DAILY DOSE

Too much coffee may cut your cup size

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

A Swedish study has found that drinking more than three cups of coffee a day may shrink your bra size. The effect is the result of a gene that about half of all women possess. The researchers followed 300 female coffee enthusiasts. Their coffee intake and bust size were recorded daily. Researchers eventually discovered the link between coffee consumption and smaller breasts.

On the flip side, however, the study also shows that women who had a moderately high intake of coffee were less likely to develop breast cancer than non-coffee drinkers. Coffee also appears to reduce the risks of cancer, Alzheimer's disease and Parkinson's disease.

NOTED. An entire church has been stolen from a village in Moscow, where it was built almost 200 years ago.

The Church of Christ's Resurrection was in an isolated area and was only occasionally visited by clergymen. A recent survey of the two-story church found that it was structurally sound, but all that remains are the foundations and sections of walls.

QUOTED. "He went right to bed. He wouldn't eat the nice fresh roses we offered him, or the lettuce either. He turned up his nose. He's ready to sleep now."

— Penny Carle said about her 150-year-old pet tortoise, Butch, who turned up in the front yard of his California home after going missing for six weeks. Butch has been a family pet since 1943 and belonged to Carle's late mother-in-law.
