

Jackets Next Test for UNC

Game and time: No. 14 North Carolina at Georgia Tech. Kickoff is 12:05 p.m.
Site: Bobby Dodd Stadium, Atlanta.
Playing surface: AstroTurf.

TV/Radio: The game will be televised regionally on ABC (WTVB). The Tar Heel Sports Network will provide live radio coverage. The flagship stations are WCHL (1360-AM) and WZZU (93.9-FM).

1993 records: North Carolina is 6-1 overall, 3-1 ACC; Georgia Tech is 2-3, 1-3.

Series: Georgia Tech leads 13-12-3.
Last meeting (1992): North Carolina 26, Georgia Tech 14.

Personnel update: North Carolina — SS Kevin Addis is out for the season. FB Chris Watson is doubtful. DT Riddick Parker is questionable. Georgia Tech — OT Gary Brown is out. FS Jimmy Clements and CB Eric Billingslea are questionable.

Georgia Tech offense: Here's a matchup: The league's second worst passing team against a secondary that has allowed 1,270 yards in four ACC games so far this season.

Quarterback Donnie Davis has completed 56 percent of his passes, but Tech averages only 151.2 yards per game in the air. Tech is the only ACC team other than Duke without a receiver ranked among the league's 15 most prolific this season. Freshman Derrick Steagall, recruited as a quarterback, leads the team with 15 catches, gaining 166 yards.

Throw out 37- and 38-point scoring outburst against Division I-AA defenses (Furman and, well, Maryland belongs in this category, too), and the Yellow Jackets have scored 27 points in three games — all losses. Those three games came against three of the ACC's top four teams — Florida State, Virginia and Clemson.

The Yellow Jackets have a good rushing attack, led by tailback William Bell, the team's ninth all-time leading rusher with almost 1,600 yards. Dorsey Levens had 130 yards versus Maryland.

North Carolina offense: UNC head coach Mack Brown wants more consistency from his offense.

Tailback Curtis Johnson, who leads the league with 783 yards, is a couple of games away from breaking 1,000 yards.

And Leon Johnson, with 10 touchdowns, leads the ACC in scoring. His TD sprints include runs of 62 and 57 yards.

But last week's big-play performer was Jason Stanicek, the ACC Player of the Week on offense. Stanicek, as local newspapers have pointed out 3,469 times, has the uncanny ability to flick the ball on the option at the last possible second. He was 12 of 22 passing for 172 yards last week and rushed for 61 yards.

Stanicek, who calls himself "too slow to get hit cleanly," was a third-down conversion machine against the Demon Deacons. In the first half, he converted six third downs into first down, three on the ground and three in the air. With Stanicek on the field, UNC was 9 of 13 on third down conversions.

Georgia Tech defense: The Yellow Jackets may go down in history as the team that blanketed the Red Storm.

That's right sports fans. Georgia Tech shut out Maryland's potent Run and Shoot offense last week 38-0. That's a shame for Maryland fans: Letting up just 38 points is a milestone for the Terp defense.

One reason for the shutout: Bill Lewis' defense is ranked first in the ACC in sacks (per games played), a stat that concerns Brown. But 10 of Tech's 17 sacks came against Maryland.

Ten Jackets have recorded sacks this season. OLB Tom Johnson (6-foot-5, 241 pounds) leads Tech with four. Fellow OLB Marlon Williams (6-2, 209), is tied for fourth place on Tech's all-time career sack list with 16.

North Carolina defense: Gamblers probably aren't happy with the UNC defense's performance last week. Getting outscored 22-0 in the fourth quarter didn't hurt UNC's chances of winning, but certainly damaged anybody who bet against the 22-point spread.

"You score a certain amount of points and the other team doesn't have many, I think it's the natural tendency to let up a little," said cornerback Sean Crocker, who had two interceptions against Wake. The secondary was burned for 404 yards.

Maybe against Wake. It can't happen in road games against teams with a chance to finish in the top half of the ACC.

UNC's rushing defense, on the other hand, allowed 52 yards on 22 carries last week. Marcus Jones, UNC's defensive player of the week, recorded six tackles.

Tidbits: North Carolina ran its full-backs just five times against Wake Forest, a season low Since a 35-14 setback in Atlanta in 1991, the Tar Heels are 18-8 and the Yellow Jackets are 11-10 With a win against Tech, Mack Brown would pull within one game of a .500 record at UNC. His six-year log is 30-32-1.

Final analysis/prediction: After providing highlight film material for UTEP and Wake, UNC's defense needs a big performance. And this is the week to get it.

Tech has yet to prove it can score against winning teams. Davis has little experience at QB and it has showed at times this season. Tech also lacks a go-to receiver.

UNC defeated Georgia Tech and Virginia in back-to-back games last year at Kenan Stadium. The Tar Heels will showcase their vast improvement if they can do it again — but this time on the road. UNC faces Virginia in Charlottesville Oct. 23. North Carolina 27, Georgia Tech 15.

DTH Picks of the Week

The DTH sports staff and one celebrity/personality pick the winners of the biggest college football games this weekend. This week, Tar Heel basketball forward and "One Shining Moment" crooner Pat Sullivan matches wits with our crack staff. "Self" got some help on his last pick. "Derrick (Phelps) says I should pick the Buffaloes," Sullivan said. "I'll go with the Sooners."
