DAILY DOSE

Rockin' in the library

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Could it work in the UL? Video game events at Michigan libraries are drawing crowds, including about 100 competing in "Guitar Hero" monthly. The shelves are regularly stocked with 1,823 games. About 1,300 are checked out daily. "It's a big social event," said Stephanie Jaczkowski, 17. "I've met a lot of friends there, and they're really good friends." No word on whether any studying gets done.

NOTED. Kansas City, Mo., resident Terry W. Seward, 46, has been charged with two counts of armed criminal action after allegedly kicking his wife in the stomach with steel-toed shoes when she did not move fast enough to bring him a beer. When his sons confronted him, he stabbed one in the back and one in the thigh.

QUOTED. "He told police his wife was out of town ... so he decided to come up to Manchester where no one would know him." - An anonymous Boston government official, commenting on a federal judge who resigned after being pulled over for DUI while wearing a black cocktail dress, fishnet stockings and high heels.
