Somebody's been sleeping in my bed

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Police say a Maryland man returned to his apartment last week to find an intruder peacefully napping in the owner's bed.

The accused burglar, Mark William, didn't wake up until after police handcuffed him.

Authorities said the intruder, who goes by "Weasel," jammed a chair to the back entrance of the apartment before lying down.

He was charged with burglary, theft and malicious destruction of property.

William also faces drug charges after police found a small package of suspected crack cocaine in his pocket.

He is being held in county jail on $15,000 bond.

NOTED. An 84-year-old Texas woman accused of trying to run over a neighbor amid a land dispute has been arrested.

Ester McCullough was charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, a felony punishable by up to 20 years in prison.

In 2005, she was found guilty of attempted assault after she hit a police officer in the head with her cane and threatened to shoot him.

QUOTED. "America's history hasn't been so kind to a lot of people. You can't always count on the government to take care of it. ... I'm Slavic. I kind of understand."

— Jeremy Butyrin, who gave $10 during a National Day of Panhandling for Reparations.

The volunteers asked white passers-by in Oregon to pay reparations for enslaving black people then gave the money to black passers-by.
