

The Daily Tar Heel

VOLUME 114, ISSUE 111

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 2006

www.dailytarheel.com

DAVIS SET TO COACH TAR HEELS

Announcement ends weeks of national speculation

BY JESSE BAUMGARTNER
AND DANIEL MALLOY
SENIOR WRITERS

Butch Davis, the man who was Dick Baddour's target from the start of the search, will be North Carolina's next football coach, the University announced Monday afternoon.

Butch Davis was UNC's first choice to succeed John Bunting.

A press release, issued shortly after 4 p.m., stated that there will be a news conference introducing Davis on Nov. 27 — the Monday after the final game of the season for the 1-9 Tar Heels. Administrators will not comment on Davis until that date.

Davis, the former University of Miami and Cleveland Browns coach who is now an analyst for the NFL Network, was the only candidate not employed by a team and the only person seriously considered for the job. He will replace John Bunting, who in his sixth season is 25-45 as head coach.

"Butch Davis became our first choice early in the process, although we did not know of his interest in us," Baddour, the ninth-year director of athletics, said in the release.

"We were excited to learn of his interest in Carolina and our football program and proceeded from that point."

Negotiations were ongoing, and Nelson Schwab, chairman of the Board of Trustees, said that by Friday the deal was done.

"It wasn't until the end of last week that really there was a feeling, that we had a meeting of the minds," Schwab said. "And then we were talking about press conferences rather than terms."

Davis cannot fulfill any coaching duties until after the Nov. 25 game against Duke.

But reports from Internet, broadcast and print sources confirming that Davis had signed a contract swirled at the end of last week, causing the administration to decide to release the news officially.

"The press was in a feeding frenzy, and all the emphasis was on this and speculation rather than the football program," Schwab said. "So this is a way of clearing that up."

No details about Davis' contract were available Monday because it still must be confirmed by the BOT and UNC-system Board of Governors. The trustees meet in Chapel Hill on Wednesday.

A resume for rebuilding

Paul Hilton Davis, who turns 55 later this month, grew up in Oklahoma and played college football at Arkansas. From there he coached at several high schools before getting his first college job as an assistant at Oklahoma State under Jimmy Johnson in 1979.

He followed Johnson to Miami, where he was defensive line coach from 1984-88. When Johnson jumped to the NFL to coach the Dallas Cowboys, Davis followed as a defensive assistant, won two Super Bowl rings and served as defensive coordinator in 1993 and 1994.

Davis then returned to Miami, where he was

Butch Davis' winding path to UNC

► Signed to be the 33rd UNC football head coach last week. The announcement came at 4 p.m. Monday. The University Board of Trustees still has to look over his contract and approve it. A press conference to officially introduce Davis as the next coach is scheduled for Monday, Nov. 27 after the Tar Heels' last game of the season, which is Nov. 25 at Duke.

Born:

► Nov. 17, 1951 in Tablequah, Okla.

College:

► University of Arkansas, graduated in 1974 and played defensive end with the Razorbacks under Coach Frank Broyles.

Coaching:

► Miami Dolphins defensive line coach from 1984 to 1988 under head coach Jimmy Johnson. Also coached with Johnson for five years with the Dallas Cowboys and at Oklahoma State.

► University of Miami head coach from 1995 to 2000 with a 51-20 record, three Big East Conference Championships and four postseason bowl wins. In first year with Miami, the team went 8-3.

► Cleveland Browns head coach, 2001 to 2004 with a 24-35 record. Davis quit his post with the Browns organization midseason in December 2004 after guiding the team to a 3-8 start.

Visit TarHeelBlue.com for more information on the man who will lead the Tar Heels onto the Kenan Stadium field in the 2006-07 season.

SEE DAVIS PAGE 6

Free music downloading ready to roll

BY STEPHANIE NEWTON
ASSISTANT UNIVERSITY EDITOR

Starting today UNC-Chapel Hill students will have more than 1.7 million digital songs at their download-ready fingertips — for free.

After negotiating with Information Technology Services and student government leaders since January, Ruckus Network Inc., a multimedia provider for universities and colleges, is partnering with UNC to provide students with unlimited content.

"It is our intention that this will be the music program that we have in place as long as it is working for students," said Robyn East, associate vice chancellor and deputy chief information officer for ITS.

After evaluating a pilot program that was instituted for the spring 2005 semester, campus leaders decided to take a second look at Cdigix, RealNetworks' Rhapsody, Napster and Ruckus.

Through student surveys, Student Body President James Allred and Student Body Vice President Brian Phelps learned

Music downloading

What is Ruckus? A multimedia provider for universities and colleges with a music library hosting more than 1.7 million songs

Is there a cost? No

How do I sign up?

- Go to www.ruckus.com
- Use your UNC e-mail account to register
- Begin your unlimited downloads
- Contact support@ruckus.com with your questions that Ruckus was the overwhelming favorite.

"We had a lot of things that were deal breakers for us," Allred said.

Among the stipulations were a provider that didn't bring desktop viruses with it, offered a range of musical tastes and would be available to all students on campus, off campus and at the graduate level.

