

Tar Heels blank Terrapins

Pitching, hitting prowess propel UNC

FROM STAFF REPORTS

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The North Carolina baseball team defeated Maryland 4-0 Sunday at Shipley Field.

With the shutout, the Tar Heels (26-11, 7-5 in the ACC) completed their first ACC sweep since taking all three from Duke last season.

Garry Bakker (5-2) came within one out of recording UNC's second complete game of the weekend, but Whitley Benson recorded the final out in the ninth. Bakker went 8 2/3 innings and scattered six hits while striking out five and walking none.

The teams remained scoreless until the top of the fourth inning when UNC mounted a two-out rally against the Terps (11-21, 0-11). Sammy Hewitt continued his hot weekend by hitting a single to right field and then coming around to score on an RBI double by Chris Iannetta. Mike Daniel followed with an RBI single that brought home Iannetta and gave the Tar Heels a 2-0 lead, which would be more than enough for Bakker.

The Tar Heels swept a doubleheader against Maryland on Saturday by scores of 9-2 and 15-2. Hewitt went 4 for 5 with a home run and four RBI and Daniel Moore pitched a complete game in the first contest.

Freshman Adam Kalkhof struck out eight in seven innings, and Jeremy Cleveland went 4 for 4 with two home runs and five RBI in the second game.

Tigers upset women's tennis

CLEMSON, S.C. — No. 17 Clemson upset the No. 12 North Carolina women's tennis team Sunday by a final score of 4-3. The Tar Heels (15-7, 6-2 in the ACC) won the doubles point, but lost four out of six singles matches.

UNC doubles pair Kendall Cline and Aniela Mojzis defeated Clemson's Julie Coin and Laurence Jayet by a score of 8-3. UNC's Kendrick Bunn and Kate Pinchbeck beat Anna Dolinska and Richele LeSaldo, 8-6, to clinch the doubles point.

In singles action, only Cline and Bunn walked away with victories. At No. 4 singles, Cline beat Ioana Pann, while Bunn defeated Ana Stiglic at No. 6 singles.

Late surge propels UMBC

CATONSVILLE, Md. — No. 17 Maryland-Baltimore County outscored the No. 8 North Carolina men's lacrosse team 6-4 in the second half Saturday to beat the Tar Heels 10-6 before 2,360 fans at UMBC Stadium.

UMBC senior midfielder Adam Shiley tied his career best with three goals, senior attackman Josh Gerber gave the Retrievers the lead for good with a pair of goals early in the fourth quarter.

Senior netminder Tim Flanagan was solid, repelling 19 Tar Heel shots.

Shiley led the Retrievers with 3 goals and 1 assist, while Gerber, Phil Grillo and Franklin Berry had two goals each for UMBC, and Joey Kestermann added a goal and an assist.

UNC sophomore attackman Mike McCall led his squad with 2 goals and 2 assists, while Jed Prossner had a pair of goals for the Tar Heels (5-5).

UNC slides past Vanderbilt

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The North Carolina women's lacrosse team, ranked No. 12 in the nation in this week's IWFLCA poll, held on for a 12-11 win at No. 17 Vanderbilt on Saturday.

UNC (5-7) was led once again by leading scorer Beth Ames, who had four goals in the victory.

The match started off slow for the Commodores. A strong effort by the UNC offense propelled the Tar Heels to a 4-0 lead in just under nine minutes of play. But UNC also had help from the Commodores, as numerous fouls led to numerous free position shots and subsequent Tar Heel goals.

Vanderbilt rallied together for an impressive comeback to even out the score with six minutes to go in the first period.

But during the second period, UNC increased its lead by four goals and never allowed Vanderbilt to make a full comeback. Though the Commodores came fairly close to evening the score, UNC ran out the time remaining.

UNC sweeps UVa. in ACC twin bill

BY PARKER MELVIN

North Carolina found itself in the middle of a love-hate relationship with Virginia pitcher Erin Horn during game two of Sunday's doubleheader.

