Former Tar Heel Center To Join U.S. Hoops Team

Former UNC women's basketball player Sylvia Crawley was selected to join the U.S. National Team for its upcoming Australian tour, USA Basketball announced Friday.

Crawley, who graduated from UNC in 1994 and was USA Basketball's 1995 Female Athlete of the Year, competed this year for Banco Luos Español in Spain. She averaged 16.6 points and 7.9 rebounds per game. The national team's tour will include participation in the Goldmark Cup from May 6-15. The Americans will face Cuba, Ukraine and Australia in the event.

Crawley last competed for USA Basketball in the World University Games in Japan during the summer of 1995, when she averaged 16.1 points and 5.9 rebounds per game.

Controversial Oddsmaker Jimmy 'The Greek' Dies

LAS VEGAS — Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, who parlayed oddsmaking skills and a gift for gab into national prominence before his television career crashed over ill-advised remarks about black athletes, died Sunday.

Snyder, 76, died of heart failure at a local hospital after a long illness, said longtime friend Tommy Manakides. Snyder, who lived in Durham but often visited Las Vegas, had been in and out of hospitals for several months, Manakides said.

At his peak, Snyder was a colorful CBS Sports commentator. But he lived his late years in virtual obscurity after being fired by the network in 1988 for saying that black athletes were superior to whites.

Olajuwon Sets Record

HOUSTON — Houston Rockets center Hakeem Olajuwon set an NBA record for career blocked shots Sunday when he swatted away a shot by Phoenix's A.C. Green. Olajuwon has 3,190 blocks in 12 seasons, one more than Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had in 19 seasons.

Green, going in for a layup, had the shot rejected by Olajuwon with 6:04 remaining in the third period of Houston's game against the Suns. It was his third blocked shot of the game and 207th this season.

"They had to make me work for it, didn't they?" Olajuwon said in the locker room after the season-ending game, which Houston won 118-110.

Olajuwon averages 2.87 blocks per game, the fourth-best mark in the league.

No. 4 Wahoos Whip Women's Laxers

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. — Throughout its inaugural season, the North Carolina women's lacrosse team has had to leap hurdle after hurdle.

And the Tar Heels overcame plenty of obstacles en route to racking up 10 wins and garnering a No. 14 ranking before Saturday's meeting with Virginia at Klöckner Stadium.

But one test UNC had not passed was beating a top program. Maryland, William & Mary and Georgetown, which rank near the top of the women's lacrosse world, all disposed of UNC.

Against the Cavaliers on Saturday, the Tar Heels had one more chance to notch an upset. But just as in each of its previous games against top teams, UNC fumbled while UVa. coasted, and the Cavaliers dumped the Tar Heels 13-6.

UNC (10-4), however, began the contest more like a seasoned squad than a youthful team. Aubrey Falk raced downfield and hit a shot to put the Tar Heels up 1-0 just 27 seconds into the game, injecting UNC with a shot of confidence.

But around that time, experience overwhelmed exuberance, and the Cavs (10-3) mounted a run that gave them a 3-1 cushion. And UNC, which had grown accustomed to having big leads, never responded.

"Look at their scores this season — it didn't look like they'd been trailing a whole lot," Virginia coach Julie Myers said. "So this was a situation they had never been in before. We have the experience to make the difference."

Cavalier attacker Kate Evans tied the game four minutes after Falk's score when she worked her way free near the goal and slammed in a bid. Virginia added to its lead with 20:56 left in the half on Heather Patton's goal from 10 yards out, and Peggy Boutlier converted a point-blank opportunity at the 15:25 mark to put UVa. up 3-1.

Thirteen seconds later, however, UNC's Sharon Moore snared a pass from Chastin

Crook and hit the back of the net. Evans then took only 14 ticks to bump the Cavalier advantage back to two, but the Tar Heels answered when Crook took Moore's pass and netted her shot to cut the UVa. lead to 4-3. Once again, Evans responded with a score to snuff UNC's rally. On the afternoon, Evans recorded six goals, but more importantly, her timely tallies kept the Tar Heels at arm's length.

