

Group Calls for Improved Safety Coordination

■ The Chancellor's Task Force on Women wants to merge several departments.

In response to a campus-wide survey, the Chancellor's Task Force on Women has recommended that campus safety organizations coordinate their efforts to address security concerns.

The group wants to combine the campus safety committee, the department of public safety and SAFE Escort to minimize bureaucracy. "It is very clear that we need to enhance existing services on campus," said Judith Scott, University sexual harassment officer and task force member. "Effective communication enhances what we've already got."

Because of the concerns raised in the poll, the task force decided to take action in campus safety, said Noelle Granger, anatomy professor and co-chairwoman of the task force. "The task force asks for networking, which will allow for better public safety. This is all a part of public safety," Granger said. "Having one voice for safety would be more effective."

Granger said the task force planned to meet at the end of next week to prioritize its proposals. Based on concerns raised by the survey, the task force has proposed improvement of the Point-2-Point shuttle system, residence hall security and campus parking. Other areas in which students expressed concern were the visibility of campus security officers and improved lighting on walkways.

University Police Chief Donald Gold said he welcomed input from students and faculty. "These suggestions and other input from the community are important to the Public Safety Department," Gold said. "We are obviously not reaching everyone and are therefore not able to make people aware of security issues. Any issues identified are worthy of examination."

Emphasis on coordinating safety groups coincides with the public safety department's current action, Gold said. The department maintains regular communication with the Campus Security Committee and SAFE Escort, he said.

Suggestion boxes placed around campus are a means of communicating student concerns about safety.

These boxes were put in place two months ago by the Office of Student Affairs, said Student Body Vice President Lindsay Rae McIntyre, a former member of Student Congress's Student Affairs Committee.

know what being away from home is like," Brown told the soldiers. "So we thought we would bring a little bit of home to you."

Even before getting the Clinton Cabinet post, Brown was a fixture in Washington political circles.

He was a former Senate aide to Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. After leaving the Senate staff, he became one of Washington's top lobbyists. In 1990 he won the Democratic National Committee chairmanship, becoming the first black to lead either of the major parties. Clinton rewarded Brown by naming him Commerce Secretary.

Brown's frequent foreign trips became a magnet for Republican criticisms.

His personal financial dealings also were criticized and were the subject of an investigation by an independent counsel.

changing the CIP budget at Monday's meeting. "It was simply presented," he said. "We talked a bit about schools but immediately decided more work sessions are needed. It will be discussed at at least two more meetings, and there will be public hearings prior to budget discussions."

Superintendent Neil Pedersen said the commissioners are looking at the same school spending proposal as the one approved by the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Board of Education in March.

"The capital budget is different than the operational budget in the fact that the county commissioners have already told us how much money is available," Pedersen said. "We developed a budget within those cost constraints. Normally, there are not major changes made to these budgets."

Pedersen said the county was not likely to cut any of the school system's requested items in the budget. "They shouldn't be cut," he said.

The county commissioners will continue discussing the CIP budget over the next few months. They will also decide how the building projects will be funded.

Under the current proposal, the major building projects for the Chapel Hill-Carrboro school district will be funded with the sales tax, rather than with a property tax increase. A final CIP will be approved in late June.

Schools Propose Budget Plans to Commissioners

The Orange County Board of Commissioners took its first official look Monday at a proposed budget for spending in the Chapel Hill-Carrboro school district.

The commissioners discussed this year's Capital Improvement Plan, which outlines the county's total construction budget. While the CIP covers a 10-year period, it is reviewed annually and is approved along with the county's operational budget each June.

This year's proposed CIP budget includes $120 million for capital spending in the next decade. Of that money, $95 million is designated for the capital needs of Orange County's schools. These capital needs include a $14 million elementary school and a $10.8 million addition to East Chapel Hill High in the city district, as well as numerous renovation projects throughout the county.

Orange County commissioner Bill Crowther said the board had not discussed

One law enforcement official said Kaczynski grew up in Chicago and received a graduate degree in mathematics from the University of Michigan. He bought land in Montana 10-12 years ago and has been building a house-cabin there since then, the official said.

The Unabomber's spree began at Northwestern University outside Chicago in May 1978. Three people have died and 23 more were injured in 15 subsequent Unabomber attacks; the most recent came April 24, 1995, when a timber industry executive was killed in Sacramento, Calif.

Last September, The New York Times and The Washington Post published his 35,000-word treatise on the inhumanity of industrial society after he promised to stop planting bombs that kill people.

There have been no such incidents since then.

The New York Times said reporter Nathaniel Nash was also among the passengers.

Hours before the crash, Brown had surprised U.S. peacekeeping troops in Tuzla, Bosnia with McDonald's hamburgers and sports videotapes, including the just-concluded NCAA basketball tournament. "Being a former Army man myself, I
