

Weather

TODAY: Mostly sunny, breezy; high mid-60s
WEDNESDAY: Fair, clear; high low to mid-70s

TUESDAY, APRIL 27, 1993

The Daily Tar Heel

Serving the students and the University community since 1893

Chapel Hill, North Carolina

sportsline

NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE
Stanley Cup Playoffs, First Round
Pittsburgh 5, New Jersey 3 (Penguins win series, 4-1)
Washington 6, N.Y. Islanders 4 (Islanders lead series, 3-2)
Montreal 5, Quebec 4 (OT) (Canadiens lead series, 3-2)

© 1993 DTH Publishing Corp. All rights reserved.

News/Sports/Arts 962-0245
Business/Advertising 962-1163

Volume 101, Issue 40

TUESDAY IN THE NEWS

Top stories from state, nation and world

Raleigh teenager killed during afternoon fight

RALEIGH — A 16-year-old high school student was shot and killed at a park Monday afternoon as he watched a fight that apparently carried over from a weekend party, police said.

Authorities said Bryan Stuart Greene was one of three students shot at Millbrook Exchange Park around 2:45 p.m. Police said he died shortly after being transported to Raleigh Community Hospital.

A suspect was apprehended east of Raleigh and taken into custody, police said. A pistol was recovered in the incident.

Two others were shot at the park, according to police. Jaime Robert Vivian, 17, and Jason Scott Kellam, 18, were in stable condition, Wake Medical Center spokeswoman Julie Henry said.

Independent experts: Cult members set fire

WACO, Texas — Members of a doomsday cult started the fire that consumed their prairie fortress a week ago, killing an estimated 86 people, independent arson investigators said Monday.

"We believe it was intentionally set by persons inside the compound," said Paul Gray, who headed the investigation team. "At least two locations were significantly distant enough from each other that they couldn't have been set by the same source at the same time."

Also Monday, a second victim of the blaze was identified, and authorities said she had a bullet wound to the head. The FBI said that three cult members had been shot.

The first victim was identified Sunday as David Michael Jones, Koresh's brother-in-law. Jones was the mail carrier who learned from a television photographer of the impending raid on the compound, said Koresh's lawyer, Dick DeGuerin. Jones told Koresh, and the group was ready when U.S. Department of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents arrived Feb. 28, DeGuerin said.

Yeltsin says vote tally is show of confidence

MOSCOW — A new round in Russia's power struggle began Monday as Boris Yeltsin's team claimed "massive support" from a weekend referendum while his opponents said the vote had hurt the country.

Preliminary official results and exit polls showed that a majority of voters in Sunday's referendum gave the 62-year-old Russian president a vote of confidence and endorsed his painful free-market reforms.

But hard-liners pointed to the fact that only about 35 percent of Russia's 105.5 million eligible voters expressed confidence in Yeltsin, with the rest voting against him or staying away from the polls.

Bosnian Serbs reject proposed peace plan

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — The first cracks appeared Monday between Bosnian Serbs and their patrons in Belgrade when the Serbian leadership in Bosnia ignored a sharply worded appeal from Serbia's president.

With tougher sanctions set to begin Tuesday that would basically impound any Yugoslav planes, trains and ships that operate abroad, Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic urged the ad hoc assembly to accept an international peace plan to end more than a year of fighting in Bosnia.

The assembly, meeting in the northeastern Bosnia town of Bijeljina, had met in hurried session Sunday night but in the end, its 77 representatives voted unanimously against accepting a United Nations-sponsored plan to end fighting in Bosnia that has left 134,000 people dead and missing the past year.

Indian plane hits truck; crash kills at least 55

NEW DELHI, India — An Indian Airlines jet carrying 118 people crashed Monday in western India, reportedly after hitting a truck on the runway during takeoff. Officials said at least 55 people were killed.

Survivors and eyewitnesses told India's two news agencies that the jetliner never regained its balance after hitting the truck at Aurangabad airport, 680 miles southwest of New Delhi.

—The Associated Press

Professor held hostage for 5 hours

By Thanassis Cambanis
University Editor

A UNC professor, held hostage Monday in her Durham home for five hours, resolved the situation peacefully by convincing her captor to surrender to police and not take his own life.

"The way I feel right now is very tired, very relieved and very pleased with the outcome," said Eve Taylor, an assistant professor in medical allied health professions.

Don Wayne Cates of Vesson Street in Durham broke into Taylor's home

Monday morning, according to Durham police officials.

Cates, who was armed with a sawed-off shotgun, gave himself up Monday afternoon.

