Towns ain't big enough for these two

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Voters in two Vermont towns approved measures calling for the indictment of President Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney for what they consider violations of the Constitution.

Mostly a symbolic gesture, the resolution sought to have police arrest Bush and Cheney if they visit Brattleboro or nearby Marlboro or to extradite them for prosecution elsewhere if they're not impeached first.

In Brattleboro, the vote was 2,012-1,795. In Marlboro, which held a town meeting on the issue, it was 43-25 with three abstentions.

"It's not a good reflection on the town," radio DJ Ian Kelley said. "Do I like either of them and would I vote for them? No. But I don't think it's cause to arrest them."

NOTED. A Wilmington high school student accused of giving her teacher drug-laced cookies faces a possible 25 months in prison.

Police said 17-year-old Elizabeth Ann Coleman put marijuana into cookies and gave them to a Spanish teacher, who ate the cookies and became "mentally incapacitated."

Coleman is charged with felony contaminating food with a controlled substance.

QUOTED. "That behavior is not acceptable, though it gave a few people a laugh."

— The employer of a Polish man who said he was just cleaning his underwear when caught in the act with a vacuum cleaner.

The victim, Henry Hoover, has a large smiley face painted on its front and a hose protruding from its "nose." The man was told to "clean himself and the Hoover" and then leave.
