by late attendon, union omicials hadn't publicly reacted to the plan. But they were said to be cool to management's proposal for a 50 percent luxury tax on the portions of payrolls above $44 million, which was 108 percent of the average in 1994.

STAFF REPORT Tonight the Duke Blue Devils get to prove whether they deserve their No. 6 ranking in the latest USILA poll, their birder national longeneer parking use. As Tonight's game starts a tough three-game stretch for the Tar Heels, as they face highest national lacrosse ranking ever. At the same time, their opponent at 7:30 p.m. at Duke Lacrosse Stadium, No. 11 UNC, is out of the top 10 for the first time since

The Tar Heels (4-3, 0-1 in the ACC) fell from No. 8 after losing another one-goal game, 13-12 to Maryland last Saturday. game, 13-12 to Maryland last Saturday. UNC's other two losses — to Princeton and Loyola — have also been by one goal.

"I don't think it could get any harder," Reeves said. "I mean, those three centers there are three of the best centers in the nation, and we had to face 'em in back-to-back-to-back games." Life should be a little easier for Big Country against UCLA's George Zidek. But for all of the big man's exploits, OSU's unsung hero is Rutherford. When he's hot, he can make William Tell look like a bad shot. In the Cowboys' last loss, March 5 at Kansas, Rutherford was 11 for 19 from 3-point range and scored 45 points.

could put the Tar Heels in jeopardy of not making the NCAAs for the first time since 1979. If Duke wins tonight, it will be its first victory against UNC since 1987 and only

But that's not all he does. At 6-3, he's snatched 6.3 rebounds per game for the season and 7.3 in the tournament. And for good measure, he plays great defense. "When we play teams like UCLA or Massachusetts or Wake Forest, or Alabama, then we ask our guards to come in and really assist in rebounding, especially at the defensive end," Sutton said. "And I would put Randy up against any guard in college basketball when you're looking at someone who can rebound from that posi-tion. He is one of the best all-around guards some that we have in college basketball." Sutton needed a comprehensive map to find his two stars. Reeves hails from Gans, second since 1967. The series stands at 31-5 in favor of the Tar Heels. UNC oblitted the Devils 23-9 at Fetzer Field last vear

Duke (6-1, 0-1) has a balanced scoring attack, led by senior Scott Harrison with 12 goals and 14 assists. Ross Moscatelli, Matt Ogelsby, Jim Gonnella and Steve Finnell have scored at least 12 goals apiece.

The Devils also feature Ben Quayle, the on of former vice president Dan. Potatoe Jr. has a goal in his one appearance. For UNC, senior Ousmane Greene is coming off a four-goal game vs. Maryland.
