Blue Devils get ball; jumpers say sorry

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

The company that accidentally dropped UNC's game ball in Duke's Wallace Wade Stadium instead of in Kenan Stadium on Saturday hopes they'll be forgiven. It's the first time in eight years that they have messed up.

"When I first opened the parachute ... I said, 'Unh-uh,'" said Matthew Fitch, Aerial Adventures' president, who landed as the Blue Devils and James Madison were doing warm-ups on the field. "At that point, I knew ... and there was no turning back."

Fitch didn't know he was jumping into the wrong stadium because he was re-checking safety gear. The company was using a new pilot, too.

He's apologized to officials at UNC and hopes for another chance.

"I'd like to see the Ram down there on the field, guiding us in with lights," he said.

NOTED. A cross-dressing man in Port St. Lucie, Fla., stole a 74-year-old woman's purse and left an odd clue behind — a condom filled with water that he was using as a fake breast.

The police are testing the condom for DNA evidence. A witness told investigators that the man was wearing a short denim skirt and black tube top, which may have facilitated his loss of a "breast."

QUOTED. "She just knew, from playing 'Grand Theft Auto.' She saw on there that when a car rolls over, it can blow up. She knew that could happen to us."

— Karen Norris, whose 11-year-old daughter helped her family escape from a car accident. She said she knew what to do because she plays Grand Theft Auto, a video game in which cars blow up when they land upside down.

COMMUNITY CALENDAR

TODAY

Teach for America meeting: UNC students are invited to an information session on how to apply for Teach for America.
Time: 4 p.m. to 5 p.m.
Location: Hanes Hall, Room 239B

Triangle welcome: The General Alumni Association is hosting in the Carolina Basketball Museum a gathering to help introduce recent Carolina alumni to post-graduation life in the Triangle. Representatives from Carolina Clubs, the Rams Club and the UNC Development Office will be on hand to answer questions about how to stay involved with Carolina. GAA members can attend for $5, and nonmembers pay $15 if registered in advance. Walk-ups will be charged $20. Contact Anita Walton at 962-3582 for more information.
Time: 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.
Location: Carolina Basketball Museum.

Science forum: Cynthia M. Bulik, director of the UNC Eating Disorders Program, will give a speech on how genetic factors can influence the risk of having an eating disorder. The speech is part of Morehead Planetarium's monthly Current Science Forum.

Time: 7 p.m. to 8 p.m.
Location: Morehead Planetarium and Science Center

FRIDAY

Pollution discussion: Joe Rudek, senior scientist with the Environmental Defense Fund and a 1992 UNC graduate, will speak about pollution in North Carolina. Rudek is an expert in alternative hog waste treatment technologies.
Time: 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.
Location: Carolina Brewery, 460 W. Franklin St.

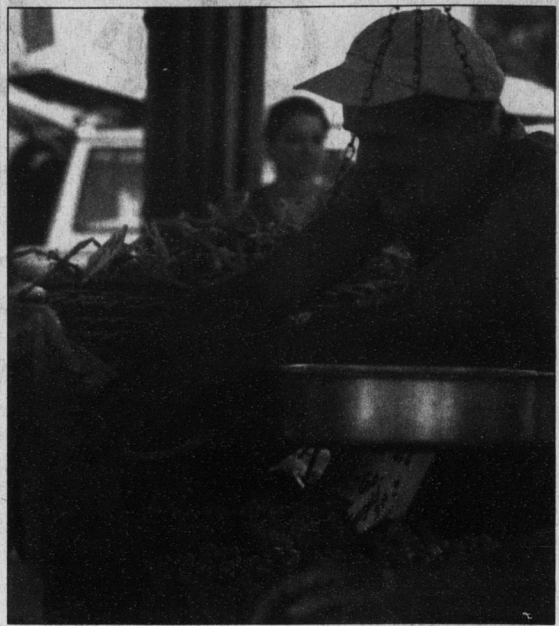

Map-maker art exploration: There will be an examination of the blurring lines between art and cartography — from mapping surveillance cameras in New York City to jack-o'-lanterns in Raleigh — as part of the launch of the Triangle-wide Community Cartographies Convergence. The event is hosted by the Counter-Cartographies Collective, part of the UNC geography department, and is cosponsored by the Center for Global Initiatives.

Time: 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.
Location: FedEx Global Education Center, Nelson Mandela Auditorium

Boating under the stars: The Morehead Planetarium and Frog Hollow Outdoors are hosting a nighttime canoe or kayak paddle on Jordan Lake, geared for adults and teenagers. Paddlers will navigate the night sky with guidance from a Morehead astronomy educator. Advance registration is required, and tickets are $28 for planetarium members and students and $36 for everyone else. Call Frog Hollow Outdoors at 949-4315 for more information.
Time: 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.
Location: Jordan Lake

To make a calendar submission, visit www.dailytarheel.com/calendar, or e-mail dthcalendar@gmail.com. Events will be published in the newspaper on the day and the day before they take place and will be posted online when received. Submissions must be sent in by noon the preceding publication date.
