Most of the completions were short dump-offs and screens. The longest completion of the game went for 30 yards when wide receiver Jesse Holley made a leaping catch on an underthrown pass from Jared Hall.

But like last year, the Tar Heels had difficulty shutting down the run.

The White's Ronnie McGill had 79 yards on eight carries, and the Blue's Jacque Lewis racked up 83 yards on 13 carries with one touchdown.

On that score, which came early in the second quarter, Lewis juked hard from his right to his left before hitting the line, and he bowled over free safety Tom O'Leary to reach the end zone.

Reason for optimism in UNC's ability to stop the running game came from freshman defensive end Khalif Mitchell.

Mitchell, who enrolled at UNC in January so he could start practicing with the team, recorded a game-high five tackles and often was in hot pursuit of the speedy Lewis.

"It takes a lot of effort," said

Mitchell, who didn't pick up the sport until 11th grade. "Back in high school, I used to work with the running backs just to get my feet work quicker."

"It was always about getting faster. And if I can get faster, I can get better."

Mitchell also sacked quarterback Darian Durant, driving him hard to the ground for a 12-yard loss even though Durant was not supposed to be tackled in the game.

"In a way, I knew I wasn't supposed to tackle him, but it was just like, I got in that game mode," Mitchell said. "He was juking and I didn't hear a whistle, and you play to the whistle."

The play exhibited the type of tenacity and intensity Bunting has tried to instill in his young squad all spring after the team's disappointing 2-10 campaign in 2003.

"I wanted to develop more mental toughness," Bunting said. "I think we're getting there and you get there by running the football and stopping the run. We're further along than I thought we'd be."

preseason predictions.

After falling short of her goal Saturday night, the usually bubbly and energetic Curley was shell-shocked.

"I wasn't ready for it to be over," Curley said. "I hadn't planned for this to be the last meet. I seriously thought that we were going to do the performance of a lifetime and make it to nationals — and I think we had the performance of a lifetime."

She recognized that the regional meet had not been one of her best, as she had fallen on both floor exercise and balance beam.

Normally, Curley has little difficulty executing her first tumbling pass on floor, but she didn't gain enough height in the final element. She hit the floor in a seated position, starting UNC coach Derek Galvin in the face in utter surprise.

"That's the pass that I don't fall on, usually," Curley said.

Both Curley and Wilson battled injuries throughout the season. Wilson severely injured her knee in January and finally had worked her way back to top form, while Curley struggled with a sore shoulder.

GYMNASTICS

Sophomore Mikel Hester led off UNC's floor routines with a solid score of 9.80, but senior Maddy Curley suffered a fall in the next performance.

Freshman Christine Robella, who had hyperextended her thumb on the uneven bars earlier in the meet, took an extra step on the final pass of an otherwise exquisite floor routine and earned a 9.90.

"I really didn't think about (the injury)," she said. "I was trying to focus. I could feel it afterwards, but going into the routines, I was trying to not even concentrate on it."

Junior Olivia Trusty, the Tar Heels' most consistent all-arounder last year, earned a 9.90 with her powerful tumbling and flawless dance elements.

Senior Anna Wilson underrotated on her final tumbling pass and had to settle for a 9.85.

And with the other teams finished for that rotation, all eyes in the arena watched Bumpers — the Southeast Region Gymnast of the Year — perform the most important floor exercise of her career.

"I didn't notice at all," said Bumpers, who earned seven perfect scores this season. "I was out there, trying to sell my routine and have fun."

so high," Bumpers said.

Last year, Wilson and Bumpers garnered individual bids to nationals, but Bumpers will travel to Los Angeles alone this year to compete.

"Losing them is going to be really hard, because they've been such an integral part of this team," Bumpers said.

Wilson and Curley were forced to leave behind a life of competition a bit earlier than planned Saturday.

"It's a special senior class," Galvin said. "They're the most successful class we've ever had in the history of our program."

"I'm going to miss them. I'm certainly going to miss them."

BASEBALL

the season. Marshall Hubbard continued his hot hitting, hitting a double off the wall in right in the fourth inning and smoking a line drive through the wind and over the right-field fence in the top of the sixth.

But the blast wasn't even his best swing of the game. In the second inning, Hubbard sent a drive to left, but it died in the wind before it reached the warning track.

"It was a little awkward hitting here because the wind was so crazy," said Hubbard, who also had a first-inning grand slam on Friday. "I flew out to left field, that was probably my hardest hit ball all day."

Although the offense has continued to blossom and UNC got solid outings of all three starters, the defense continued to struggle.

UNC committed eight errors in the three games and five on Sunday.

UNC escaped the five miscues against a struggling Wake Forest squad, but it probably will not be as lucky if it repeats the performance next week at Georgia Tech.

"We have to make plays in order to stay in games," said UNC coach Mike Fox. "We can't make five errors against Georgia Tech down there — we'll be in trouble."

North Carolina freshman pitcher Andrew Miller gave up two earned runs in 5.1 innings against Wake Forest to earn his first win since March 9.