Durham police said they arrested Cates at 4:09 p.m. on multiple charges, including first-degree kidnapping.

Taylor said Monday evening that she was trying to relax after her emotionally draining day. When the gunman broke in, Taylor said she talked to the man and cooked him breakfast to calm him down.

"He wanted to do himself harm," she said. "The way I talked him out of it

I listened to him talk about his pain. He wanted to die."

Taylor said her captor seemed suicidal. "His plan for today was for today to be his last day," she said. "He wanted to end his life."

Although Cates remained in her home for about five hours, Taylor said the time she was held captive passed very quickly.

"It was five hours, and it felt like two," she said, adding that Cates wanted to speak with his mother.

Taylor said she was frightened at the outset but soon calmed down.

"He didn't threaten me," she said. "The entire time he was here, he never threatened me."

Taylor said her captor was simply a sad man. "He was very scared and very distraught and wanted to end the pain," she said. "He was scared."

Cates was being held in the Durham County jail on a $21,000 bond late Monday night, said officer Leroy Williams, one of the arresting officers.

Williams said police officers began chasing Cates at 10:46 a.m. because he was driving someone else's car, a charge similar to motor vehicle theft.

"It started off as a chase," he said. "It started on New Jersey Avenue, and it ended up on Perkins Street where he jumped out of his car and ran into someone's yard."

Taylor was in her house on Bruton Road around 11 a.m., when Cates kicked in the front door and walked in, Williams said.

Cates was charged with first-degree kidnapping, breaking and entering, driving with a revoked license, stop-sign violation and unauthorized use of con-

See HOSTAGE, page 2

'Breathing Lessons'

Michelle Joyner and Christopher Runyan perform in "Breathing Lessons," a play by Anne Tyler. The students produced the show as a project for their Speech Communication 71 class. They will perform again tonight at 8 in 203 Bingham.

Lack of funding puts AIDS testing at SHS in danger

By Tim Perkins
Staff Writer

The future of AIDS testing at UNC might be in jeopardy, but health administrators and students said they would fight to keep a program in place.

A group of students currently is petitioning to make sure AIDS testing remains easily available for students.

"We are anxious not to cut any of our services," said Dr. Judith Cowan, director of the Student Health Service.

But for four of the past six years there has been no increase in the fees Student Health receives, Cowan said. "Theoretically we may have to stop the program," she said.

Dr. John Reinhold, coordinator of HIV test counseling, has worked with the testing program since it was started in January 1989 and will retire at the end of the summer.

"Without somebody taking my place, the program would be seriously hampered," Reinhold said. "The question is how to carry it forth."

SHS has performed more than 850 AIDS tests since the program began in 1989, Reinhold said. In the fall semester of 1992, Student Health conducted 145 HIV tests. There have been only two positive results since the program began, both of which were in the first year.

"Testing doubled after the Magic Johnson situation," Reinhold said. "The program is not widely promoted because we couldn't cover the demand."

Cowan said she thought SHS would find the needed personnel. "We are going to need to find the finances to have the personnel," Cowan said.

SHS does not charge students for HIV testing. The state, rather than Student Health, pays the lab costs. But Student Health must cover the costs of personnel time, which amounts to approximately $6,000 each year, Cowan said.

"Six thousand dollars to $8,000 a year is not a terribly expensive medical service," Cowan said. "We want to put enough money in our budget for the program."

Cynthia Carsten, a sophomore from Charlotte and president of the Carolina AIDS Resources Ensemble, also is working to keep the program going. "We are organizing a petition because we want to make sure the program at Student Health remains there," Carsten said.

The petition, titled, "Petition to Continue AIDS/HIV Testing at Student Health Services" states:

"We the undersigned are expressing our interest in continuing the current protocol for free, confidential AIDS testing at Student Health. As students at UNC-CH, we feel it is imperative that AIDS testing remains available."

See TEST, page 2

Head Start charged with neglect

By Bill Blocker
Staff Writer

The local Head Start program was fined $450 and charged with six counts of neglect and three counts of inappropriate discipline after a six-month state investigation completed Monday.

The Head Start program at Chapel Hill's Seawell Elementary School was granted a six-month special provisional license, which can be revoked if the day care doesn't follow state recommendations.

"It's one of our more stringent administrative rulings," said Christine Carroll, supervisor of North Carolina's Child Abuse-Neglect Unit, which ruled on the case. "The next step is revoking the license."

Investigators found that allegations of corporal punishment and inadequate supervision were substantiated. Allegations were first levied against the local Head Start program in November.

