on congress."

Shah said she would try to redefine the duties of the speaker pro tem, which include orienting new members and serving as chairman of the congress if the speaker is unable to do so.

"It's time for the speaker pro tem to take great strides toward restoring the integrity of congress," Copland said. "Philip will do a great job of ensuring that I don't step out of bounds."

Copland said that if Charles-Pierre wanted a job in his administration that would not conflict with his legislative duties, he was welcome. "My door is open to Philip," he said.

Lloyd said Sarratt's leadership style would not allow division to impair congress' ability to function. "If they work with Wendy they will get a lot done," Lloyd said. "There are so many new members that I don't see how the division can continue."

Lloyd promised to remain active on campus. "I'm very relieved to have finished my term," she said. "I'm finally free to get something done. Last year's congress was so divided that it was impossible to get anything done."

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

After losing the speaker race to Rep. Wendy Sarratt, Dist. 12, Rep. Philip Charles-Pierre, Dist. 17, won re-election as student affairs committee chairman. Charles-Pierre defeated Derek Shadid, Dist. 22, and Tom Lyon, Dist. 21, 22-8-3.

Rep. Bret Batdorff, Dist. 23, was elected to chair the rules and judiciary committee by a vote of 23-11, defeating Rep. Richard Williams, Dist. 1.

Batdorff gave three R's for why members should elect him. All three R's stood for the same word: respect — his respect for all congress members, a respect for the Student Code and earning respect from the student body, he said.

from page 1

Congress

ment about the decision later in the year.

Gretchen Parker, a four-year smoker from Kernersville, said she had not heard about the Union plans.

"It sounds like it's probably a good idea," said Parker. "Most smokers aren't as courteous as myself."

Parker said the disproportionate ratio of smokers to nonsmokers on campus made the move a good idea as well.

Similar proposals to restrict on-campus smoking are being considered by several campus departments. Biruta Nielsen, director of auxiliary services for Carolina Dining Services, said CDS had not yet made a decision on the matter.

"At this point, we are gathering information," said Nielsen. "It is entirely possible for a decision to be made in the next year."

Curtis said the response to the new policy from Union staff members, especially students, had been overwhelmingly positive.

"The student staff is ecstatic," Curtis said. "They feel that currently, there is too much second-hand smoke."

Sally Garrett, an official with the

N.C. branch of the American Lung Association, said there were actually two different types of second-hand smoke — mainstream and sidestream smoke.

Mainstream smoke, any smoke exhaled into the environment, is believed to be less harmful than sidestream smoke, which is released directly from the burning cigarette, Garrett said.

Garrett said several factors determined exactly how harmful second-hand smoke could be.

"The smaller an area, the smaller the lungs or lung capacity, the more damage will be caused," she said. "That's why babies and infants are more directly affected by second-hand smoke."

THURSDAY

9:30 a.m. Alpha Phi Omega will sponsor a Blood Drive in 205-206 and 211-212 Union until 3 p.m.

12:30 p.m. Students for the Advancement of Race Relations will show "Stand and Deliver" as a part of Race Relations Week in the BCC.

5 p.m. UNC Advertising Club will be holding its annual elections in 203 Howell.

5:15 p.m. Black Interdenominational Student Association will not hold Bible Study.

9 p.m. WXYC 89.3 FM will present Treepeople's "Just Kidding" on Inside Track.

from page 1

Smoking

ment about the decision later in the year.

Gretchen Parker, a four-year smoker from Kernersville, said she had not heard about the Union plans.

"It sounds like it's probably a good idea," said Parker. "Most smokers aren't as courteous as myself."

Parker said the disproportionate ratio of smokers to nonsmokers on campus made the move a good idea as well.

Similar proposals to restrict on-campus smoking are being considered by several campus departments. Biruta Nielsen, director of auxiliary services for Carolina Dining Services, said CDS had not yet made a decision on the matter.

"At this point, we are gathering information," said Nielsen. "It is entirely possible for a decision to be made in the next year."

Curtis said the response to the new policy from Union staff members, especially students, had been overwhelmingly positive.

"The student staff is ecstatic," Curtis said. "They feel that currently, there is too much second-hand smoke."

