DAILY DOSE

When you've got to go ...

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Thieves who took a truck in Seattle received a sophomore surprise when they saw what was in the back: a 7-foot-high, 7-foot-long soapbox racer shaped like a toilet.

Five friends built the racer in Colorado Springs, Colo. It was stolen when the truck it was sitting in was swiped from their hotel parking lot late last month.

"My guess is (they said), 'Oh, crap, it's a giant toilet,'" racer Tom Valentine said.

NOTED. Some 450 North Dakota high school students played Twister on 180 mats in what they hope will set a world record for the largest Twister game of all time.

The mats formed a Twister board measuring 4,699 square feet. The current Twister board record is 2,453 square feet, set in April 2005 in the Netherlands.

QUOTED. "Strong-arm robbery? Over a doughnut? That's impossible. There's no way I would've pushed a woman over a doughnut."

— Scott A. Masters, 41, who faces five to 15 years in prison for armed robbery after slipping the doughnut into his sweatshirt then pushing away a clerk who tried to stop him as he left the store.
