The Baily Tar Heel

North Carolina junior hurler Ryan Snare owns a 6-1 record and has not allowed an earned run in his last two starts. He has struck out 13 batters during that stretch.

Snare Smiles at, Strikes Out Hitters

BY WILL KIMMEY Assistant Sports Editor

Opposing batters might think Ryan Snare is crazy. The North Carolina pitcher routinely smiles at batters while he's on the mound. He laughs at them. He yells at them. Sometimes the lefty even tells them which pitch he's about to throw.

And then the batter often heads back to the dugout as a strikeout victim. "I figure that if I can get in the head of a hitter or an opposing player, I'm that much farther ahead of them, and then I let my ability do the rest," Snare said. "Baseball is a very mental game. If I can get in somebody's head, it's half over from there."

Snare's antics began when he was a Little Leaguer. He didn't have very good eyesight, so he had to squint to see the plate. When he did so, it looked like he was smiling at the batters, which they thought was intimidating. But Snare never realized it until he began playing with some of the guys he had pitched against before. They asked him why he smiled on the mound.

"I said, 'I don't smile.' And one day, I looked in the mirror and did what I do on the mound, and I said, 'God, it does look like I'm smiling.' And I never meant it to,"

Snare said. Snare decided that if smiling was intimidating, then there had to be some other things he could do to get into a batter's

UNC junior Tyrell Godwin said Ryan Snare has the best breaking ball from a left-hander head. Like what he did as he pitched that he's ever seen.

6 2/3 innings of two-hit ball in UNC's 6-0 win against

No. 1 Clemson last Friday. "In the Clemson game, I had two strikes on the hitter, and I walked up to (catcher) Danny (Moylan), and it's not directly to the hitter, but I said to Danny, 'Make sure you block this curve ball up. I want to get this guy out," Snare said. "And I threw him a curve ball for a strike, and the guy didn't swing. He just froze and looked at it."

Snare admitted that he sometimes does things on the field that he should n't, but he said that's how he plays. He eds off other players' emotion. This brash style also leads others to escribe him as cocky. But teammate describe him as cocky. But teammate Tyrell Godwin said that was just Snare's aggressive mentality coming through. "You look at him, and you say this guy, he's a little arrogant, but he's a great pitcher, and he attacks the game," Godwin said. "He attacks hitters when be're at he merund and he screeneer he's on the mound, and he earns respect whenever he's up there."

Snare earned plenty of respect in the preseason. Baseball America selected him as a third-team All-American and named him the ACC's No. 3 professional prospect. Then Snare used what Godwin called "the best breaking ball from a lefty that I've ever seen" and lived up to the hype. At 6-1, he's tied for the team lead in wins. And he hasn't allowed an earned run in his last two starts, picking up victo-ries against conference foes N.C. State and Clemson. He registered 13 strikeouts in 13 2/3 innings of work over that stretch. "Coming into conference games that are big armse to up was proor up aged are big games to us, we know we need somebody to step up and be competi-tive," UNC outfielder Ryan Matthews said. "We know we can count on him to do that for us.'

Virginia, which won its first NCAA championship since 1972 last season and returns the core of that team, is riding a six-game winning streak. The second-ranked Cavaliers have

And Snare loves pitching in the big games. He said he'd give anything to be in a scoreless game in the bottom of the ninth and said pitching with a big lead just made him bored.

"It goes back to the thing about being confident and a little bit cocky," Snare said. "I do better in big games." Snare will get his wish today at 3 p.m. when he takes the hill in Winston-Salem. He will lead the Tar Heels (28-6, 4-5 in the ACC) against Wake Forest (25-9-1, 8-4) as the squads kick off a three-game set at Hooks Stadium.

The series is a crucial one for UNC, which needs to win at least two games to pull its league record up to .500 and keep the team in the running for the conference crown. Knowing these implications, Snare should be raring to go.

"The better the guy is, the more he goes at that particular player," Godwin said. "That's not how baseball is taught - you're taught to be smart and kind of be safe - but it's effective."

So call Snare cocky. Call him crazy But make sure to call him to the mound in a big game.

New-Look Tar Heels Set for Scrimmage

North Carolina will hold the annual Blue-White football scrimmage at 3:30 p.m. Saturday at Kenan Stadium.

From Staff Reports

Out with basketball season, in with football. For a day at least. North Carolina's football team will hold its annual Blue-White scrimmage at 3:30 p.m. on Saturday at Kenan UNC son's 3-8 finish, the team is hoping changes among the coaching staff and improved health will trigger a turnaround.

New offensive coordinator Mike O'Cain takes the helm of a Tar Heel offense that has been limited by spring absences

Quarterback Ronald Curry, who missed the team's last five games in 1999 after rupturing his Achilles tendon, has been working out with the team but will not participate.

Sophomore Luke Huard and senior Antwon Black have been taking the majority of the snaps in Curry's place. Sophomore Richard Moore, who was moved from linebacker, has also been under center during the spring.

The backfield situation is even more unsettled. Redshirt freshman Willie Parker, the only scholarship tailback at practice, has impressed. Walk-on Michael Harris is also taking snaps at Walk-on running back. Tailbacks Daniel Davis (academics), Rufus Brown (injuries) and Domonique Williams (academics) have missed all of spring practice.

official depth chart has been released. Admission to the Spring Game is free, although spectators are encouraged to bring canned goods to support the North Carolina Food Bank. Kenan Stadium Gates 2, 5, 6 and 7 open at 2:30 p.m. Athletes and coaches will be available after the hourlong scrimmage for autographs, as will former UNC standouts who are current and former NFL players. Saturday's game will also feature a 1 halftime contest for UNC students UNC sophomore Richard Moore with Tar Heel has switched alumnus and to quarterback from linebacker ESPN anchor Stuart Scott. during the spring Male students can participate in snapping and punting contests, and females will have throwing and kicking contests

All interested students must call the Carolina Football Office at 966-2575. Softball to Host Weekend Tourney

The UNC softball team, 33-13 on the eason, will host its annual Tar Heel Invitational Tournament this weekend at Finley Field.

Games in the round-robin event are scheduled for 10 a.m., noon, 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday. There is no charge for admission. Besides the Tar Heels, the field include Effect of the field includes Florida International, Radford and Virginia. UNC took a two-game series from Virginia last weekend in Charlottesville, Va., to open the ACC season 2-0. The Tar Heels swept a doubleheader from Radford in February.

Men's Lacrosse to Take On UVa.

The 10th-ranked North Carolina men's lacrosse team will host ACC rival Virginia at Fetzer Field on Saturday at 2 p.m

Coach Dave Klarmann's Tar Heels need a win to improve their NCAA playoff hopes and to stop a three-game losing skid which has dropped UNC to 6-3 on the season. The last two Tar Heel matches have not lost since dropping their season opener to top-ranked and unbeaten been nail-biters as UNC lost at home to Maryland 10-9 and at Johns Hopkins

UNC redshirt freshman Willie Parker, shown here running in fall practice last year, is the only scholarship tailback competing during the spring.

Syracuse 13-12 in overtime in Charlottesville, Va. After meeting UVa. on Saturday, UNC will tangle with Maryland-Baltimore County on April 15 at Fetzer Field at 3 p.m. That time is a change from the originally scheduled 2 p.m. start.
