

Men's, Women's Netters Cruise Past 'Pack, Rams

STAFF REPORT
RALEIGH — UNC's 26th ranked men's tennis team swept all six singles matches and took two of three doubles matches to down N.C. State 7-0 Wednesday afternoon.

For the Tar Heels, it was their second straight win after dropping matches to Florida and Florida State over the weekend. UNC now stands at 7-7 overall, 2-1 in ACC play.

UNC's David Caldwell and Paul Harsanyi both had to survive close shaves in third set action to post victories in singles play. Caldwell topped Tom Herb 4-6, 6-3, 7-5 at No. 1, while Harsanyi won over N.C. State's Brian Ozaki 2-6, 6-4, 7-6 at No. 3.

In other singles action, the rest of the Tar Heel lineup did not drop a set: Brint Morrow over Eric Saunders 7-6, 6-1; Tony Thomas over Matt Yelverton 6-1, 6-4; Tony Tedesco over Peter McGuone 6-0, 6-1; and David L. Ritt over Walt Kennedy 6-3, 6-1.

UNC captured the doubles point with wins by Thomas and Harsanyi, and Tedesco and Britt.

The Tar Heels travel to Richmond, Va., Friday for a match with Virginia Commonwealth. They return home to Cone-Kenfield Tennis Center Sunday against Virginia at 1 p.m.

Women Top Lady Rams

The UNC women's tennis team evened its record with a 7-2 win over Virginia Commonwealth at the Cone-Kenfield Tennis Center Wednesday. Tar Heel J.C. Biber's 6-0, 6-0 sweep of VCU's Kristi Whitaker helped UNC win five of six of the singles matches.

Also winning at singles for the Tar Heels (8-8) were Inge Commissaris (6-2, 6-1 over Liliana Manovkian), Ariana Cervenka (7-5, 7-6 over Ilona Poljakova), Freddy Uihlein (6-2, 6-1 over Helena Karlsson) and Alison Levy (6-0, 6-4 over E.M. Pehrsson).

The Tar Heels also took two of the three doubles matches — all of which went three sets — from the Lady Rams. Biber and Uihlein topped Manovkian and Poljakova 4-6, 6-1, 7-6. Cervenka and Sara Cranford beat Pehrsson and Kristi Whitaker 6-4, 3-6, 7-6.

UNC's next home match is Friday against William & Mary at 2 p.m.

Fencers Finish 16th at NCAAs

NOTRE DAME, Ind. — The Tar Heel fencers, led by the 84 points from the women's squad, finished 16th at the NCAA Fencing Championships last weekend. The team finished with 95 points, as Penn State won the championship with 440 points. Seven UNC fencers placed in the top 30: Kim Barnes (foil, 17th), Kristin Post (foil, 21st), Lillian Kizer (epee, 18th), Melanie Byrd (epee, 22nd), Andre Walker (foil, 30th), Marcus Crow (sabre, 25th) and Matthew Cox (sabre, 27th).

Lacrosse Lambastes No. 6 Blue Devils

DURHAM — For the second consecutive year, UNC entered its regular season matchup against Duke with three losses, no quality wins, and its toughest competition still ahead.

And similar to last season, the Tar Heels emerged with a convincing win. The 11th-ranked Tar Heels beat the No. 6 Blue Devils 13-8 Wednesday night at Duke Lacrosse Stadium. Last year, UNC crushed Duke 23-9 at Fetzer Field.

This season's game was the Tar Heels' first since being ousted from the Top 10, and it also marked the first time they have played a higher ranked Duke team.

"I don't think it was an upset in any regard," UNC midfielder Kyle Durkee said. "Myself being a senior, there was no way I was going to lose this game."

Unlike last year's drubbing of the Blue Devils (6-2, 0-2), this year's version was a showcase of dominant defense. UNC (5-3, 1-1) did not allow a Duke goal until 5:06 into the second quarter. And more importantly, the Tar Heels held the Blue Devils without a goal for the last 23 minutes.

"We worked all week on playing better team defense," defenseman Steve Schreiber said. "We wanted to concentrate on defending No. 16 (Scott Harrison), No. 22 (Ross Moscatelli) and No. 28 (Matt Ogelsby), so we put long sticks on them all game."

"Because we held them to eight goals, I would say this is our best game against a ranked team."

UNC jumped out to an 8-3 halftime lead behind three goals and an assist from attackman Merrill Turnbull, while the defense allowed few quality shots by Duke.

"They've been beaten three times by one goal," UNC head coach Dave Klarmann said. "So the players came out tonight with as much animosity and enthusiasm as they could muster."

