Fla. church: Thou shalt make love

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

A southwest Florida church issued a challenge for its married members: canoodling every day. Relevant Church head pastor Paul Wirth issued the 30-day sex challenge to take on high divorce rates.

"And that's no different for people who attend church," Wirth said Sunday. "Sometimes life gets in the way. Our jobs get in the way."

The challenge is meant to return sex to the realm of marriage. The approach is aimed at the younger congregation, which has many members in their 20s and 30s.

But N.C. abstinence-only lawmakers take heart: The challenge doesn't extend to unwed congregants. "If you're dating someone, even seriously, you're single," Pastor Jason Sowell said. "You have not taken the step."

NOTED. A Brooklyn vagrant on a breakfast beer run became a hero when he raced into a burning Brooklyn apartment and rescued a father and two sons.

The homeless man, Andre Nash, 45, used a beer-soaked rag as a mask and made his way through choking smoke in the burning apartment at the Lafayette Gardens housing project, USA Today reported.

QUOTED. "Give me your tacos."

— A Fontana, Calif., robber who forcibly took a man's Mexican delights.

Police Sergeant Jeff Decker said the 35-year-old victim had bought about $20 in tacos from a street-corner stand and was bicycling home when a man grabbed the food, punched the victim in the face and ran. When the victim demanded his tacos back, the man drew a gun.

Call for Proposals:

CAROLINA ENTREPRENEURIAL INITIATIVE
INNOVATIONS FUND GRANTS

Spring Application Deadline: Thursday, March 13, 2008, 5 p.m.
(Note: Applications must be delivered by both e-mail and hard copy.)

The Carolina Entrepreneurial Initiative (CEI) seeks proposals from UNC faculty, staff and students for Innovations Fund grants to develop new programs that will keep the initiative fresh and stimulating.

CEI seeks to inspire, teach and connect students, faculty and alumni in ways that enable them to transform their ideas into sustainable ventures that create value — commercial, social, scientific and artistic. The Innovations Fund is designed to foster the development of new CEI programs that will move the initiative forward.

Proposals should emphasize programmatic (versus individual project) initiatives and future sustainability of proposed programs.

Find application form and information at www.unc.edu/cei/innovation
