time, it can be something special." Meanwhile, the defense forced

Georgia Tech into missing 15-of-16 from the field during that stretch. UNC made scoring difficult for Tech all day, holding it to 35 percent from the field, the seventh time in the last nine games it has kept an opponent under 40 percent.

And the Tar Heels were ready after all those Yellow Jacket misses, out-rebounding their opponent for the seventh consecutive game. "They're pretty good in terms of keeping you to one shot and out,"

Georgia Tech coach Paul Hewitt said. But the scrappy Yellow Jackets didn't just buzz off, even after UNC took a 44-29 advantage into the half. Georgia Tech whittled the lead to 11 points four times after intermission by trapping and pressing the Tar Heels in the back court. They goaded Ronald Curry into a charge -- his fifth foul -- and then used a 9-2 spurt to trim them margin to eight points at 70-62 with 4:30 to go. The Tar Heels looked ripe for an upset without their point man. But Boone handled the pressure, making a jumper with the shot clock at one second and sinking two free throws down the stretch.

"They came back, but we weren't really stressed about it," Haywood said. "We've been in worse situations and won. "We knew what we had to do, and we were able to pull it out."
