14-7 to close the half.
 "In the first half, they got some pretty good offensive rebounds," Wallace said. "But in the second half, we had to put a cease to all that."
 The Jackets outbounded UNC 17-14 in the first half, including seven offensive boards that led to eight points. That advantage did indeed cease in the second half when UNC outbounded Tech 19-14 for an overall 33-31 advantage.
 Like most teams this season, Tech went outside to counter Wallace's presence inside. The move led to 12 Jacket treys, matching their season high. But it was the easy ones that led to Tech's downfall.
 Maddox began the second half with a steal and pass ahead to Barry, but the Danville, Calif., native's jam ricocheted off the back of the iron and led to a Stackhouse basket at the other end.
 After a Best 3-pointer put Tech ahead 47-40, Eddie Elisma missed a fast-break layup. From there, the Tar Heels went on an 11-0 run before Tech head coach Bobby Cremins called a timeout at 16:29.
 "We came out in the second half a little flat," freshman Matt Harpring said. "We called a timeout, we regrouped, and we came back out, kept playing hard. They came out and got the lead on us, and we had to come back and play better defense. We came back, but unfortunately we couldn't pull it out."

SPORTS BRIEFS

Men's Tennis Falls to ND In Down-to-Wire Match

In its dual match opener, the North Carolina men's tennis team fell 4-3 to Notre Dame Sunday in South Bend, Ind.
 Notre Dame senior Brian Harris beat UNC freshman Tony Thomas 7-2 in a third-set tiebreaker in No. 6 singles, sealing the win for the Fighting Irish. Harris, who was filling in for the injured Steve Flanagan, won the match 4-6, 7-5, 7-6 (7-2).
 In No. 1 singles, UNC's David Caldwell, ranked 30th nationally, upset 16th-ranked Ryan Simme, 6-2, 6-4. Also winning for the Tar Heels were Paul Harsanyi (6-4, 6-3 over John Jay O'Brien) in No. 3 singles and Robert Tedesco (6-0, 6-4 over Jakub Pietrowski) at No. 4.
 UNC, ranked 16th, will travel next to Louisville, Ky., for the National Team Indoor Competition, Feb. 23-26.

Earnhardt Captures Clash, Serves Notice to Jarrett

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Not that it's a big surprise, but the battle lines have been drawn for Sunday's Daytona 500.
 Dale Earnhardt, the master of the trophy dash, won another Busch Clash Sunday at Daytona International Speedway. But, more importantly, he and several other Chevrolet drivers proved beyond much doubt that the new Monte Carlos will be a serious threat in the 500-mile race.
 Coming into Daytona's Speed Weeks, it was a given that Dale Jarrett, the driver of the powerful No. 28 Ford Thunderbird, would be at least one of the men to beat.
 He backed that up Saturday by winning the pole position for the 500. But Earnhardt's Monte Carlo was right there, missing the pole by just 0.011-seconds. And Jarrett was not in the 16-car lineup for Sunday's 20-lap, 50-mile Clash, a race for the previous year's pole-winners.

Tar Heels Kick Off Season With Sweep of UNCG; Look to Avenge BYU Loss

The North Carolina women's tennis team opened its dual-meet season in dominating fashion against UNC-Greensboro Saturday.
 The Tar Heels swept every match in straight sets for a 9-0 victory at the Cone-Kenfield Tennis Center.
 Head Coach Kitty Harrison said she was pleased with the results in UNC's first dual meet of the year.
 "It was wonderful to see them start well after a lot of practice," she said. "It's always a relief to get out and prove what you can do."
 UNC dropped only nine games in six singles matches. In No. 1 singles, Ariana Cervenka defeated Natalie Teague 6-1, 6-1. Inge Commissaris shut out Rachel Matlin 6-0, 6-0 at No. 2, and Alison Levy rolled past Jen Wisinski at No. 3, 6-0, 6-1.
 Other singles results were: Freddy Uihlein defeating Maggie Berger at No. 4, 6-3, 6-2; Porter Glass knocking off Kimberly Ledbetter at No. 5, 6-1, 6-0; and Robyn Gurney bagging Tiffany Cooper 6-0, 6-0 at No. 6.
 Harrison said the singles players were solid from top to bottom. She said Cervenka had the toughest match at No. 1 but handled it well, and Gurney was consistent in several long rallies against Cooper.
 "Each (singles player) I could say something positive about," Harrison said.
 UNC continued its success in the doubles matches, as Cervenka and Uihlein teamed to defeat Teague and Wisinski 6-1, 6-4 in No. 1 doubles.
 At No. 2, Levy and Gurney survived a second-set rally to knock off Cooper and Berger, 6-1, 7-5. And Commissaris and Sara Cranford eased past Matlin and Ledbetter at No. 3, 6-2, 6-2.
 expected stronger testimony from the defendants in the retrial. "I think there will be more direct rebuttal of the meager evidence Edwards presented," he said.
 If Edwards wins again, the court will ask the defendants to pay her attorney's fees. In 1992, the court awarded Edwards $82,000 in attorney's fees in addition to the damages. McSurely said that by the end of the retrial, fees would be in excess of $100,000.
 Former defendant Ben Tuchi, in an interview from the University of Pittsburgh, said the retrial was "perhaps unnecessary." Tuchi will likely return as a witness, ness and Finance Ben Tuchi, former Assistant Personnel Director Dan Burselon and former Associate Vice Chancellor for Business and Finance Charles Antle.

 Tom Ziko, the attorney from the state attorney general's office who will probably represent the defendants, said the retrial was "definitely a victory for the defendants." "I think the defendants are looking forward to being vindicated in a retrial."
 Ziko, who took over fighting the Edwards grievance this summer, said he rather than as a defendant, to the retrial. "I suppose if it will assist the resolution, I will do whatever is necessary. I am never surprised when cases continually reappear."

 Jane Brown, Faculty Council chairwoman, confirmed Friday that she had spoken with Edwards but said the faculty had yet to take a position on the case.
 Edwards and her attorney said that if the defendants lost the case, it could jeopardize federal funding to UNC. "We'll try to get the federal government to come and investigate this eight-year grievance and the University's conduct throughout the process."
