

MAKING THE ADJUSTMENT

Images from the River Center camp in Baton Rouge on Thursday

DTH/WHITNEY SHEPTE

Specialist Justin Slizoski (above photo, right) of the Nebraska National Guard runs a metal detector over a young boy who asked him to do so Friday afternoon. The National Guard is at the center mainly to ensure the many families living there are secure.

DTH/WHITNEY SHEPTE

Wayne Cadiere (below photo, left), a Scientology Volunteer Minister, performs an "assist" on another Scientology volunteer, Adi Halevy, on Friday. The assist is provided to those at the center to help relieve stress. There are currently Scientology-trained volunteers in 22 shelters in Mississippi and Louisiana helping with hurricane relief efforts.

DTH/WHITNEY SHEPTE

A young boy (left) living in the River Center shelter plays with a toy truck Friday while Symekiaovive Allen (behind) plays with her 4-month-old daughter, Synie Phillips.

DTH/BRANDON SMITH

Michel (above photo, left) laughs while talking to friends Friday afternoon. Michel was among many people at the shelter who lost a home in New Orleans due to Hurricane Katrina. Letitia Morris (above right photo) gets her hair fixed by a relative. Britney Barbar, (right photo, left) 6, from New Orleans, plays with a jump rope while talking to her new friend, Jeanette Cobbins, 8, who she met in the shelter.

DTH/BRANDON SMITH

DTH/BRANDON SMITH

DTH/WHITNEY SHEPTE

DTH/BRANDON SMITH

Abrey Davis, (left) 8, shows the basketball he has been playing with in the lobby of the center Friday afternoon. Catherine Obleton (above right) talks with a woman outside the Baton Rouge center. Obleton, who is from New Orleans and living in the shelter, plans to relocate in either Atlanta or New York City.