

Anti-Abortion Convict Captured

The Associated Press

SPRINGDALE, Ohio - An escaped convict suspected of mailing hundreds of anthrax hoax letters to abortion clinics was captured Wednesday at a copy shop outside Cincinnati after an employee recognized him from his wanted poster.

Clayton Lee Wagner - who once testified that God told him to kill abortion doctors - was one of the FBI's 10 most-wanted fugitives.

He had been on the run since February, when he escaped from a jail in Clinton, Ill., while awaiting sentencing for weapons offenses and auto theft.

Federal marshals had distributed a wanted poster to Kinko's stores after learning Wagner was using the stores' computers to log on to anti-abortion Web sites and check e-mail.

He was arrested with $10,000 cash in his pocket, computer components and a loaded handgun in his waistband, officials said.

Attorney General John Ashcroft has called Wagner the primary suspect behind anthrax hoaxes committed against 280 clinics last month. The clinics received envelopes containing white powder and letters signed by the "Army of God." The powder was not anthrax.

Wagner, 45, claimed responsibility for the letters when he showed up with a gun at the Georgia home of an anti-abortion activist last week, according to authorities.

The FBI had offered a reward of $50,000 for information leading to his arrest.

Wagner was arrested after the Kinko's employee recognized him and called authorities, said Bob Burnham, agent in charge of the FBI's Cincinnati office. "We've taken the hard drive from that computer. That's part of the investigation," Burnham said.

Police Stop Senior for 4 Outstanding Warrants, Make 2 Additional Charges

By JESSICA SLEEP
Staff Writer

University police detained a UNC student Tuesday on four outstanding warrants and charged him with two additional offenses.

Police reports state that senior economics major Bailey Ayscue, 25, of 1016-F Kingswood Drive was detained by police after he was pulled over in his 2001 silver Mitsubishi Eclipse while driving on Country Club Road.

Reports state that the arresting officer pulled over Ayscue because his car matched the description of a car belonging to a man who had four outstanding warrants in Durham.

The four outstanding warrants are all misdemeanor charges filed Nov. 29. The charges are breaking and entering, assault on a female, stalking, and injury to real property. UNC police had no further information as of Wednesday.

Once the police officer positively identified Ayscue, he was taken into police custody at 1:28 a.m., reports state.

After detaining Ayscue, reports state that the arresting officer gave Ayscue a field sobriety test at the police department. He was then charged with driving while intoxicated, reports state. Police also charged him with driving with a revoked license. Police arrested Ayscue after they detained him, University police Maj. Jeff McCracken said. "We picked the warrants up from Durham, we served them (to Ayscue), and we placed him under arrest," he said.

McCracken said that after Ayscue was served the warrants, University police brought him before a magistrate, who released him on a written promise to appear in court. Ayscue's trial is scheduled for Jan. 15 in Durham.

McCracken said he did not know whether Ayscue was aware there were warrants for his arrest. He said Durham police do not have jurisdiction in Chapel Hill. Because Ayscue lives in Chapel Hill, Durham police cannot arrest him unless he returns to Durham, but Chapel Hill police could detain him until Durham police arrived.

McCracken said he is not sure of the maximum penalties Ayscue could face for the charges. McCracken said Ayscue will appear in Orange County District Court for the DWI charge and in Durham for the warrants.

Peppers Snags Lombardi; 1st Tar Heel to Win Honor

Staff Report

HOUSTON - North Carolina defensive end Julius Peppers was named the winner of the 2001 Rotary Lombardi Award at a gala dinner at the JW Marriott Hotel in Houston on Wednesday evening. He is the first Tar Heel ever to win a major award in football.

Peppers was selected over fellow finalists Florida's Alex Brown, Oklahoma's Rocky Calmus, Syracuse's Freney in a final round of voting.

"I don't think anyone expected me to win," Peppers said. "It feels great. It's a great honor. I'm still kind of in shock. I knew I had a chance to win it, but I didn't think I would."

Peppers, who piled up 15 sacks as a sophomore, ran his career total to 30 1/2. Peppers intercepted three passes this season, the most by a lineman in school history and returned one for a touchdown.

The Lombardi winner is presented to the college lineman who, in addition to outstanding performance on the field, best exemplifies the characteristics and discipline of Vince Lombardi.

Curious about a career in consulting?

The Kenan-Flagler Business School invites students of all majors to apply to participate in Undergraduate Consulting Day. Sponsored by Accenture. Friday, Jan 25, 2002 9am-3pm, McColl Building. This program will allow students to spend the day with consultants from around the country and learn about career options in this field. This is great preparation for JUNIORS who are looking for internships and who will participate in on campus recruiting next fall. For more information and applications go to our website at <http://intranet.kenanflagler.unc.edu/events/consultingday/index.html>.
