Brown. "I think we will see the walk-on rs drop down across the country and I think you will see a lot of those gu going to a program where they will let them be one of the 105.

"It is very unfair that if you had a guy walking on for three years to tell him he can't come back to let some young fresh-man come in. It is a difficult thing for us."

"Some schools it's hard to get walk-ons," Goldsmith said. "Now, they have nade it to where nobody can get them.

The low numbers are forcing more and more freshmen onto depth charts and coaches holding their breath every time a key player falls in preseason drills

A scenario given recently by North Carolina State's Mike O'Cain is all too familiar

"First of all you have about 20 freshmen "First of all you have about 20 freshmen who aren't ready to play," O'Cain said. "Now, you are talking about 67 players to choose from. Of those, seven aren't good enough to play for you — so-called mixed takes we made in recruiting. Then you have another two or three who are academically ineligible and then you have some sight or man invites on ware the court seven eight or man invites on ware the your seven, eight or nine injuries over the urse of the year and you are down to 45

Coaches said they can't afford to have as many contact drills in practice.

"Folks are going to start backing off a little more in practice so they have players to play with during the games," said Wake Forest coach Jim Caldwell. "I think you are going to see football change slightly.

You aren't going to be see the real hardnosed, rugged type of football players you e accustomed to seeing." O'Cain added, "We have to be smart as coaches in what we do during the week."

O'Cain said he has purposely limited the number of plays for his starters during preseason scrimmages, trying to avoid in-

"You haven't seen our starters get a cole lot of action," O'Cain said. "They whole lot of action," O'Cain said. have to be ready to play Bowling Green. We know what Carl Reeves can do." But could a lack of contact make players soft" come game time?

"You look at the pros and very seldom othey have contact during the week and they are pretty physical on Sunday," O'Cain said. "There are all kind of figures. I think it's the approach you take."

FIGHTING

fully will prevent teams leaving their benches to join in fights.

"The seven officials will stand back and take numbers down," Faircloth said when asked how referees would cover the entire field if a fight broke out.

Faircloth also said the ACC office has access to videotapes of each game would review games on Sunday or Mon-day if officials needed help determining who was involved in fights. He said the Who was involved in lights. He said the UNC-NCSU fight occurred so quickly it was "hard to sort out." Only one player was thrown out of that game. Under the new rules, Faircloth said as many as six players would have been suspended the

"The big thing is the NCAA has recognized the fact that officials, for the m part, can handle eruptions on the field," Faircloth said. "But the problems have been with players coming off the benc Officials lose control when that happens off the bench

But some coaches hope a push here and shove there won't constitute fighting. "I think where the fine line comes in is if you shove a guy, did you hit him?" Brown said. "It's hard to hurt a guy when he's in full pads with a helmet. It's a lot easier on Franklin Street. A lot of times a guy may break his hand if he hits a guy who is in full uniform.

"It's time to send a message to young people and fans across the country—let's not fight. It's an aggressive game but there's no question that if there's something that can be done to curtail fighting we are all better off for it."

O'Cain would also like to see more flags thrown against players who talk trash, taunt, to others and dance in the end zone.

"I'll take them out of the game if they talk trash," O'Cain said of his players

"There is no place for that."
O'Cain said he's tired of television networks glorifying players showing each other up on the field. "All those things look cute but if you are hat nose things took cute but if you are the guy that just got beat on the touchdown pass and a guy jumps up and does a little dance over you that rubs at me the wrong way," he said.

Faircloth said he's instructed officials to be more aware of trash-talking.

"We are going to be very strict on it and hopefully it will be cut out early in the
