The explanation, offered by the "Telegraph, of its language in noticing the visit of Dr Hawks to this place, is so perfectly satisfactory That it needs no comment ??

Internal Improvements.

We have observed with pleasure that in the western counties of this State, resolutions favoring internal improvements, were adopted both in Whig and Democratic meetings .-We are truly glad to see it as it show a disposition upon the part of the people to take this great and important subject in hand, and we feel that if they be fully arous d upon it, our legislators will be prompt to initiate and carry out such measures as will enable our people to avail themselves of the resources a bountiful providence has given them. We repeat, we are truly glad to see these movements; we trust our Democratic friends will continue to improve in this respect, so that they will stand shoulder to shoulder with the Whigs in all these great works already commenced, as well as those necessary to carry out the system as commenced. We believe that the people of the State have become convinced of the necessity of having railroads, plank roads, &c., built within our brders, so as to connect the different sections of the State and thus to afford such facilities as could not be expected without such works. Other States have prospered largely under such systems and there is every reason to believe that North lad. Carolina will do so too .-- Star.

The correspondent of the Morning Chronicle, writing from Paris on Thursday evening, says :- "You would have observed that for the last two days a change seems to have come over the spirit of the Paris papers, which are supposed in general to represent the opinions of the government. The same ardent desire to defend the cause of the Turks, and to repress the ambition of Russia, is no longer to bo found in their columns. The friends of Louis Napoleon declare that this change is not to be attributed to any alteration in the Emperor's intentions as regards the Eastern question, as it has been commanded simply in order that the violence of the language of the journals should not impede the success of the negotiations still going or. The enemies of Louis Napoleon, on the contrary, maintain that an intrigue is going on -that the Czar has contrived to make overtures for the settlement of the question to Louis Napoleon personally, with the hope of detaching him from the alliance with Eng-

The Liquor Law in Michigan.

The Supreme court yesterday announced its position on the cases which have been brought before it involving the validity of the liquor law. In the Collins case, the first argued, the Justice announced that the court was equally divided, there being four Judges of the opinion that the law is constitutional, and four of adverse opinion. The court is understood to have stood on the question as follows :- For the law, Judges Green, Johnson, Martin and Whipple ; against it, Judges Wing, Pratt, Douglass and Copeland. Two other cases had been argued, and in consequence of the absence of Judje Copeland at their hearing, there was a majority in favor of sustaining the law. The effect of this state of things we suppose to be, simply that the cases before'the court are disposed of, but no decision arrived at, and that the whole question is thrown back upon the inferior courts, leaving each Circuit Judge and every Justice of the Peace in the State to exercise his own individual opinion in regard to the validity of the law. If a case hereafter comes up writ of erser from a Circuit Court where the law shall have been decided constitution. al, of course a majority of the remaining Judg.

THE EASTERN CRISIS.

The answer of England and France to the Czar's inquiries respecting the entry of the allied fleets into the Black Sea, was delivered on the 1st of February to the Russian Minister in London and Paris. The reply was unfavorable to the demands of the Czar, and the departure of the Russian Ministers from London and Paris was hourly looked for. The crisis is evidently close at hand, and every thing now depends upon the position taken by Russia.

A part of the allied fleet had returned to Constantinople to escort Turkish supplies to Varna. [This is probably the, origin of the preceeding report of the return of the fleet serting that the burning in effigy was a most appropriate expression of public opinion tosurprise, as well it might, if true.]
