WEAVER STREET JAZZES IT UP

azz band Club Boheme performed Sunday morning outside of Weaver Street Market in Carrboro. Weaver Street Market, a local organic and whole food grocer, is celebrating 20 years in Carrboro. The store has a weekly "Jazz Brunch" on Sundays that will continue through October.

CORRECTIONS

meet," Morey said. "We're asking them to take on a very difficult job, a job that's not always safe."

In anticipation of the review, requested by N.C. Secretary of Correction Theodis Beck in July, the N.C. General Assembly set aside $2.5 million in the 2008-09 budget for recommended reforms. The NIC will provide knowledge and tools to the N.C. DOC and coordinate communication between N.C. lawmakers and states already in accordance with the rec-ommended statutes.

George Keiser, chief of the com munity corrections division of the NIC, said it's possible that legislators might not be open to recom-mendations from an outside fed-

"There is no quick, simple solution to most of the business issues that we take on," he said. "Particularly when we start talking about changing major statu-

> Contact the State & National Editor at stntdesk@unc.edu.

MEALS

high, cheering loudly after reach ing each 10,000-meal mark.

Packages of food contained rice, soy, dehydrated vegetables and vitamin-rich flavoring tablets. Once packaged and sealed, the meals have a shelf life of five years, said Rod Brooks, chief executive officer of Stop Hunger Now. SHN plans to send the meals to Haiti, El Salvador and India. SHN works with established programs in place in those countries to ensure the meals reach their destination, Brooks said.

"The meals that we package are used to support school lunch pro-grams," he said. "It creates a private incentive to parents. Enrollment doubles or sometimes triples once parents know their children can have hot meals.'

For the last three years, SHN held similar events at N.C. State that each packaged about 300,000 meals, he said.

"This was the first year we involved other universities," Brooks

"Enrollment doubles or sometimes triples once parents know their children can have hot meals."

ROD BROOKS, CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF STOP HUNGER NOW

said. "If we could get 1,500 students to package 300,000 meals at one school, why couldn't we get 4,000 students to package 1 million meals at three schools?"

APPLES, an academic and service student organization, helped plan the event. Joy Messinger, a first-year graduate student in the School of Public Health and APPLES' community partner outreach coordinator, oversaw the planning.
"Issues like world hunger won't end until people take a look at what needs to be done," Messinger said. This event shouldn't be the end. It's just the beginning."

APPLES targeted first-year volnteers and invited students from Duke and N.C. Central universities to UNC's event site.

"We've always supported interinstitutional collaboration,"

APPLES Director Jenny Huq said. "Involvement of first-year students was important."

Many of them partook in the festivities at UNC.

"It makes us feel more like a community, bringing people together," first-year Chelsie Coffman said. "People are suffering ... I wouldn't want to be in their shoes."

Both SHN and APPLES plan to make Million Meals into an annual

"It would be great if more student groups want to come and help plan out this event in the future, Messinger said. "So much food is produced in the world, there's no reason why people should go hungry."

Contact the University Editor at udesk@unc.edu.

CHIPS

rest of the improv troupe's members stressed that regardless of their initial success or lack thereof, the audition process for Chips is far different — and far more fun, they said — than that of any other artistic group on campus

Most unique to Chips' process is the fact that those who make it through auditions don't go directly into the performing group, but rather into an incubator program designed to take people who show particular promise and mold them into even better comedians.

Russell Johnson, a senior in Chips, explained that the troupe determines who enters the incubator program based on how those auditioning progress during the course of the audition and callbacks.

"It's this room full of people and all of Chips is there," Johnson said.

"The audition environment sets everybody up for success because it's overwhelmingly positive."

RUSSELL JOHNSON, SENIOR IN CHIPS

"We get two people up on stage who volunteer to improvise together, and we give them a suggestion and they do a brief scene. As auditions progress we give them constructive notes and see how they take those notes and adapt."

What the group's members stressed the most, though, was that the intimidation factor is low. Johnson said that going to auditions is like getting to see a free show every night, and each auditioner gets a chance to improvise with a current member of Chips.
"The audition environment sets everybody up for success because it's overwhelmingly positive,'

Johnson said. "We're very supportive during the audition process.

Katherine Lloyd, another mem-ber of Chips, went even further in her evaluation of not only the group's auditions, but its identity

"I think it changes you as a person. I don't think you can be in this organization or even audition for Chips or do (the incubator program) and have it not change you," she said. "You learn so much about yourself. You really have to open up and put yourself out there.

> Contact the Arts Editor at artsdesk@unc.edu.

games

Students worked in assembly-line fashion, packing, weighing and sealing meals in plastic bags Saturday. The effort is part of the University Million Meal Event, sponsored by Stop Hunger Now, held at N.C. campuses.

you live in a house in the town of Carrboro, Chapel Hill or Hillsborough, you receive weekly curbside recycling service.

