

GPSF Fears Lack of Financial Aid

By JAMILA VERNON
Staff Writer

The Graduate and Professional Student Federation passed several resolutions Tuesday in response to UNC-system President Molly Broad's tuition proposal.

The GPSF supported Broad's proposal for state-funded financial aid while opposing her call for a $200 tuition increase as well as student funding of capital needs.

Broad proposes a $275 increase at all 16 system schools over three years. She also recommends a one-year, $200 tuition increase at UNC-Chapel Hill and N.C. State University to address faculty salary needs. She also called for a $36.8 million state-based financial aid package.

GPSF President Lee Conner said his worry was not the $200 increase in tuition but whether or not the N.C. General Assembly would pass a financial aid program to make up for it. "I worry that we may not get a financial aid program," Conner said. "The financial aid program is not directly set aside."

Conner also said there was no mention of increasing tuition remission for graduate students. "I have no doubt that President Broad would support the increase in tuition remission, but it's not specifically outlined," he said.

Broad's plan states that if the General Assembly does not agree to pass the financial aid program, the proposed tuition increase of $200 would increase to $300, with a third of the boost set aside for financial aid.

But GPSF member Jennifer Burgoon said the plan would only increase the burden on students. "They need a long-term plan that doesn't include increasing our tuition every couple of years," said Burgoon, a third-year graduate student.

The resolution in opposition to capital needs funding concentrates on the unprecedented use of student money to fund academic buildings at state universities. "Students have never paid any sort of fee for buildings," Conner said.

He said this could possibly set a negative trend with the General Assembly. "If you show (the General Assembly) we can pay half, they're not going to want to go back to paying 100 percent," Conner said.

Broad's plan calls for an escalating increase, starting at $200 and then topping off at $275 a year until the year 2020.

"Is it better than the Board of Trustee's proposal? One thousand five hundred is a lot better than $200 as long as you assume $200 is the end of it," Conner said.

The BOT passed a plan in October calling for a $1,500 increase for all UNC students over five years.

The money will be allocated to finance a $750 million construction plan on the 16 UNC campuses. "Twenty percent of that would come to the Chapel Hill campus," Conner said.

McCain, Gore Triumph In Key N.H. Primaries

Associated Press

MANCHESTER, N.H. — Arizona Sen. John McCain scored a landslide victory over George W. Bush on Tuesday in New Hampshire's leadoff primary, puncturing the Texas governor's aura as the inevitable Republican nominee.

Vice President Al Gore survived a toe-to-toe challenge from Bill Bradley in the Democratic duel.

The former New Jersey senator congratulated Gore and told The Associated Press, "We're going to keep moving forward."

With more than half the precincts counted, Gore had 54 percent of the vote, Bradley 46.

It was a typical New Hampshire primary, with voters delivering a lecture to the front-runners and recasting the GOP race as the candidates looked to larger states ahead.

McCain rolled up 49 percent of the GOP vote, Bush 31.

Before heading back to the campaign trail, McCain was savoring his triumph and celebrating his surprising victory margin. He watched returns with his wife, Cindy, who put a trembling hand to her mouth and said, "It really happened."

"We have sent a powerful message to Washington that change is coming,"

McCain told cheering supporters, crediting his agenda of political and campaign finance reform for his victory. "The Republican Party recovered its heritage of reform. And it's the beginning of the end of the truth-twisting politics of Bill Clinton and Al Gore."

The vice president cast his victory as a bad omen for Bradley, who lost the Iowa caucuses to Gore last week by a much wider margin. "If he cannot win here, then that's a devastating blow to him," Gore told reporters. Bradley, however, has enough money to compete with Gore in a coast-to-coast series of primaries March 7.

In returns from 56 percent of New Hampshire's 300 Republican precincts, McCain had 49 percent of the vote compared to 30 for Bush. Millionaire publisher Steve Forbes was a distant third at 13 percent and former Ambassador Alan Keyes was at 6.

Social conservative Gary Bauer barely registered and was struggling to survive. "I'm a fighter, but I'm not delusional," Bauer said. Aides said campaign stops were still on this week's schedule.

Forbes had to be disappointed, too, finishing little better than he did in the 1996 primary, after investing four years and millions of dollars for a second GOP bid.

Nearly four out of every 10 New Hampshire voters do not declare a party affiliation, and they were a potent attraction to insurgent candidates McCain and Bradley in a state that has a history of knocking front-runners offside. Bradley was rocked by last week's landslide loss to Gore in Iowa's caucuses.

Bogue's Mother Charged With Neglect

By GINNY SCIABBARRASI
Assistant City Editor

After several weeks of investigation, the Orange County Sheriff's Department has filed one charge against the mother of Hailey Bogue.

Tara Christie has been charged with one misdemeanor count of neglect, which compels her to appear in Orange County District Court. She will answer questions in front of a judge, rather than face a jury trial. Christie will not face any jail time, nor was she arrested by the sheriff's department, Maj. Don Truelove said.

"We filed the charges we thought we had probable cause to support," he said.

Four-year-old Bogue suffered from extreme hypothermia after she wandered off into the woods near the Orange-Chatham County border on Jan. 17.

She was rescued by a team of searchers Jan. 18 at 10:45 a.m. and was immediately transported to UNC Hospitals.

When she was first admitted to the hospital, Bogue was listed in critical condition, but quickly improved until her release on Jan. 21.

The warrant, which was served on Jan. 31, states that Christie will be in court on Feb. 21 in Hillsborough.

Orange-Chatham District Attorney Carl Fox said Christie had been charged with a criminal violation, but was not required to face a magistrate for a bond or trial date.

"The court date (for Christie) is already on the warrant," Fox said.

Oscar Bogue, Hailey's father, had expressed interest in gaining custody of his child, but was unavailable to be reached for comment.

An unidentified woman who spoke for Oscar said she could not release any information about the case or about Christie.

Hailey was taken into custody of the Chatham County Department of Social Welfare while charges were pending, but social service officials would not confirm whether she was still there.

After repeated attempts by Daily Tar Heel reporters, Christie could not be reached for comment.
