Israel approves Gaza pullout U.S. suggests

JERUSALEM — Israel's parliament on Wednesday approved a plan to post Egyptian troops on the Gaza border, setting the stage for an Israeli military pullout from the sensitive coastal frontier it has held for 38 years.

But the stormy debate over giving up control to a former enemy and the possibility of Palestinian arms smuggling added fuel to the rivalry between Prime Minister Ariel Sharon and hard-liner Benjamin Netanyahu.

The parliamentary vote was not close — 53 to 28. It came as just three weeks ago, opened a campaign to unseat Sharon as the leader of the ruling Likud Party.

The challenge was based on opposition to the pullout among registered Likud members. While the evacuation of all 21 settlements in Gaza and four in the West Bank had widespread public support, many ideologues in the traditionally pro-settlement party were opposed. They control party institutions, giving Netanyahu a solid chance to oust Sharon from

The split in Israel's largest party not close — 53 to 28. It came as Netanyahu, who quit the Cabinet Sharon's government can live out struct 3,650 homes in the area to move ahead on peacemaking with the Palestinians after the Gaza pullout. Israel is expected to turn over control of Gaza to the Palestinians in mid-September.

Opening his campaign;
Netanyahu visited one of the most contentious areas in a trilateral dispute involving Israel, the Palestinians and the United States - the three-mile corridor between Jerusalem and Maaleh Adumim, Israel's largest West Bank settle-

Netanyahu criticized Sharon for its term until November 2006 and block a Palestinian hold there and on nearby east Jerusalem.

"He has created a precedent that will lead to the division of Jerusalem," Netanyahu told reporters during the tour. "My starting (my campaign) here is not coincidental because Jerusalem is in

Sharon said this week that more West Bank settlements would be dismantled under a final peace agreement with the Palestinians. But he hopes to keep Israeli control over Maaleh Adumim and at least two other settlement blocs, where most of the West Bank's 246,000

BAGHDAD, Iraq — The U.S. ambassador suggested Tuesday that there might be further chang-es to the draft constitution in order to win Sunni Arab approval, saying he believed a "final, final draft" had not yet been presented.

Meanwhile, U.S. F-16s launched airstrikes near the Syrian border, destroying three houses and kill-ing a "known terrorist," the U.S. military said. Iraqi authorities said fighting had broken out in the area between a tribe that supports foreign fighters and another that backs the government.

U.S. Ambassador Zalmay Khalilzad spoke two days after Shiite and Kurdish negotiators bypassed Sunni Arab negotiators and finished the draft, despite Sunni objections to federalism, references to Saddam Hussein's Baath Party and the country's identification as an Islamic but not Arab

"I believe that a final, final draft has not yet been, or the edits have not been, presented yet, so that is something that Iraqis will have to talk to each other and decide for themselves," Khalilzad told report-

The law says the version signed off on by parliament Sunday can-not be amended. But Khalilzad said the door could be open for changes declared as "edits" to the approved text. There was no official comment from the Shiite parliamentary leadership on whether it shared that opinion.

However, influential Shiite lawmaker Khaled al-Attiyah, a member of the constitution draft-ing committee, insisted that "no changes are allowed to be made to the constitution" except for "minor edits for the language."

Shiite leaders consider some of the Sunni objections — especially on federalism and references to the Baath Party - as matters of principle.

An Arab League official in Cairo, meanwhile, said Arab diplomats were urging the Iraqis to amend the constitution to strengthen references to the country's role in the Iraqi Sunni Arabs cited the phrase among reasons they rejected the draft. Although the law forbids further changes in the draft, the stakes are so high that Iraqis may overlook legalisms in a bid for unity.

A Sunni constitution negotiator urged all opponents of the constitution, including radical Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr, to join a national front against the char-

TORONTO — The possibility of a trade war loomed Tuesday after a preliminary World Trade Organization ruling found the United States complied with inter-national law by imposing billions of dollars in duties against Canadian lumber companies.

The confidential ruling, released to both countries Monday, has fueled further talk of an outright trade war between the world's largest trading partners and concerns that the rules of free trade under the North American Free Trade Agreement between the United now unraveling.

A NAFTA panel on Aug. 10 dismissed Washington's claims that Canadian softwood exports are subsidized by Ottawa and therefore damage the U.S. lumber industry. But Washington said that ruling did not address a 2004 decision by the U.S. International Trade Commission that found in favor of Washington, and U.S. Trade Representative Rob Portman pledged to maintain punitive tar-lumber imports from Canada.

The Bush administration imposed the tariffs in 2002 after accusing Canada of subsidizing its lumber industry. Most U.S. timber is harvested from private land at market prices, while in Canada, the government owns 90 percent of timberlands and charges fees for logging. Neena Moorjani, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Trade Representative's office, said Tuesday that the WTO decision confirms that Canada's States believes that back-andforth litigation won't solve this 20-year-old issue. The best course of action is to come to a negotiated solution," Moorjani said in a statement. Canadian officials, however, insist the Aug. 10 NAFTA ruling means Washington must reimburse more than $4.1 billion in punitive tariffs.

"If NAFTA is going to have meaning, then we all have to live within its rules," Canada's Trade Minister subsidies threatened to harm the Jim Peterson said Tuesday.
