3 Jeopardy! contestants beat the odds

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

What is a three-way tie, Alex? The three contestants on "Jeopardy!" all finished with $16,000 after each answering the final question correctly in the category, "Women of the 1930s," on Friday's show. They identified Bonnie Parker, of the famed Bonnie and Clyde crime duo, as a woman who, as a waitress, once served one of the men who shot her.

The show contacted a mathematician who calculated the odds of such a three-way tie happening — one in 25 million.

The three contestants, Jamey Kirby of Gainesville, Fla.; Anders Martinson of Union City, Calif.; and Scott Weiss of Walkersville, Md.; were all declared champions and taped a rematch that will air today.

NOTED. Bernalillo County sheriff's deputies have arrested a man on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, marking his 28th such offense.

Joseph Brill, 53, was driving on a revoked license when deputies saw him park in a driveway in a northeast Albuquerque neighborhood and fall out of his pickup truck Wednesday evening.

QUOTED. "Saturday I rose from the dead and then died again."

— Actor-comedian Sinbad on a Wikipedia.com entry that announced his death. The Web site, an online encyclopedia that anyone can edit, said Sinbad died of a heart attack. By the time the error was caught, e-mail links of the erroneous page had been forwarded to hundreds of people.