But Duke quickly erased the lead in the first six and a half minutes of the third quarter. The Blue Devils changed their ball control strategy and attacked the Tar Heel defense, producing a 5-1 run, cutting UNC's lead to 9 to 8 midway through the third.

"We came out flat in the third quarter," Schreiber said. "We had a mental lapse and gave them a couple of goals, but our heart was in it, and we were able to fight back."

The UNC offense then emerged from its second half drought and steadily built the lead back to five. And Duke was an obliging foe as it continually failed to clear the ball in stretches in the final quarter. During the game-ending 4-0 run, both Durkee and Brendan Carey completed their hat tricks.

"The difference today was that we put four good quarters together," Durkee said. "On offense it wasn't one-on-one battles, but three attackmen and three middies playing together."

Comeback Kids Do It Again in Win Over Louisville

Call it miraculous. Call it unthinkable. Call it what you like.

To the North Carolina baseball team, their 9-7 comeback win over Louisville Wednesday was simply par for the course this year. The Tar Heels (22-9) spotted the Cardinals (8-18) seven runs in three innings, only to notch another come-from-behind victory with explosive fourth and seventh innings.

"I don't think we thought we were ever out of it," UNC assistant coach Roger Williams said. "We knew we would come back."

The afternoon started on a bitter note for the Tar Heels, with Louisville's batters blistering starter Scott McAllister for six runs in the first inning. Matt Berger hit a three-run homer to begin the onslaught, and his fellow Cardinals followed suit.

The Cardinals' lead expanded to 7-0 in the third when Jason Heffran singled to right, driving in Mark Nickel.

As if things could get no worse for UNC, head coach Mike Roberts was ejected from the game in the fourth inning after arguing with umpire Mark Turner. From there, the Tar Heel bats caught fire.

"Coach got thrown out, and we just started hitting," Stoner said.

With two outs, Hanes Torbett blasted a double out of the reach of Louisville second baseman Chuck Jones, bringing home Larry Husted and Tyrone Brown. David Boone's single to left field allowed Torbett to score from second, making it a 7-3 game.

UNC then found itself in the midst of another come-from-behind effort, a common position for the Tar Heels this season.

"When you can push a few runs across the plate, it looks good," Williams said. "You see you still have time to take the lead."

Stoner hit a solo home run over the right field wall to narrow the Cardinals' bulge to three, but he wasn't finished. North Carolina's defense held Louisville scoreless, while its bats erupted again, this time for five runs in the seventh.

Stoner's double down the third-base line drove in Brian Whitlock, and Mitch Jones walked, loading the bases. Crandel Coltrane scored on Antawan Smith's sacrifice fly, followed by a single up the middle by Brown to send Stoner home. The 7-7 deadlock was broken moments later when Torbett nailed a single to center field, scoring Jones and Husted for the final tally.

"We've been down before, so we were relaxed," Stoner said. "We just had to stay focused and play defense."

"If we are going to be down, that helps out our character."

ARKANSAS
 didn't work under anyone."

But no matter how rocky the road, Richardson landed the job at Arkansas. No doubt, Richardson's luck was bound to change. He was now at a top notch Division I school.

However, his troubles hadn't really even started. Richardson's stint at Arkansas began with a 12-16 year. He then followed that up with a 19-14 season.

The losses on his record hurt, but what troubled him the most was the health of his young daughter Yvonne. She was terminally stricken with leukemia.

She died Jan. 22, 1987.

Now, in 1995, Richardson sits in the king's throne in Seattle. He is the reigning national champion and boasts a 251-48 record since the 1987-88 season.

But he doesn't seem to celebrate his trophies like most coaches. In fact he even deems his career to be "mediocre."

"I'm glad I'm at the end of my mediocre career," Richardson said. "It's unfortunate. I sympathize with the coaches, but I know how hard it was for me to get where I am."

Like it or not, all those days of paying dues may have worn off on this season's Razorback squad.

Besieged with expectations and hype after winning the 1994 national title, the Razorbacks faltered out of the gate.

They dropped the season opener to Massachusetts 104-80. They then fell to several SEC opponents early in the season. However, just like Richardson, Arkansas never quit.

And by the end of the season, the Razorbacks had recorded a 31-6 record and earned a No. 2 seed in the Midwest region of the NCAA Tournament.

"To me, this is the most rewarding of all my seasons," Richardson said. "We could have packed our tents and gone home."

"But here we are."

So, as Richardson packs his bags for Seattle, emotional scars still encompass his life. Scars of his daughter's premature death and all the trials and tribulations on the road to his current job will be at his side when he tries to capture his second national championship this weekend.

It's a championship which can soothe those scars, but it definitely can't heal them. There is no cosmetic surgery for that kind of scar.