Despite being limited to just five hits in 10 innings, the Tar Heels benefited from two wild pitches and an error by Horn, which resulted in all of the Tar Heel runs in their 3-2 victory.

Two of those mistakes came on the final play of the game. With UNC's Emily Porter on second and pinch-runner Tiffany Stewart on third, Horn (12-9) threw an errant pitch to the backstop. As Stewart reached home to tie the game, Virginia catcher Jenn Wynn's throw escaped Horn at the plate and began rolling slowly down the first-base line.

Three Virginia players chased the ball as UNC's winning run sprinted down the home stretch. Porter crossed the plate standing up to seal the victory for North Carolina (30-16, 2-2 in the ACC).

In the contest, the Tar Heels faced the challenge of maintaining the offensive tempo of game one, which ended early due to the eight-run mercy rule. UNC won 10-2 in six innings.

"We were on an emotional high," said UNC's Jaelyn Holden, who played despite a nagging shoulder injury.

In game one, the Tar Heel offense steadily pounded UVa. pitching from the first batter to the last. It was in stark contrast to the doubleheader with Florida State nearly a week before in which UNC failed to score in either game. The Tar Heels amassed three home runs and 14 hits en route to the blowout on Sunday.

Holden led the team, going 3 for 4 with a home run and 3 RBI, while junior Emily Price tallied three hits as well.

The majority of the Tar Heel scoring was the result of clutch hitting — eight of their 10 runs came with two outs.

Virginia (26-19, 1-3), on the other hand, struggled to score its baserunners, stranding eight over the course of the first game.

The Cavaliers' only scoring came on a Christina Grimm two-run homer in the fourth.

Cox (18-8) pitched a complete game in the first contest — and still threw three innings in game two to pick up both wins of the afternoon.

"I knew I just had to get the job done," Cox said. "I had 100-percent confidence that my offense would come through."

UNC coach Donna Papa was pleased that the Tar Heels came out with more fire than they showed against FSU last Saturday.

Said Papa, "These were two very inspired wins."

UNC crew posts 3 top-10 finishes

STAFF REPORT

CHERRY HILLS, N.J. — The North Carolina women's rowing team registered three top-10 finishes in fields of 30 or more crews at the Knecht Cup, held Saturday and Sunday on the Cooper River. UNC's novice four was seventh of 41 teams, the novice eight was seventh of 38 and the varsity eight was ninth of 30.

With a time of 8 minutes, 29.61 seconds on Saturday, the UNC novice four advanced to the semifinals, in which the Tar Heels took third in 8:29.16. The third-place finish put UNC in Sunday's petite final, for seventh through 12th places. The Tar Heels took seventh overall.

North Carolina's novice eight also advanced to the semifinal, in which the Tar Heels took fourth with a time of 7:28.03. In Sunday's petite final, UNC was first with a time of 7:31.8 to claim another seventh-place finish.

The varsity eight took third in its heat and third in its semifinal on Saturday to earn a spot in Sunday's petite final. In that race, the Tar Heels again took third, finishing in 7:07.4. Buffalo won the race in 7:04.1 and Rhode Island was second in 7:06.4. North Carolina placed ninth overall in the field.

The second varsity eight finished sixth in its Saturday heat and failed to advance to the semifinals.

Next up for the Tar Heels is the ACC Championships on Saturday in Charlottesville, Va.

AGAINST GLOBALIZATION? MAYBE YOU'RE WRONG.

"What we are witnessing is a systematic assault on civilization. Protectionism and nationalism have become dominant themes of leftist and rightist political parties. Anti-globalization activists recently trashed the beautiful city of Genoa, attacked people with gasoline bombs and steel bars, and destroyed cars, plate-glass windows, buildings, and much more. Theirs is a message of violence, hatred, narrow-minded nationalism, and elitism. They're already rich, so why allow others in poor countries to prosper as well?"

What motivates extraordinarily wealthy people to attack the very system of free trade that has made possible the highest standards of living, the longest life spans, and greatest social mobility and equality ever seen on the planet? They are motivated by bad ideas and by a complete lack of understanding of the economics, history, and philosophy of property and free exchange."
