

This Week in Tar Heel History ...

16 Years Ago

■ This week in 1985, Hillsborough youth Maxwell Avery Wright led police to the body of UNC graduate student Sharon Lynn Stewart. Wright was charged with first-degree murder, kidnapping and robbery in the case.

22 Years Ago

■ This week in 1979, the town of Chapel Hill officially purchased the Franklin St. Post Office building from the U.S. Postal Service. The structure was built in 1937 as part of Franklin Roosevelt's public-works program.

57 Years Ago

■ This week in 1944, 17-year-old Laurence Rivken graduated Phi Beta Kappa during a wartime commencement ceremony held in Forest Theatre. Women outnumbered the men 3-1 in the group of 66 seniors.

The University and Towns
IN BRIEF

UNC Annual Concert To Cover Many Genres

Faculty members and students from the UNC Department of Music will perform pieces from a wide variety of genres at the 10th annual Spectrum Concert on Sept. 14.

The concert, at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall, will be part of Carolina Family Weekend, an annual celebration that allows students' families to visit campus and attend athletic and cultural events.

The Spectrum Concert will include performances by UNC's wind ensemble, jazz band, chamber singers, men's and women's glee clubs and percussion ensemble.

Faculty soloists and student chamber ensembles also will be featured. Tickets are $5 from the Carolina Parents Office or at the door.

For more information, call the parents office at 962-8304.

Distinguished Professor Writes His Memoirs

UNC English Professor Emeritus Louis D. Rubin Jr. recalls his colorful past as a newspaper reporter and publisher in his new book.

"An Honorable Estate: My Time in the Working Press," covers Rubin's time as a reporter and editor in the 1940s and 1950s, as he worked for various newspapers and The Associated Press.

In 1967, Rubin became a UNC English professor, and he stayed in that position until 1989.

Rubin also founded Algonquin Books of Chapel Hill in 1982. The publishing house national and international awards for its work with young Southern authors.

Conference to Honor
State's Nature Writing

"Lawson's Legacy: Nature Writing and North Carolina, 1701-2001," a conference sponsored by the North Carolina Collection of UNC and the North Carolinian Society Inc., will celebrate North Carolina's long history of nature writing.

The Sept. 7-8 event in Wilson Library will focus on the 300th anniversary of Englishman John Lawson's travels throughout the state's backcountry.

He recorded his 550-mile journey in a detailed journal, which was published as a "New Voyage to Carolina" in 1709.

The book, the first substantial attempt to describe the New World's natural history, also includes a written history of North Carolina's natural life.

The conference also will feature the works of contemporary North Carolina nature and outdoor writers, including Bland Simpson, Phillip Manning and David Cecelski.

UNC to Host Forum On Development Plan

UNC will host a forum on the University Development Plan submitted to the town of Chapel Hill in July.

During the forum the plan will be presented and University officials will receive feedback on it.

The forum will be held from 5:30 to 7 p.m. on Sept. 10 in 111 Carroll Hall.

It is open to the general public and is sponsored by the Faculty Council, the Employee Forum and UNC's student government. The Chapel Hill Town Council will hold its public hearing on the plan on Sept. 19 and vote on the plan on Oct. 1.

The development plan is available at <http://www.fac.unc.edu/DevelopmentPlan>.

UNC Joins European Union Network Again

UNC has been selected again by the European Union to be part of a nationwide network designed to advance understanding of social, political and economic events in contemporary Europe.

The University's European Union Center was founded in 1998 as part of the Center for European Studies, to bring together scholars, policy-makers and business executives from the United States and abroad to exchange ideas about politics, markets and policy in Europe.

UNC's European Union Center is one of only eight programs nationwide that were selected for renewed funding and membership in the network.

Agency Receives Grant To Help At-Risk Youth

Volunteers for Youth, a nonprofit United Way agency that aims to curb juvenile delinquency, has received a $10,000 grant from the Cisco Foundation.

The grant will be used for a career preparation program that teaches job skills, budgeting and financial management to local teenagers.

The agency's Juvenile Community Services Program will use the grant to expand its training program for juveniles who have to complete community service by court order.

Previously, the program only included a Saturday morning job skills training session. With the grant, Volunteers for Youth will be able to include field trips, job shadowing and hands-on activities for its participants.

Volunteers for Youth is also looking for mentors to work with at-risk youth in Orange County. Currently, more than 80 young people are waiting to be paired with an adult mentor. Volunteers must commit four hours per week for one year and attend a compulsory training session.

The next volunteer training session will be held from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Sept. 25 and 26 at Volunteers for Youth's office in Carrboro. Call Eileen Hannan at 967-4511 for more information.

Local Center To Offer Programs For Women

The Women's Center, a Chapel Hill-based group located at 210 Henderson St., is sponsoring several programs in line with its mission of helping women in the area achieve their personal and professional goals.

The center is offering a Managing Stress and Worry seminar from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Oct. 8 that will suggest strategies to cope with and reduce stress.

