Cuban Boy's Father Alleges Bribery

MIAMI - Elian Gonzalez's father told U.S. immigration officials that his Miami relatives offered him millions of dollars, a house and a car to join the 6year-old boy in the United States. according to court papers filed Thursday

"I could go there with all my family and would be taken care and could have a job if I wanted to work, but with the money offered I would not need to do so," the father said. "That's when I hung

The U.S. government filed the papers in response to a lawsuit filed by the boy's Miami relatives, who are challenging an order that Elian be sent back to live with his father in Cuba.

In its 400-page response, the govern-ment argued that the federal courts have no right to intervene and that allowing Elian to stay could "seriously prejudice the ability of the U.S. government to help parents in the United States recover their children taken to foreign coun-

The next hearing in the case is set for the week of March 6, although the judge in the case could possibly issue a ruling

The dispute over Elian's fate began two months ago, after he was found clinging to an inner tube in the Atlantic Ocean. His mother and 10 other people fleeing Cuba for Florida died after their

The boy's Cuban grandmothers have been in the United States for the past week to appeal for his return. They had a tearful, tense reunion with the boy in Florida on Wednesday, and on Thursday they renewed their efforts on Capitol Hill.

The court papers reflect some of the dominant themes of the debate: The families in Cuba and Florida each say the other side is lying and being manipulated by political forces.

Lazaro Gonzalez, a great-uncle who has temporary custody of the boy in Miami, told immigration officials that he spoke to Elian's father by telephone two or three days before the boy was even found. Lazaro Gonzalez said Elian's father asked him to protect Elian "by whatever means available" but eventually changed his tune and asked for

"We all think he's under pressure from the government, because of his change in sentiment, and I'm amazed about this," Lazaro Gonzalez said.

Elian's father, Juan Miguel Gonzalez, was interviewed by Immigration and Naturalization Service officials Havana on Dec. 13 and 31.

In those interviews, the boy's father said his relatives in Miami offered him $2 million, a house and a car if he would join his son in the United States.

If you are interested in applying to be on the staff of The Daily Tar Heel for this semester, applications are due by 5 p.m. today in the DTH front office in Suite 104 of the Student Union. The paper needs reporters for major news desks as well as contributing artists who will produce illustrations. The paper is also looking for students interested in working for "Tech Review," a DTH online publication. These reporters would be responsible for writing technology-based articles for the Web only. Also, the paper wants students to serve on its Student Feedback Board. The board meets with DTH editors regularly to discuss the paper's coverage. Not incentive enough? The paper will treat the board to dinner at the meetings. Apps are due today by 5 p.m. in the DTH office. Questions? Call Rob Nelson at 2-4086.
