Autrey's Shutout Keeps Tar Heels From Being Swept

Sophomore Scott Autrey struck out six batters in his complete-game victory to move to 2-3 on the season.

As many records as she set while donning a Carolina-blue jersey, Hamm was determined to make history for the WUSA. When a foul was called during injury time, Freedom defender Jennifer Grubb, who normally shares the duties of taking free kicks with Hamm, looked at her and said, "Good luck."

goals that they're after."

Twenty players obviously couldn't fill a league, causing the WUSA to hold drafts such as the Foreign Player Allocation Draft, a Global Draft and a Supplemental Draft, during which international stars such as Brazil's Roseli joined the league.

In considering the potential markets for hosting the initial teams, the group focused on cities that would provide a substantial cable television distribution.

The league received a tremendous response from cities wishing to host a WUSA team. Initially, the league narrowed its choices to a "Sweet 16" list of markets before announcing that its first eight WUSA teams would be in Atlanta, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Orlando-Tampa, San Diego, the San Francisco bay area and Washington. The Orlando-Tampa team was later relocated to the Raleigh-Durham area.

Six months later it was announced that the teams would be the Atlanta Beat, Bay Area CyberRays, Boston Breakers, Carolina Courage, New York Power, Philadelphia Charge, San Diego Spirit and Washington Freedom.

The eight teams comprised one division with each team playing a 21-game schedule. At the end of the season, the top four teams advance to the playoffs.

Being swarmed by teammates in white jerseys to celebrate victory on Fetzer Field was a feeling Hamm knew well. But celebrating as a professional? That's something Hamm said she couldn't even fathom during her years as a Tar Heel.

And although the field looked different, with additional seats and Carolina Courage logos splashed all over the stands, Hamm was glad to be home.

"It's amazing to see Fetzer dressed up like this," Hamm said. "It fills you with all different types of emotions. On the way here, we were telling the bus driver which way to go, which was the short-est way. We all feel like our time here was one of the most special times you could ever ask for."

The WUSA Championship Classic will be played August 25.
Although it will cost about $40 million to fund the league during its first five years of operations, now yo can dream about a career that Hamm never imagined while in college.

'We weren't even in the Olympics were only barely able to create a World Cup for ourselves, so a professional game was so far away," Hamm said. "It wasn't even a thought in my mind at that point.'

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - In an ACC/SASA doubleheader battle at the Maryland's North Softball Complex, North Carolina downed the Terrapins 2-0 and 1-0. The Tar Heels (34-17-1 overall, 6-2 ACC/SASA) gained advantages that they would not relinquish in both contests to pick up the pair of victories.

The key for the Freedom was in Hamm's willing hands. With 30 minutes left in the game, Gabarra moved Hamm center midfield where she set up Pretinha's diving-header in the 82nd minute to tie the score. Then, with injury time seconds ticking away, Hamm drew a foul and set up the free kick.

"I just look at the panel on the ball and try to make good contact," Hamm said. "You try to make it as simple as possible." Simple enough for Hamm, anyway. She nailed the ball low to the ground in the far left corner of the goal to win the game and become the first U.S.-born player to score in the WUSA.

"I wanted to find a way to put her in a position where she would get more of the ball," Gabarra said. "To me it makes a lot of sense that Mia scored the first goal for an American."