The cost is $10 for members and $16 for nonmembers.

Also, to ease the transition of relocating to the area, the center is offering a Women in Transition group session. The four sessions will explore ways to manage life changes.

The cost is $45 for members and $72 for nonmembers.

The Women's Center also is sponsoring a speech by Barnsley Brown on creating the career you love.

The cost is $10 for members and $13 for nonmembers.

For more information, to become a member or to enroll in a program call 968-4610.

Youth Soccer Program
In Need of Volunteers

Rainbow Soccer, a league for participants from three years of age to adults, needs volunteers to coach all age groups.

Coaches must be able to commit four to five hours per week, with two weekday afternoon practices and a Saturday game.

Practices start Sept. 4. For more information or to sign up, contact Alice Craft at 967-8797.

Family Violence Center
Seeks Aid for Programs

The Family Violence Prevention Center of Orange County is looking for volunteers to work as crisis line advocates, court advocates, community educators and childcare providers.

The center, a nonprofit agency, provides support, information and advocacy to victims of domestic violence and their family and friends.

Volunteer training will be held in September.

The center also offers domestic violence support groups for women who are currently in or who have been in an abusive relationship. Groups are held weekly at lunch or in the evening.

For more information contact Jenn Barr at 929-3872.

The Daily Tar Heel Seeks
New Staff for All Desks

Staff Report

Here's the chance to work behind the scenes of one of the best-read college newspapers in the nation.

The Daily Tar Heel is looking to hire new staff this fall, and the application process has begun.

The DTH is hiring writers, photographers, graphic artists, designers and cartoonists. No experience is necessary to apply.

Interested students are urged to attend one of two interest meeting this Tuesday and Wednesday. Both will take place at 7:30 p.m. in Gardner 105. Please note that this is a change from the originally publicized interest meeting location and time.

Stop by and meet an editor from each of the 13 desks that are hiring for the fall. They will be there to offer information about the requirements of a DTH staff member and to answer any questions about the desks and the application process.

Editors will be present after the meeting to answer individual questions.

Staff applications are now available and can be picked up at the interest meeting. Extra applications are located at the DTH front office, which is located in Suite 104 in the back of the Student Union.

They also can be found every day in the Pit from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

If writing is not your strength but the mission, improvement and production of the DTH intrigues you, the paper has a spot for you, too.

The DTH also is seeking students who are interested in being on the Student Feedback Board. SFB is a small, informal group that comes together four times during each semester with a DTH editor for a discussion about the paper's coverage.

A separate application is available for the SFB at the same locations as the staff applications.

Both the staff and SFB applications are due to the DTH front office by noon Friday, Sept. 7.

If you have any questions, please contact DTH Editor Katie Hunter at 962-4086.

R&B Singer Aaliyah, 8 Others, Killed in Crash

The Associated Press

MARSH HARBOUR, Bahamas — Investigators waded through smoldering Bahamian swampland on Sunday, carting off sand-covered luggage and hunting for an explanation for the plane crash that killed young R&B star Aaliyah and eight others.

The Cessna carrying Aaliyah and her party plummeted to earth in perfect weather Saturday afternoon soon after takeoff for Florida.

A day later, investigators had few answers about what could have caused the crash. Police Superintendent Basil Rahming said only that one of the Cessna's engines "apparently failed."

Aaliyah, who at age 22 already had a Grammy nomination, a platinum album and several high-profile acting credits under her belt, was killed instantly. Five others on board also died at the scene, while three more died later of their injuries, Rahming said.

A New York City native and Detroit resident, Aaliyah had deep roots in the R&B community. Saturday's crash left fans, friends and collaborators in mourning.

"She was like one of my daughters, she was one of the sweetest girls in the world," said Grammy-winning producer, arranger and composer Quincy Jones. "I loved her and respected her and I am absolutely devastated."

Aaliyah and the others in her party had come to the Bahamas to shoot a music video, authorities said. Their plane was bound for Opa-locka, Fla., in perfect weather when it went down on Abaco Island, roughly 200 feet from the end of the runway at Marsh Harbour airport.

On Sunday, the Cessna's nose section was lying about 20 yards from the rest of the battered fuselage, and luggage and pieces of the plane were scattered about.

Rahming said the other passengers killed were Scott Gallian, 41; Keith Wallace, 49, of Los Angeles; Douglas Kratz, 28, a representative for Virgin Records, and makeup artist Eric Foreman, 29, both of Hollywood, Calif.; Gina Smith, 29, also of Hollywood; Anthony Dodd, 34, of Los Angeles; and Christopher Maldonado, 32, of New Jersey. The plane's pilot, identified only as L. Maradel, also died.

Whose side are you on anyway??

For the Record

In the Aug. 24 Football Tab, Ralph Friedgen was incorrectly pictured as former Maryland coach Ron Vanderlinden.

In the Aug. 24 article "Departments' Resources, Classes Scarce," the number of psychology majors was incorrectly listed as 415. The correct number is 1,450.
