DAILY DOSE

Boy reunites with girl through kvetch

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Last week, a kvetch on The Daily Tar Heel editorial page read, "Wanted: Attractive, Christian, straight, smart, single male who's not in a frat at UNC. Do you exist?!"

On Friday, Walker Sigmon answered, "To the girl seeking a single, Christian, non-greek male: I'll be in the union Friday from 12-1 in a black sweater, with blond hair, drinking hot chocolate. Join me."

When the girl, Ginny Cartwright, arrived, Sigmon knew that he'd already met her the year before. But his intention wasn't to start a romance; it was to let girls know that men like him existed. He was surrounded by a crowd all afternoon, he said.

"I had no idea that that many people were going to show up," Sigmon said.

NOTED. If you want to get out of jail, get fat.

"Big Mike," a 430-pound Canadian inmate, was granted early parole because the prison couldn't accommodate him anymore.

The Quebec Parole Board stressed that the man was not violent and did not pose a threat to society — he was in jail for drug-related charges in 2006, then gained more than 50 pounds in prison.

NOTED. A homeless man in Northampton, Mass., mistook a church's organ pipes for rolled-up rugs and napped on them, causing about $15,000 in damage.

The organ is 130 years old. The man had been to the church for a counseling meeting and found the pipe bed in the basement.

Because of the damage, the restoration of the 17th-century church has been delayed.

POLICE LOG

Someone stole a laptop from a car parked in the Hargraves Community Center lot, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The laptop, which is worth an estimated $7,000, was taken Thursday from a blue 2005 Infiniti G35, reports state.

A roller bag worth $150 also was taken, reports state.

A motorcycle was stolen from the street in front of a Chapel Hill resident's home, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

The black 1993 Suzuki motorcycle, which was worth about $2,000, was later recovered, reports state.

Someone pretending to carry a gun attempted to take money from a convenience store Thursday, according to Chapel Hill police reports.

Reports state that the person attempted to take cash from the Family Fare on Weaver Dairy Road but was unsuccessful.

Carrboro police responded to reports of a suspicious person at a Main Street restaurant Thursday, according to Carrboro police reports.

Someone called to report that a female who appeared to be high on drugs came into Akai Hana Restaurant and wouldn't leave, reports state.

The person left the area before the responding officer arrived, reports state.

A deer struck by a car on N.C. 54 had to be euthanized, according to Carrboro police reports.

The animal was found Thursday morning with compound fractures in both rear legs, reports state.

Officials transported the deer to Piedmont Wildlife Center for euthanization, reports state.

Police responded Thursday to reports of a strong odor of ammonia, according to Carrboro police reports.

The complainant told police that she had used a large amount of ammonia to kill bugs in the kitchen of her Fidelity Street apartment, reports state.

The officer checked the kitchen and discovered a slight chemical odor, according to reports, but then told the woman that he was not a chemical expert.

The officer asked the woman if she was feeling OK and she said she was feeling fine, according to reports.

"I think that a lot of people limit their definition or perception of the gay community at UNC to the people they most easily perceive to be gay, but it's important to remember that there is a presence much larger than featured in this article. Perhaps the gayle could have more accurately been described as a 'friend group' rather than as 'the gay community.'"
