Ever wonder what the University will look like 50 years from now when most of us will be combing gray hairs? Today, the DTH Graphics Desk presents a sneak peek into campus life as predicted by the students of today. Welcome to the future.

TOM'S TAVERN

"I hope there are bars in the classrooms."
Tom Scheinbach, Northport, N.Y.

GAME TIME

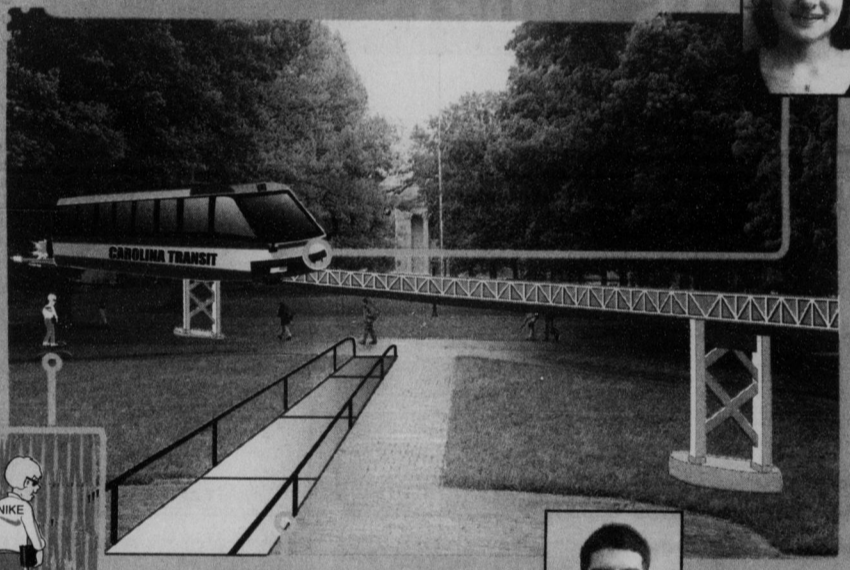

"There will be a flying metro system from south campus to north campus."
Britt Lake, Miami, Fla.

E-LECTURE

"Virtual professors - holograms will teach classes."
Lisi Whitted, Hendersonville

QUAD COMMUTE

"Nike will make the uniforms UNC students are required to wear as part of the 2003 Freshman Uniform Initiative."
Fred Stutzman, Albany, N.Y.

"Instead of walking to class, we will hop on a giant conveyor belt and be whisked away to our Biology 11 classes."
Matt Jacobs, Mt. Airy

PIT LIFE

"We will have a fully robotic, rust-proof pit preacher who can go on infinitely without making a valid point or shutting up."
Brad Matthews, Boise, Idaho

Other Thoughts On the Future:

"Hopefully, more parking."
Karen Spencer, Rocky Mount

"Instead of using regular overheads, professors will be using virtual reality glasses so you can get a better sense of things."
Brandon Sessoms, Rhoskie

"Grade inflation will be combated by giant robot ants."
Dane Ferrell, Charlotte

"A CAA-sponsored plot will be uncovered that would have rich alumni kidnapped for their basketball seats."
Tee Pruitt, Charlotte

THE BAR SCENE

"There will not be bartenders in the future, only robots to serve us. That way, everyone can drink!"
Cindy Kold, Mooresville