SEE RUCKUS, PAGE 6

COLLECTIVE EFFORT

DTH/COURTNEY POTTER

Freshmen Sander Buitelaar (left), Tripp Gobble and Brandon Barbour marvel at the massive "Free Trade Area of the Americas" drawing hanging in the Pit on Monday evening. The work of art is an all-volunteer collaborative effort by artists in the Beehive Design Collective based in eastern Maine and is part of a coloring book project. The Beehive came to the University on Monday as part of its tour through the eastern United States to inform students of its campaign against corporate monoculture.

Charities to get boost from Triangle eateries

BY LAURA SMITH
STAFF WRITER

Ruffin Slater, general manager at Weaver Street Market, was just getting his start in the Carrboro business scene when Restaurants Sharing V(5) + V(5) Percent Day began 18 years ago.

As someone who has seen RSVVP change and grow through the years, he can attest to the program's evolution.

"I started working here 18 years ago," Slater said. "We've been involved with the program since it began, and over the years I've seen much more participation and many more restaurants get involved."

The 18th annual RSVVP will kick off at breakfast today as Triangle residents attempt to sate not only their own hunger but also the hunger of those in need.

This year's 126 Chapel Hill and Carrboro participating restaurants will contribute 10 percent of the day's sales to local beneficiaries, including the Community Kitchen of Urban Ministries of Durham, the Food Bank of Central and Eastern North Carolina and the Inter-Faith Council for Social Service in Chapel Hill.

Since the program began in 1989, RSVVP has helped raise more than $425,000 for the charities involved, according to the program's Web site.

RSVVP got its start in Baltimore, Md., when servers decided to combine their tips to donate to a local charitable organization.

The idea grew to the opening of a food bank and eventually spread to Chapel Hill and Carrboro with RSVVP committee member and former chairwoman Irene Visit www.rsvvp.org to see a full list of the 126 Chapel Hill and Carrboro restaurants participating today.

Briggaman helping to organize and develop the program.

Planned as a Triangle-wide event from the beginning, RSVVP will bring local businesses together with those of the city of Durham and Wake County.

"Chapel Hill and Carrboro tend to outrecruit and outperform Raleigh and Durham put together," Briggaman said.

"We either have a lot of hungry citizens or tremendous community support."

Briggaman said there are eight establishments that have been

SEE RSVVP, PAGE 6

Graduate students see debt

BY WHITNEY KISLING
ASSISTANT UNIVERSITY EDITOR

There's a difference between being in debt when you're an undergraduate and when you're a medical student.

Graduate Tuition

Today: Graduate finances
Wednesday: Professional school tuition

At about $150,000 in the hole, Gary Visser, a fourth-year graduate student in UNC's School of Medicine, still can afford to travel during the week-end. He said he knows he can pay off the debt in a matter of years.

"While you're young it's better to enjoy yourself," Visser said. "So any money I have left over from loans, instead of pay off my loans, I'm going to travel."

But other graduate students at UNC don't necessarily have the Graduate student financial aid

The number of graduate students receiving financial aid during the fall 2004 semester varied across schools. Many count on aid to fund their education.

SCHOOL	NUMBER OF GRADUATE STUDENTS ENROLLED	NUMBER OF GRADUATE STUDENTS RECEIVING FINANCIAL AID
ARTS/SCIENCES	2,179	671
BUSINESS	718	415
LIBRARY SCIENCE	301	160
GOVERNMENT	59	40
MEDICAL	1,399	575
PHARMACY	552	392
LAW	705	590
PUBLIC HEALTH	948	298
SOCIAL WORK	239	165

SOURCE: UNIVERSITY REGISTRAR

DTH/ALLIE WASSUM

same sense of security.

With tuition continuing to climb, especially for out-of-state students, paying for further schooling and still affording living expenses after graduation is an increasing concern.

"It's a choice," Graduate and Professional Student Federation President Lauren Anderson said. "And a lot goes into it."

The first step in the process is researching schools' tuition and filling out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid. After that, students search for financial support.

Most schools within the University do not have financial aid advisers. They direct students to the Office of Scholarships and Student Aid.

SEE GRADUATE AID, PAGE 6

online | dailytarheel.com

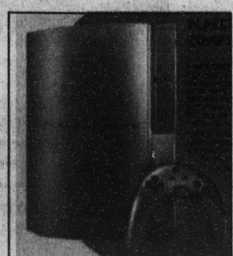

REDUCING BOOK BUCKS Officials examine ways to reduce textbook prices

EYES ON THEM Police ran surveillance for months before making drug arrests

TAKING A BREAK A workshop gives students ways to take time off after college

state | page 6

EASIER TO EDUCATE N.C. State University offers an entirely online degree program geared toward military personnel who might be deployed at a moment's notice.

plugged in | page 9

GAME SEASON

The release of the Sony PlayStation 3 will pit the new game console against the Xbox 360 this holiday season. See a breakdown of each system.

this day in history

NOV. 14, 1930 ...

The Carnegie Library building is renamed Hill Hall. Originally constructed as the University's new library, the building was named in honor of John Sprunt Hill.

weather

Sunny
H 71, L 44

index

police log 2
calendar 2 games 11
sports 11
opinion 12