Serving the students and the University community since 1893

The Daily Tar Heel

www.dailytarheel.com

VOLUME 114, ISSUE 27

FARLEY RETURNED TO POST

Edges Gould to remain Speaker

BY MAC MOLLISON STAFF WRITER

Student Congress members chose a slate of new leaders in a roller coaster opening session meeting Thursday night.

Luke Farley won out over Kris Gould to hold on to the position of speaker amid contentious debate that culminated in a 17-14 vote.

Gould was criticized for his treatment of fellow Young Democrats who voted against him on a piece of legislation last session.

"I myself was pulled out of a meeting of Congress and intimidated as to why I voted a certain way," Rep. Caroline Spencer said. Gould apologized for the incident and said later in the meeting that he doesn't think partisan poli-tics should play a role in Congress. "It wasn't me trying to pressure anyone on how to vote," he said.

He promised not to endorse candidates in campus elections - saying such support could cause rifts between student government branches. He urged Farley to join him in that stance. "No, I won't take that pledge,"

Farley said, standing behind legisla-tion passed in the 87th session ensuring that privilege for the speaker.

For his part, Farley was scrutinized for a recent purge of graduate students with poor attendance.

Representatives said the action was out of line with Farley's pledge to retain graduate students in the body by relaxing attendance rules.

"Whatever I've said was in line with the (Student) Code," Farley said. "I don't think you want a speaker who plays around with the Code." He proposed several unique initiatives, such as holding Congress in the Pit and establishing a congressional endowment.

Before the vote, Rep. Dustin Ingalls urged representatives not to let affiliation with campus political groups decide their votes

"Traditional notions about partisan politics don't matter," he said during a debate spanning about an

After the vote, which elicited cheers from two observers outside the room, Gould remained in high spirits.

Farley rose to the front of Peabody 08 to continue business as usual after the vote. "I feel fine," Gould said with a smile during a session break. He decided not to oppose Ingalls for the position of speaker pro tem - the North Campus representative was selected with little discussion.

SEE LEADERSHIP, PAGE 5

Congress cements term leadership

At Student Congress' Thursday meeting, representatives elected leadership for the coming yearlong session.

Congress Speaker

ex-officio member on each committee Luke Farley

Speaker pro tem

Assists speaker and serves as an ex-officio member of each committee; in charge of outreach to student body

Dustin Ingalls

Rules and judiciary committee

Reviews legislation dealing with the Code and nominees for high-level executive and judicial branch positions.

Caroline Spencer,

chairwoman Quentin Ruiz-Esparza, Adam Farag, Pablo Friedmann, Tyler Gamble, John Michalak, Megan Paul, Joyce Pope and Kate Thompson

Finance committee

Reviews appropriations requests for student fee allocations submitted by student groups.

Val Tenyotkin, chairman Aia Barretto, LaToya Evans, Kris Gould, Christopher Helms, Jordan Myers, Mark Peppers, Bayard Stringer and Tiffany Waddell

Student affairs committee

Reviews all other legislation and considers low-level executive external appointments (such as general resolutions made by Congress)

Tyler Younts, chairman

Koreena Bobo, Tyson Grinstead, Charissa Lloyd, Cindy Plante, Layne Powers, Brian Troutman and Katherine Willett

Durham seeks answers

Council discusses strained community relations

BY LINDSEY NAYLOR

DURHAM - The Durham City Council met Thursday to discuss the town-gown tensions brewing in wake of the March 13 rape allegations against mem-bers of the Duke University men's lacrosse team. Council members expressed concern that the national publicity stirred by the incident has cast the town in an unflattering light. "It's unfortunate that the city of Durham, in my opinion, has been victimized by what has happened, coast to coast," council member Howard Clement said. The alleged rape occurred in a Durham neighborhood popular with Duke students for off-campus housing. The black woman, hired as an exotic dancer, said was harassed and raped in the house of three lacrosse team captains, who since have moved. University officials bought 15 rental properties in the area earlier this year, further pushing predominately student housing into the surrounding community.

Council members expressed concern that such sites often are incubators for partying and underage drinking. "In my opinion, when you have that type of environment, it's a breeding ground for trouble. council member Thomas Stith said.

Kent Barrett, associate director of public and media relations for the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said all allegations should be addressed at the local level because NCAA bylaws do not cover cases outside the classroom and playing field. No charges have yet been filed, and the results of DNA tests conducted on 46 of 47 team members by the State Bureau of Investigation have not been released. Many see Wednesday's resignation of Coach Mike Pressler and the cancellation of the team's son as significant steps toward allaying the bitter rancor in the aven performs a song for GLBTSA's drag show "Body Language" in Memorial Hall on Thursday. Raven was one of many performers who rocked the large crowd during the first act, also featuring well-known names Diana Prince and Dana St. James, as well as Amsterdam native Windy Mills. Student groups performed later. For the full story and a slideshow of images visit dailytarheel.com.

