15-5 run, aided by five straight 3-pointers. Then they followed with a 12-2 run to open the second half, effectively putting the game out of reach, even in this season of numerous improbable comebacks.

"Anytime a team plays you zone, if you swing the ball fast enough, you can get some open shots," Sasser said. "You have to knock those down."

For Texas Tech, it was a welcome return of shooting strokes. The Red Raiders had struggled through the Southwest Conference Tournament and then hit only 5 of 22 3s in a first round win against Northern Illinois. "I told them yesterday at practice to really focus on their shooting," Dickey said. "The main thing that we wanted to do at practice yesterday was get a lot of shooting in, where our guys would be comfortable and confident."

What Dickey didn't expect was his players to be unconscious.

In the first half, four Red Raiders connected on 3-pointers, including center Tony Battie stepping out on Zwickler for a trey. Cory Carr came off the bench to nail four treys in nine attempts, and Sasser knocked down four of his own.

For the game, Tech finished 12 of 26 from behind the arc, and each one seemed to come at a clutch moment. "I felt like for us to win this ball game, we had to make some big shots," Dickey said. "We hit more than I thought we would."

Perhaps those shots fell a little easier because of the play of his point guard. Smith conceded the jumper all afternoon to Tech's Jason Martin, but the 5-foot-10 senior never budged. He almost refused to shoot, attempting only two shots.

Instead, he stuck to his strength — passing. He finished with 10 assists, many coming by finding his wing players open 3s.

He ran his team to virtual perfection, pushing when necessary or opportunistic and pulling back out if the open shot wasn't available.

structed Grimsley to lead off third more than usual, attempting to distract Ohio pitcher Hoskins. Hoskins balked while trying to pick off Grimsley, advancing all three runners and scoring Grimsley.

Hoskins then walked Whitlock to reload the bases, and Shearin scored both McIver and Raniszkeski off his single to left.

"That's been a play we've used for a long time with the pitcher in his wind-up position and the runner on third base," Roberts said. "It distracts the pitcher, whether he balks or not, and he walked the batter, and the next guy got a base hit."

The Bobcats tried to rally in the ninth, as Bart Leahy hit a lead-off home run off Finnelly. Richardson came on to finish the inning and struck out two of the four batters he faced.

On Saturday, the Tar Heels came up with a season-high 17 hits and 12 runs thanks to the torrid hitting of Shearin and Stoner, who both went 4 for 5.

UNC's Scott McAllister upped his record to 3-0, winning his first complete game of the season. McAllister gave up only six hits and struck out three batters.

Besides allowing UNC a chance to pad its statistics, the sweep injected a dose of confidence into the Tar Heel dugout.

Tigers Deal Men Laxers First Loss

STAFF REPORT

The North Carolina men's lacrosse team, ranked fourth in the country, lost 16-9 to No. 5 Princeton (2-1) on Sunday at Foreman Field in Norfolk, Va.

Princeton's victory was its third straight against the Tar Heels (5-1), who dropped their first contest of the season.

UNC kept it close for most of the game, leading 3-2 after the first quarter and trailing 9-8 after three. But the Tigers used a 7-1 scoring outburst in the fourth to seal the win.

North Carolina was led by junior attackman Merrill Turnbull, who had three goals and one assist. Princeton's sophomore duo of Jesse Hubbard and Chris Massey led the efficient Tiger attack, which landed 32 of 40 shots on goal, with six goals apiece. Princeton also benefited from three extra-man goals, compared to UNC's one.

Nine Tigers tallied assists in the contests, while the Tar Heels managed only four as a team.

Princeton outshot North Carolina 40-39, but only 22 of the Tar Heels' shots were on goal.

Rodman Faces Suspension

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Dennis Rodman faced a suspension by the NBA after head-butting a referee, stripping to his waist, knocking over a water cooler and shouting obscenities after he was ejected in Chicago's victory at New Jersey.

Rodman's tirade Saturday night was witnessed by NBA vice president of operations Rod Thorn, the official who hands out suspensions.

"Obviously, he didn't leave the court in a timely manner," Thorn said Saturday night. "If anybody thinks they're going to disrupt our game, they've got another thing coming."

After picking up a technical 5:44 into the game for pounding the ball on the court, Rodman was ejected with 1:31 left in the first period after being called for a personal foul.

As Rodman argued the call, he put his hands inside his shorts. Referee Ted Bernhardt noticed the gesture and called Rodman for his second technical. Rodman went after Bernhardt and lightly head-butted him above the left eye. Rodman then flung his shirt off, stormed around the court and knocked over a water bucket.
