The Daily Tar Heel

News

End your football famine |Heels again victim of injury with can't-miss matchups

on't worry sports fans. You do not have to watch Major League Baseball anymore in order to get your sports fix. The 2006 college football season kicks off at 10 p.m. today when Northern Arizona battles No. 24 Arizona State in Tempe, Ariz.

Granted, the matchup between the Lumberjacks and Sun Devils does not appear to have the mak-ings of a future ESPN Classic; here is a list of the 10 games you cannot miss this season.

10. Michigan at Ohio State

Michigan might be able to spoil Ohio State's national championship bid in the 103rd game of col-lege football's top rivalry. Although Michigan does not appear to have the talent of Ohio State, this series has produced memorable upsets. Do not think that running back Mike Hart and quarterback Chad Henne are not up to the challenge.

9. Ohio State at Iowa

When the Buckeyes travel to Iowa City the Big 10 title and automatic BCS bid will be on the line. Last year OSU thrashed the Hawkeyes in Columbus so revenge will be on all the Iowa players' minds. Expect a lot of offense as both teams have stellar play at the skill positions, including quarter-backs Troy Smith and Drew Tate.

8. Florida State at Miami The winner of this matchup between the top two ACC teams should be on track to gain the conference's BCS birth. Don't expect to see these two teams lighting up the scoreboard, as both Miami and FSU feature stout defenses.

7. Georgia vs. Florida This year's version of the World's Largest Cocktail Party should decide who represents the East in the SEC title game. Even though the Bulldogs lost star quarterback D.J. Shockley to graduation, they are still capable of upsetting quarterback Chris Leak and the Gators.

6. California at Southern California It has been nearly two years since the Golden Bears nearly upset USC in Los Angeles, and do not be surprised if this time the Trojans fail to deliver. Cal boasts possibly the best backfield in the nation in Marshawn Lynch and Justin Forsett. And no one knows how USC will react to the loss of its NFL caliber offensive weapons.

5. Louisiana State at Auburn Auburn's undefeated season in 2004 was jump-started when they snuck past LSU — then the defending national champions. The same thing could happen to whoever wins this year.

4. Texas vs. Oklahoma The loss of quarterback Rhett Bomar aside, Oklahoma still has head coach Bob Stoops and, more importantly, stud run-ning back Adrian Peterson. That alone should be enough to give the Longhorns all that they can handle in the 101st edition of the SBC Red River Rivalry.

3. Notre Dame at USC A national championship birth might be on the line for both the Fighting Irish and Trojans. In head coach Charlie Weis' first season at Notre Dame, the Fighting Irish almost knocked out Southern Cal. This year Notre Dame will be the experienced favorite, but the young Trojans will be dangerous.

2. Ohio State at Texas

6. No. 9 California at No. 6 Southern California; Saturday, Nov. 18 No. 3 Texas vs. No. 10 klahoma (Dallas, Texas);

Saturday, Oct. 7 4. No. 8 Louisiana Sate at No. 4 Auburn; Saturday, Sept. 16

3. No. 2 Notre Dame at No. 6 Southern California; Saturday, Nov. 25

2. No. 1 Ohio State at No. 3 Texas; Saturday, Sept. 9

1. No. 5 West Virginia at No. 13 Louisville; Thursday, Nov. 2

Everyone remembers last year's classic slugfest between the Buckeyes and Longhorns that set the tone for Texas' national championship season. Look for Troy Smith to play the role of Vince Young and lead the Buckeyes to victory in what should be a memorable game.

1. West Virginia at Louisville Call me crazy, but this game between two Big East teams will decide who plays in the national championship game. If you look at the schedule you'll see Louisville is the only ranked team the Mountaineers play all year. If quarterback Pat White can lead West Virginia past the Cardinals, then White and Co. will be looking at an undefeated season and a chance at a title.