FRIDAY, APRIL 7, 2006

SEE TOWN REACTS, PAGE 5

NOT A DRAG

Judas gospel to alter views

Jesus requested deed, scholars say

BY DEBORAH NEFFA AFF WRITER

The infamous apostle known for betraying Jesus with a kiss now has a 1,700-year-old alibi that some say will exonerate him.

The Gospel of Judas Iscariot, recently restored and translated 30 years after it was discovered, states that Jesus asked him. The gospel's text was revealed in a news conference Thursday at the National Geographic headquarters in Washington, D.C.

A TV special

Judas to betray

Ehrman said the gospel paints Judas in a different light.

Professor Bart

detailing the gos-pel — which the experts called "the greatest discovery in the past 60 years" — will air at 8 p.m. Sunday on the National Geographic Channel

"This gospel portrays the act as the greatest thing that Judas could do for Jesus," said Bart Ehrman, chairman of UNC's Department of Religious Studies, at the news conference

Ehrman is on a team of archeological experts hired to translate and authenticate the text.

Baker listens to discussions of the Duke lacrosse team Thursday.

Committees to be scrapped

Mayor proposes rearrangement

BY JESSICA SCHONBERG ASSISTANT CITY EDITOR

The same day a University advisory committee for Carolina North convened for the second time, a town group with a similar charge heard that it could be disbanded.

Different ways to conceptual-ize guiding principles for development were laid on the table Thursday at the second meeting of the Carolina North leadership advisory council.

The committee is charged with developing guiding design prin-ciples for Carolina North — the University's proposed satellite campus. Before the meeting a memo vas circulated by Chapel Hill Mayor Kevin Foy stating that he will petition the Town Council on April 10 to disband the Horace Williams citizens committee, as well as the town's technology committee.

He stated that the committees have fulfilled their charges. Chapel Hill Town Manager Cal

Horton presented on behalf of the citizens committee Thursday. The town has adopted the committee's report on the Horac Williams property as Chapel Hill policy. "The committee would be a great resource for the town to have on hand to evaluate what the University is putting forth," said an upset Will Raymond, who sits on the citizens committee.

entatives of the Carrboro Repres Board of Aldermen, University and Chapel Hill-Carrboro Chamber of Commerce presented their own sets of principles to the council Thursday.

Development principles varied, with the representatives keeping the interests of their own constituents at the forefront.

The next step for the leadership

SEE PLANNING, PAGE 5

HE'S LIBERAL ENOUGH Franken brings political show back to campus today

himself by providing commentary

on conservative spin. "Talk radio was really a monolith of conservative talk," he said.

"I felt somebody really had to enter the fray and start doing lib-eral talk or progressive talk."

Franken – comedy writer, polit-ical satirist and creator of "Daily

BY MARGARET HAIR

After 15 years writing sketches for Saturday Night Live, Al Franken was ready to enter the realm of politics.

He was prepared to publicly comment on presidential missteps and the spin of what he calls the right-wing media.

He was set to call Rush Limbaugh a big, fat idiot. Author of "Rush Limbaugh is a Big Fat Idiot" and "Lies and the Lying Liars Who Tell Them: A Fair and Balanced Look at the Right," Franken, now a radio talk show host, has made a name for

MARTIN BOTH PORTABLE IN A STATE OF A STORE TO A STATE OF A

Veteran SNL writer and political activist Al Franken returns to UNC for his radio program.

Affirmations with Stuart Smalley" will bring his brand of progres we talk radio to campus today.

His program, "The Al Franken Show," which he said addresses topics such as economic justice and the separation of church and state. will be broadcast live over the Air America network from the Union Auditorium from noon to 3 p.m.

In keeping with the show's usual format, Franken said he plans to talk politics with people from the community — including Chapel Hill Mayor Kevin Foy.

The broadcast is co-sponsored

SEE FRANKEN, PAGE 5

online | dailytarheel.com city page 4 sports | page 7 today in history weather Partly Cloudy H 84, L 61 SERVICE TO THE STATE UNC-system FIRST THING FIRST BLOWING IN APRIL 7, 1986 The Chapel Hill-Carrboro Five students are arrested The Tar Heel baseball team index Board of Education approves heads to ACC rival and as the deadline passes for police log a delay to the First School, a national powerhouse Miami them to remove a Polk Place calendar crossword progressive K-3 school, at its for a weekend series that will "shanty town" set up sports Thursday meeting. prove pivotal for rankings. to protest apartheid. edit

students give back during service week

SCRAMBLED SIGNAL Public access TV further threatened by release of report

GETTING TO KNOW YOU James Allred's new Cabinet meets for first time