Carolina, Speak Out!

Is Bill Guthridge to blame for the team's lackluster season? 53% say yes 47% say no

I can say without reservation that Coach Guthridge lacks the steely leadership qualities to optimize the talents of the current Tar Heel team. I cannot see Bill Guthridge ever bringing an NCAA championship to Chapel Hill.

CHARLES ALLEN

Yes, the man won't even get up from his seat for crying out loud. Our team needs an assertive, outspoken, energetic coach. If he is going to sit there with his hands crossed the whole time, he can watch the games on TV.

"No, you can't blame Coach Guthridge for the team's effort this year. After all, he can only do so much; he isn't the one out there in the baggy shorts and free shoes not hustling or not playing defense

Council Seeks Public Input on Budget

By SARAH BRIER Staff Writer

After several meeting delays due to wintry weather conditions, Chapel Hill Town Council members said strong public support would be crucial tonight's council meeting and public hearing on the budget.

Although the road conditions are not expected to be favorable, council members said they hoped this did not keep residents from coming to the meeting, scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

Because the weather last week forced the cancellation of various town meetings, tonight's session will include issues from last Monday's meeting, last Tuesday's canceled budget meeting and the regularly scheduled budget meeting for today, council member Pat Evans

"We usually have a good turnout of people who want things done in their neighborhoods," Evans said. "But the ather is definitely going to be a factor and we may have to compact some Council officials expect the town budget to receive the most attention. Council member Flicka Bateman said it was important for residents to know how town money would be spent.

"(The town staff) is proposing a 5-cent (tax) increase," she said. "No one on council wants that, and we won't pass it. We try to meet the service needs of citizens but we are looking for some thing to cut and that's the hard part."

Town Manager Cal Horton said the budget included everything from transit and police to planning and revenue.

"The key point at this time is that we are at the beginning of the budget devel-oment process," he said. Horton said there were no particular another topic up for discussion at tonight's meeting was the Comprehensive Plan,

Plan, including annexation and protection of natural areas. "It has been close to eight or 10 years since the last Comprehensive Plan," he said. "There is a draft before the council now and we will be trying to work those issues out. He said they would address the idea of mixed-use development along major corridors and highways.

"It is a scale of positive changes for the neighborhood and not too much growth," he said. "We are trying to make the area more accessible to people on

The issue of annexation will also be discussed. "Extending annexation to areas around Chapel Hill will ... add cost to services and raise revenue as far as property tax," Ward said.

In regard to the budget process, further forums are planned for March, April and May.

"I hope people will come to the hearing," Horton said. "It is slow at hearings in March, a lot of residents come Bateman said she doubted the attendance at the meeting would be substantial even though it included the first public level to the standard of lic budget forum. "I don't think we'll have a good turnout," she said. "The weather will put a damper on it,"
