

Stadium impresses Former Champions

Officials hope to lure more games to facility

By RANDY WELLINGTON
Staff Writer

CARY — The North Carolina men's soccer team tied Connecticut 2-2 Saturday in a game of top-ranked teams. Appropriately, the venue for the game was just as marquee as the matchup.

Played at SAS Stadium in Cary with 2,005 in attendance, the game was an exhibition between the last two national champions. The "Clash of the Champions" is a game that Geoff Griffin, chairman of the board of the Capital Area Soccer League, hopes to make a tradition.

UNC coach Elmar Bolowich said more exhibitions like Saturday's match will help promote soccer.

But he won't stop there. "We want to bring in as many events as we can, local, regional and national," he said.

Construction for SAS began in April 2001 and finished a year later. Since then, the men's and women's U.S. National Teams have practiced at the facility, and the Carolina Courage, 2002 WUSA champions, play their home games there.

This year, the men's ACC tournament will be held at SAS, which seats 7,000. It also will host the women's final four in 2003 and 2004.

The creation of the stadium stems from an annual Capital Area League tournament of over 300 boys' teams held in Cary. Since the tournament brought in more than $10 million each year to the community of Cary, Wake County officials approved the creation of the SAS.

One of Griffin's goals for the stadium is preocious. "We want to have the UNC men's and women's soccer teams playing here," he said.

Though Fetzer Field, which holds 5,000, is UNC's home, the team's review of the event was encouraging.

Coach Elmar Bolowich thinks the Clash will be good for men's soccer.

"The idea, the concept is wonderful," he said. "They need to do something in college soccer to promote our sport, and that's one way of promoting it."

Ryan Kneipper, who scored UNC's first goal, gave SAS his stamp of approval. "I would say it's one of the best facilities I've played at in the country," he said.

The bleachers are close to, and surround, the SAS field. In addition, the complex has six full-length, manicured fields.

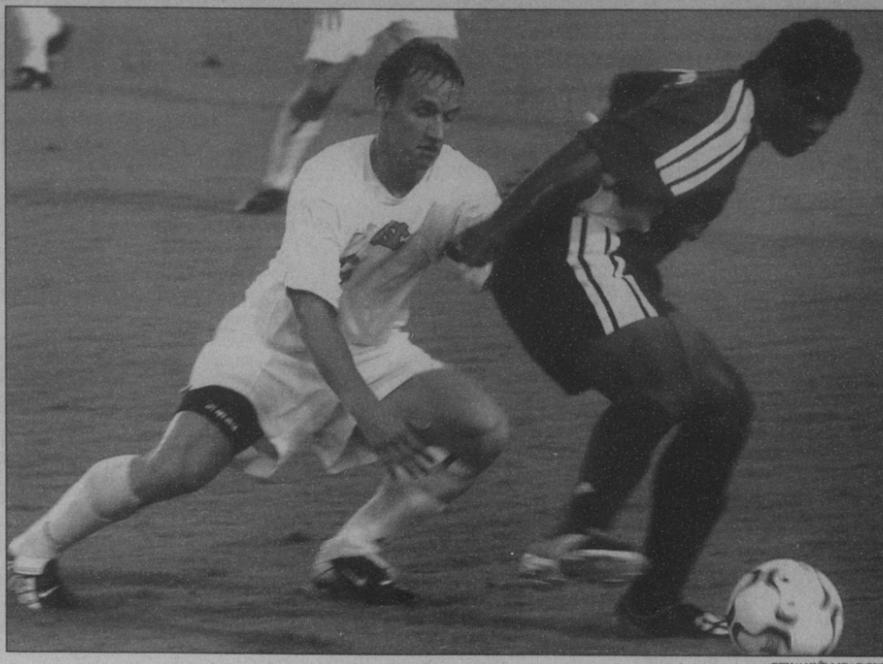

In comparison, Fetzer Field is surrounded by a track and has a single grandstand on one side of the field. It has one distinct advantage — it's on campus.

For now, the UNC games will remain there, but the team will return to SAS next year for the second Clash.

Although Griffin was cryptic in explaining how the exhibition will continue if UNC is to repeat as national champion, Bolowich said that's not a problem that worries him.

"It's great," Bolowich said. "We have the facility here; fortunately, we are close by as national champions. I don't know if that's going to continue. I hope it will."

MEN'S SOCCER

Referee Roger Morton whistled UNC defender Tim Merritt for a handball inside the box at 44:47, setting up a UConn penalty kick. Cesar Cuellar stepped to the penalty spot and sent a blast into the lower right corner of the net to tie the game, 1-1.

"(The handball) is just unfortunate," said co-captain Logan Pause.

"It shows our lack of concentration after we score goals with two minutes left in the game. We got punished for lightening up."

The score remained 1-1 until 54:21 of the second half, when it appeared UConn's Lindon Pecorelli took a dive just outside the box, but McGinty was called for the foul.

Again it was Cuellar who stepped over the dead ball.

And again he sent a rocket towards the far post and into the upper corner of the net, past the outstretched Batt to give UConn the lead, 2-1.

Similar to the first half, UNC had several chances throughout the second to tie the score, but could not convert.

Also similar to the first half, the Tar Heels found the back of the net with little time left in the match.

With 5:34 remaining, Mike Gell struck a shot from 18 yards away that caromed off a UConn defender and straight into the net to tie the game, 2-2.

And that's how it would end.

Although pleased with the outcome, Bolowich pointed out where the Tar Heels have room for improvement.

"You know in the end, our defense still has to solidify itself," he said. "We still have keep the shutouts, we still have to make sure that we don't allow goals. We cannot put that pressure on the offense all the time."

BASEBALL

mature pitchers in the FSL. Greenberg has made his share of changes, especially after his call-up to the FSL's Daytona Cubs. The center fielder, who was the Chicago Cubs' ninth-round pick, started in the low Class-A Midwest League with the Lansing Lugnuts, where he hit .224 in 116 at-bats.

"I'm getting away from the dip-and-jack mode," said Greenberg, whom the Cubs want to be more of a prototypical leadoff hitter.

His work, at least lately, has paid off. A day after working one-on-one with Cubs roving instructor and former big leaguer John Cangelosi, Greenberg hit for the cycle, going 5-for-6 against the St. Lucie Mets on Aug. 17.

But as Greenberg said, "it's not a sprint, it's a marathon." Adams and Maples said that barring a baseball strike, they will attend instructional league following the season.

Greenberg said the Cubs aren't inviting first-year players to the instructional league, so he'll work out and teach clinics in the off-season to stay in shape.

And once spring rolls around, Greenberg and his former teammates will all be back at it once again, enduring the nightmarish travel schedules, the small towns and minuscule meal allowances.

"It's just been a really good experience," Adams said.

"There are long bus rides, and it's hot, but it's been fun."