Sally Garrett, an official with the

N.C. branch of the American Lung Association, said there were actually two different types of second-hand smoke — mainstream and sidestream smoke.

Mainstream smoke, any smoke exhaled into the environment, is believed to be less harmful than sidestream smoke, which is released directly from the burning cigarette, Garrett said.

Garrett said several factors determined exactly how harmful second-hand smoke could be.

"The smaller an area, the smaller the lungs or lung capacity, the more damage will be caused," she said. "That's why babies and infants are more directly affected by second-hand smoke."

THURSDAY

9:30 a.m. Alpha Phi Omega will sponsor a Blood Drive in 205-206 and 211-212 Union until 3 p.m.

12:30 p.m. Students for the Advancement of Race Relations will show "Stand and Deliver" as a part of Race Relations Week in the BCC.

5 p.m. UNC Advertising Club will be holding its annual elections in 203 Howell.

5:15 p.m. Black Interdenominational Student Association will not hold Bible Study.

9 p.m. WXYC 89.3 FM will present Treepeople's "Just Kidding" on Inside Track.

from page 1

Campus Calendar

THURSDAY

9:30 a.m. Alpha Phi Omega will sponsor a Blood Drive in 205-206 and 211-212 Union until 3 p.m.

12:30 p.m. Students for the Advancement of Race Relations will show "Stand and Deliver" as a part of Race Relations Week in the BCC.

5 p.m. UNC Advertising Club will be holding its annual elections in 203 Howell.

5:15 p.m. Black Interdenominational Student Association will not hold Bible Study.

9 p.m. WXYC 89.3 FM will present Treepeople's "Just Kidding" on Inside Track.

FREE 1993 "Student Travels" Magazine!

..COME BY AND PICK UP YOUR COPY!! The 2nd edition will be out February 15th! Stuffed with information about:

- Student/Teacher/Youth Airfares
- Eurail Passes issued on the spot!
- Work Abroad • Study Abroad
- International Student/Youth & Teacher ID
- Youth Hostel Passes & MUCH MORE!

Council Travel WE'VE MOVED!

137 E. Franklin Street, Suite 106
Chapel Hill, NC 27514
919-942-2334
Call Now

FREE Homemade Potato Chips with any purchase

HAM'S

Great Lunch & Dinner Specials!

MON. $1.75 Highballs

TUES. 75¢ DRAFT

WED. $4.25 Pitchers

THUR. $2.00 Highballs

FRI. Margaritas $2.75 Imports $2.00

SAT. $3.75 Teas

SUN. $4.25 Pitchers

KARAOKE every Thursday night

2-10ft. Wide Screens!

Enjoy our daily drink specials on Chapel Hill's largest outdoor patio!

933-3767 310 W. Franklin St.

EASTER * QUIZ

Question: What do Santa Claus, the Easter Bunny, and the Resurrection of Jesus of Nazareth all have in common?

Answer: Many people perceive all three to be myths (symbolic in nature and meaning but of little or no historical significance), however this perception is only two-thirds correct. The resurrection of Jesus of Nazareth is one of the best attested historical events of antiquity. Here on campus there are many who share the joy of knowing that Jesus Christ provides intellectually and spiritually satisfying answers to life's most important questions. We sincerely invite your questions.

- | | | | |
|--|--|---|---|
| Gary Bishop
Computer Science
962-1886 | Ethel Jackson
Health Behavior Health Ed.
966-3910 | Sam Nesbitt
Dentistry
732-6746 | David Stotts
Computer Science
962-1833 |
| Fred Brooks
Computer Science
962-1931 | John R. Jacoway
Dentistry
966-2751 | Jay Pence
Speech Communication
962-5050 | Mike Symons
Biostatistics
966-7266 |
| Jeff Burkes
Dentistry
966-2747 | Leonard G. Jewson
Periodontics
966-2701 | H. Benjamin Peng
Cell Biology & Anatomy
966-1338 | Jim Thomas
Epidemiology
966-7434 |
| Albert M. Collier
Pediatrics
966-2331 | Henry Lesesne
Medicine
966-2511 | David Plaisted
Computer Science
962-1751 | Don Tyndall
Dentistry
966-2746 |
| Jullie Collins
Business
962-3207 | John Ludlow
Dentistry
966-2746 | < | |