The investigation also found that children at the day care:

■ had to wash their own linens if they wet themselves,

■ were not given enough time to eat their meals and

■ were told they would be "taken to the bathroom" or "jacked up" if they didn't behave.

Patsy Byrd, associate director of Chapel Hill-Carrboro Head Start, said she was disturbed by the results of investigation.

"They really raked us over the coals," she said.

Byrd said Head Start officials needed time to review the findings of the investigation before they decided whether to appeal. The day care has 15 days to decide whether to appeal, she added.

Neil Pedersen, superintendent of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro schools, said he would like to have additional information before deciding to appeal the finding.

"We may request a review of the finding, but we have not decided yet," he said.

Pedersen said the school district took the investigations very seriously and hoped to rectify the problems.

He added that the findings of the investigation would not affect the program's federal funding.

Byrd said Head Start officials would hold a meeting for parents this week to discuss the investigation's findings, which were compiled by the N.C. Department of Human Resources' child development division.

"We have nothing to hide," Byrd said. "We have an excellent program."

See HEAD START, page 4

Violence steadily rising in town

By Leah A. Campbell
Staff Writer

Chapel Hill police officers have had their hands full for the past few months.

"Chapel Hill is moving with the same trend as the entire Southeast," Chapel Hill police spokeswoman Jane Cousins said. "This region is experiencing the biggest jump in crime than any other area in the country."

Cousins said Chapel Hill had experienced drastic increases in the numbers of robberies and aggravated assaults.

Although figures are not yet available for 1993, statistics show that crime steadily has risen.

In 1990, 35 cases of robbery were reported; in 1991, 51; and in 1992, the number jumped to 85. In 1990, 166 cases of aggravated assault were reported; 215 in 1991; and 242 were reported in 1992.

In addition to a steady increase in robberies and assaults, police have dealt with the April 5 NCAA Championship celebration on Franklin Street, incidents of violence after the

Crime Rate In Chapel Hill

According to Chapel Hill police records

	1990	1991	1992
Homicides	4	2	0
*Rape/Sexual assaults	14	16	20
Robberies	35	51	85
Aggravated assaults	166	215	242

*This number only reflects stranger rape incidences

Grateful Dead and Guns 'n' Roses concerts and the recent shootings after the Apple Chill festival.

A riot broke out after a Grateful Dead concert a few weeks ago. When the Tar Heels won the NCAA Championship a week later, police were out in full force to keep celebrating fans under control.

Then, police found several knives in the bushes after a

See POLICE, page 9

National champs on their way to the White House

Staff report

UNC's national champion men's basketball team will make a trip to the White House today to meet President Clinton.

At 4:30 p.m., head coach Dean Smith and the Tar Heels will join Clinton in the Rose Garden, a tradition for champions from major sports. The Texas Tech Raiders, national champions in women's basketball, also will meet the President.

"We've been hearing about it," UNC center Matt Wenstrom said. "It was just a matter of when the White House could accommodate us and when we could go there.

"Obviously, to get the President's schedule and Coach Smith's schedule together must be a tough thing to do."

It's not certain whether Clinton, former governor of Arkansas, was pulling for the Razorbacks to win the national championship. But Wenstrom said the players were excited nonetheless.

"It's one of those things not many people get to do," he said.

Since it's a busy time of year for the Tar Heels, with exams coming in a few days, and for Smith, who already is making plans for next season, the team is just planning a day trip.

Dean Smith

Bill Clinton

State to help UNC create more on-campus parking

By S. Tebbens
Staff Writer

Transportation officials are looking at ways to ease parking woes by making more on-campus parking available to students.

Jim Copland, student body president, and Michael Klein, the new director of transportation and parking, met last Wednesday to discuss options for adding more pay-operations parking lots, doubling the number of bicycle racks on campus and creating new parking lots from abandoned tennis courts already being used for parking purposes.

Randy Young, spokesman for the transportation department, said that Klein called the meeting to start a working relationship between the transportation department and student government.

"Basically, the major thing was the establishment of a good working relationship between the student body president and the director," he said.

New pay lots will be paid for by the hour or by the day, similar to the Hanes visitor lot, Young said.

A plan to increase the number of bicycle racks could lead to doubling the racks on campus because of a $50,000 grant from the State Department of Transportation.

"The State DOT approved an elevated wave lock rack," Young said. "We are purchasing 200 of these. There

See PARKING, page 5

Once again a knife-wielding maniac has shown us the way. — Bart Simpson