

UNC Comes Home for 92nd Meeting Vs. Wake

BY JONATHAN HART
ASSISTANT SPORTS SATURDAY EDITOR

As far as anyone can tell, college football in the state of North Carolina began in 1888, when North Carolina and Wake Forest met at the State Fairgrounds in Raleigh.

One hundred and seven years later, the two teams will meet Saturday at Kenan Stadium for the 92nd renewal of their rivalry.

After a disappointing loss to Georgia Tech last Saturday, the Tar Heels (3-3 overall, 1-2 in the ACC) hope to rebound against Wake Forest on Homecoming.

However, UNC head coach Mack Brown said that despite the Deacons' poor overall record, he doesn't expect the game to be a cake walk.

"We know that we have a test, because Wake Forest plays better against us than anybody else they play all year," Brown said.

Maybe so, but Wake Forest (1-6, 0-4) hasn't played well this year against anybody.

The Deacons opened the season with a 24-22 loss to Division I-AA Appalachian State. The slide has yet to stop, with the lone bright spot being a 30-7 drubbing of Navy in Annapolis, Md.

"Well, in certain areas I think we're better than we have been," Wake Forest coach Jim Caldwell said. "Obviously, we still have a problem with the depth factor and things of that nature. Obviously we haven't arrived yet, and I think you can tell by noticing our scores and our record.

In terms of the way we've been playing, we've been a lot more competitive ... but our record has not indicated that. There are spurts this year where I think we've been playing better than we have the previous few years, but obviously, we have a long way to go yet."

UNC, meanwhile, has had some struggles of its own. Ten interceptions and 10 lost fumbles have combined for a -14 giveaway/takeaway rating. Caldwell said his defense is aware of the situation and has been preparing to take advantage of it.

"I think there's not a defense in the country that doesn't work on takeaway drills, as far as stripping the ball and trying to force a little more pressure on the quarterback," Caldwell said.

"That's a daily part of our practice routine. It's a must, because that's how you make a difference in ball games, to get turnovers, to give your offense an opportunity to drive the ball a shorter distance to the goal," he said.

Another problem for the Tar Heels has been field position. UNC was plagued with poor field position against Georgia Tech. Down 13-10 at halftime, the Tar Heels started their drives in the third quarter from their own 10, 19 and one-yard line. The result? UNC found itself down 27-18 at the end of the third quarter.

One way the Tar Heels have compensated for poor field position has been to emphasize the passing game more. Octavus Barnes averages nearly 20 yards per catch and has racked up four straight games of over 100 yards receiving, a school record.

"I think Octavus has played as well as any receiver we've ever had in the last two, three, four games," Brown said. "He had a slow start early, but came into his own and he was open a number of times Saturday that we were unable to get the ball open to him."

Brown said that because the Tar Heels' big play receivers, Barnes and Marcus Wall, also return kicks, the team has had to shuffle receivers out of necessity. He said to look for contributions from players who haven't seen much action, such as Na' Brown, Darrin Ashford and L.C. Stevens.

Wake Forest coach JIM CALDWELL is 0-2 vs. the Tar Heels.

Wake Forest at UNC
1:30 p.m., Kenan Stadium
Chapel Hill

Playing surface: Natural grass.
TV/Radio: The game will not be televised. The Tar Heel Sports Network will provide radio coverage. The flagship stations are WCHL (1360 AM) and WTRG (100.7 FM).
1995 Records: UNC 3-3 (1-2 in the ACC); WF 1-6 (0-4).
Personnel Update: UNC - SS Wendel Camp (knee) is out. QB Tucker Perry (thumb) and DE Russell Davis (knee) are questionable. WF - OT Elton Ndome-Ogar (strained calf) and SS Alexis Sockwell (shoulder) are probable.
Analysis/Prediction: Can UNC rebound from a disappointing loss at Georgia Tech last weekend? Facing an abysmal Wake Forest defense that has given up 414 yards per game and a running game that is ranked last in the ACC, the Tar Heels figure the Deacons to be the perfect antidote for the Yellow Jacket blues.

Soccer Tickets on Sale

Less than 500 tickets for the 1995 NCAA Women's Soccer National Championships at Fetzer Field Dec. 1 and 3 are still available. Tickets for the entire weekend are $14 for adults and $4 for children under 12. All seats are reserved and seating is based on the date each order is received. No additional tickets will be held.

UNC currently holds the record for the largest crowd in NCAA Women's Soccer history at 5,721. This year, however, the stadium is configured to seat 6,700 spectators. Tickets can be ordered by calling 962-2296. For further information, call Daniel T. Thornton at 962-5154.

Former Tar Heel Receiver Nets Teaching Scholarship

Former UNC wide receiver Gray Bovender will receive one of 67 "Hitachi Promise of Tomorrow" teaching scholarships given by the College Football Association. The scholarships are for $5,000 and go to students involved with CFA member football programs who intend to pursue a career in education.

Bovender gave up football after suffering a second torn anterior cruciate ligament injury in August of 1994. Bovender, a senior from Winston-Salem, N.C., was slated to be the starting split end last year.

Duke Player Suspended

DURHAM — Duke coach Fred Goldsmith has suspended linebacker Billy Granville, the team's leading tackler last season, for the last four games this year.

Goldsmith suspended Granville for breaking team rules. He would not elaborate on what Granville, a junior from Lawrenceville, N.J., had done wrong, other than to say the suspension was not related to drugs.

Granville, a starting inside linebacker, is second on the team in tackles this season. He's one of Duke's best run stoppers and also calls the defensive signals.

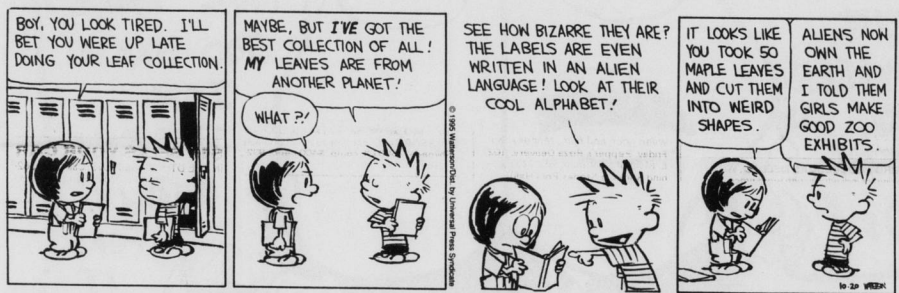

Duke's defense, devastated by injuries, is ranked last in the nation statistically.