Got Bins?

If you live outside town limits you may receive collection service every other week. Call our office or visit our website to find out.

Got service, but don't have bins? Get up to two at no charge at our administrative office 630 Weaver Dairy Rd. Chapel Hill.

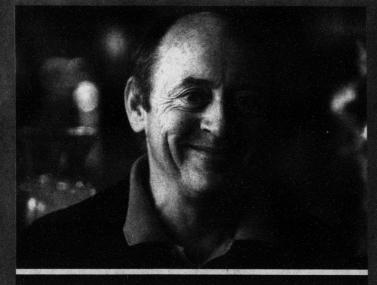

Got Boxes?

Recycle empty and flattened corrugated cardboard boxes at 24-hour drop off sites.

Got Questions?

Monday, September 15, 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall

ACROSS

1 Not as much
5 Trigger-happy
9 Branchlet
14 Sicilian volcano
15 Novelist Morrison
16 Privilaged few
17 Imagined
19 Basketball player
20 Actress Greer
21 I haven't a clue
23 New York neighbor
25 Frozen precipitation
26 Lizard with sticky feet
28 Still
31 Where van Gogh
painted like mad
34 Dawson or Gide
36 Sharer's pronoun
37 Christopher and Bruce
38 Poppy extract
39 Sushi choice
40 Slightly askew
41 Zest
42 Domineering
43 Will contents
45 Group psyche
47 Parts of ranges
49 Western state 47 Parts of ranges es 49 Western state capital 53 Turns back 56 Pipe cleaner 57 Dunne of Hollywood 58 Duck product 60 Hold contents

Sudoku By The Mepham Group

© 2008 The Mepham Group. Distributed by Tribune Media Services. All rights reserved.

Complete the grid so each row, column and 3-by-3 box (in bold borders) contains every digit 1 to

3		4		0				how to solve Sudoku,
	9			3				visit www.sudoku.
			8			2		Solution to
6	5		2	5 8	4	9	8	Friday's puzzle
Charles !	9		-			0	U	7	6	2	5	8	1	4	3	9
9			7					4	3	8	2	9	7	5	6	1
 						1000		9	5	1	6	4	3	8	7	2
					6			8	7	5	1	2	6	3	9	4
	7.6				0			3	1	4	9	5	8	6	2	7
		8	2/1	2		1	5	2	9	6	3	7	4	1	5	8
								1	2	3	4	6	9	7	8	5
7		9				3		5	4	7	8	3	2	9	1	6
1		3				3		6	8	9	7	1	5	2	4	3

Dealing with drought

Schools in western North Carolina are helping communities deal with drought. See pg. 5 for story.

Gang prevention

Leaders discuss prevention and intervention at a roundtable discussion on gangs. See pg. 3 for story.

Probation failures

A report examining probation failures in N.C. makes several recommendations. See pg. 1 for story.

Swift and compact

Running back Ryan Houston says he's faster after slimming down this summer. See pg. 12 for story.

Cash for books

Groups can earn extra cash when members buy books on Franklin Street. See pg. 4 for story.

THE Daily Crossword Edited by Wayne Robert Williams

61 Desirable assignment62 King toppers63 Middle of a tassel?

64 Boo-hoos 65 Do a postal job

DOWN

DOWN

1 Stop gripping

2 "__Frome"

3 Audible expression of contempt

4 Wursts

5 Cultural

6 Morse Code symbol

7 Wildebeests

8 Holy cow!

9 Hide away

10 Glacial deposit

11 Without guilt

12 Single thing

13 Richard of "Chicago"

18 Wounds with a tusk

PIALLA MENIOTTI 18 Wounds with a tusk

KAMPALA MENOTTI
IDIAMIN ALEURON
WARWICK DIORAMA
AMA TEAMED SIKH
NANCY RALES PIE
INDO BARIITESTA
STANGE KNEEDEEP
ALLSEING
FOLIATED NOTSES
OVERS TOME NALA
GUG PAPUA AGNEW
CLIV PITSAW JAY
EARAGHE SOALONE

haps
35 Pieces for two
38 Unwraps
39 Tex-Mex menu items
41 Multi-speaker music

22 Cause anxiety
24 Giraffe relative
27 Preserved for later
29 Soaks up rays
30 Busboy's tote
31 Soap additive
32 Sports zebras
33 Soup ingredients, perhaps systems

42 Goofy error
44 Even the score
46 Islamic women's quarters 48 Leaks slowly

46 Leaks slowly 50 BP merger partner 51 Not so many 52 Philosopher Mach 53 Chop into tiny pieces 54 Historic periods 55 Missile storage space 59 Record a voice-over