"(Evans) took good shots, and she's a nice ballhandler," said UNC coach Jenny Slingluff, who played at Virginia from 1989-92. "She got some rebounds off second shots, and you have to be ready with that second effort. She showed a lot of punch with her second effort."

With 21:52 gone in the opening stanza, UNC midfielder Amy Fine fed Erin McGinnis with a pinpoint pass that she whipped into the net, pulling the Tar Heels to within 5-4. Yet moments later, the Cavaliers ended the Tar Heels' comeback attempt. Patton, scrambling behind the goal, fed Beth Potter for a goal that sparked a 5-1 Virginia run. From that point, UNC's offense fizzled while the UVa. defense created many scoring opportunities.

"We were expecting a lot of pressure," Moore said. "I don't think we didn't take care of the ball, though. We did have to work a lot harder for our shots, but we expected that."

Evans' goal with 8:02 left in the game put Virginia ahead 10-5, and the Tar Heels' only offense down the stretch consisted of a Sarah Dacey score one minute later. Three different Cavs notched anticlimactic goals in the final minutes to ice the win.

And although UNC may not have jumped its final hurdle, the Tar Heels gained a great deal of experience against the tradition-rich Cavaliers.

Baseball Bulldozes Jackets; Roberts Nets 800th Victory

STAFF REPORT

The North Carolina baseball team captured a three-game sweep of conference rival Georgia Tech in Atlanta this weekend, as UNC coach Mike Roberts netted his 800th career win.

The Tar Heels (24-21, 7-11 in the ACC) completed two games Sunday, winning a pair of one-run contests. UNC defeated Tech (27-15, 8-7) 12-11 in the second game and 8-7 in the first, a continuation of a game that began Saturday but was suspended by rain in the seventh inning. Tar Heel Robbie McIver hammered four home runs in the two games to lead UNC.

In the second game, UNC blasted Tech starter Kris Wilson for six runs in three innings as McIver and Mike Stoner both hit home runs in a five-run first inning. McIver also netted an inside-the-park homer in the third.

The game became an offensive deluge from both teams in the fourth and fifth innings as the Tar Heels scored five runs and the Yellow Jackets seven in that span. UNC grabbed a run in the top of the eighth to answer Tech's one-run seventh, giving the Tar Heels a 12-9 lead and putting the game out of reach. Reliever Michael Horney earned the win.

In the first game, UNC's B.J. Finnerty tallied the win in relief as the Tar Heels built an 8-4 lead before Tech surged.

In the top of the eighth with UNC leading 6-4, Tar Heel Antawan Smith smacked a two-run homer to give North Carolina a four-run cushion, but UNC nearly succumbed to a Tech rally. In the bottom of the inning the Yellow Jackets tallied four runs, but Tar Heel reliever Corey Richardson produced his ninth save of the year to shut down the Jackets.

UNC topped Georgia Tech 12-6 on Friday as starter Jim Wallace won his fifth game. Wallace allowed two earned runs in five and two-thirds innings, and Stoner was 2 for 4 with four RBIs. UNC secured the game with a five-run fifth and a two-run sixth as the Tar Heels built a 7-2 lead.

Buccaneers Draft UNC's Jones With 22nd Selection

STAFF REPORT

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers put Marcus Jones' fears to rest Saturday when they made him their second first-round pick (and the 22nd overall) in the NFL Draft.

"You don't want to just sit there and be anxious the whole time waiting to hear your name," Jones said last week in anticipation of the draft. "What if they don't call my name, and I'm just sitting there?"

Jones did sit for over three hours, as he watched USC wide receiver Keyshawn

Johnson go to the Jets with the first pick of the draft and Illinois players Kevin Hardy and Simeon Rice get picked up by Jacksonville and Arizona, respectively.

Jones, the highest-rated ACC player available for the draft, was one of 13 players invited to New York to participate in Selection Saturday.

Jones earned ACC Defensive Player of the Year plaudits last season, as he led UNC's defense with 94 tackles and seven sacks. Last season, Jones broke the career sack record of Lawrence Taylor, who was a first-round pick in 1981.

MARCUS JONES was the tenth UNC player to be drafted in the first round.
