BAYARD TAYLOR

Writing for the New York Mercury.

The proprietors of this journal announce, with peculiar satisfaction, that they have at length secured, as a literary auxiliary, the graceful and brilliant pen of a gentleman distinguished in the annals of literature as the 'GOSWORTHY OF AMERICA,' and one of the most popular, chaste, lively and versatile of all the gifted writers of the public press of this country. Mr. Taylor has consented to prepare,

BAYARD TAYLOR, ESQ.,

EXCLUSIVELY FOR THE NEW YORK MERCURY,

a series of delightfully entertaining articles, one of which will be presented every week, exhibiting the POETRY, ROMANCE, AND ANECDOTE

OF TRAVEL.

the scenes and sentiment, the fancy and physique, the gloss and novelty, as well as humor and realities of a tour in foreign lands—not only depicting in those vivid colors for which he is celebrated, a fascinating picture of each interesting locale and incident, but mentally transferring, as it were, the enchanted reader to the very spot, and thus rendering him or her a part of the gratifying tableau. The first of this charming series of sketches will appear in the

MERCURY FOR APRIL 30,

(Week after next),

and the whole of them, as invaluable additions to the library of American Genius, will be in a style of art worthy of the eminent character of the author, and the exquisite tone of his contributions. As the engagement of Mr. Taylor, under such circumstances, is an effort of enterprise which the journalism of the Union will be especially able to appreciate, we are confident of its approbation; and experience teaches us too flatteringly the success which attends such adventurous outlays, to permit us to doubt that

SUPERBLY ILLUSTRATED,

A SURPASSING INCREASE, in point of circulation and popularity, will be the consequence of this new attraction. 1d2w

Memory.

Ah! what can give more pleasure than to let the mind wander back in the 'long ago.' In memory we dwell again in our childhood's happy home. Then our every wish was anticipated by our kind and loving parents. We knew no sorrow then. No disappointment had ever blasted our fondest hopes. It was a heaven on earth to us. That happy home. And fond memory will ever cling to it, as some sacred thing. We remember, when for the first time we had to leave that dear old place and go off to school. How sad we were at leaving those dear little ones. 'To go, oh, it seemed so far away! And then, how long the weeks and months appeared. They seemed like they would never pass away, and the time come for us to go home. And when those long and weary days had passed and a father would come for us, how joyfully we would gather up our books, and bid our school mates farewell. Earth had not a dark spot on it for us; 'we were so happy.' And when we reached home, how our hearts bounded with joy. We flew from place to place until we had fondly looked upon every spot that was so dear. Sweet memory wafts us back to other scenes.— When we had grown older and were no longer a child, we wander again in that flowery vale with some dear friend who now sleeps in the cold damp grave. Arm in arm we seat ourselves again by the silvery stream, and while listening to its soft sweet murmuring, we talk of the future. Ah! we lay out bright plans for the far off future; we will spend our lives so happy. We see only the flowers strewn in our paths; we see not the thorns that, when we would gather those sweet flowers, will make us start with pain. Life to us is one bright sunny day, and in the joy of our youthful hearts we join in singing some sweet song. Ah, how memory dwell on those happy hours, how we long to live again the happy past! But memory paints not all joy. As the curtain is raised, how vividly it presents to our minds the first great grief. We seem to stand again beside the dying bed of some cherished friend. Again we follow that loved and idolized one to the silent tomb; we hear the clasp as it slowly falls on the coffin lid. Hiding that loved one forever from our sight. And oh! how desolate the heart is then; we feel as if the world could never have another joy for us; our sun had set in darkest gloom. But God will not break the bruised reed. His grace will heal the bleeding heart. Perhaps years have passed since that sad day, and we may have long since ceased to mourn for them, and become accustomed to their absence. But in memory they will ever live as fondly as if it was but yesterday they were taken from our side. Yes,

'Tis memory wafts us back to days
'That long ago have past—
'Tis memory helps us e'er to gaze,
On scenes that could not last.

BEATRICE.

Newbern, June '59.

A PRINTER MAYOR.—The N. O. Bulletin

has the following: 'Mr. John T. Mitchell, recently elected Mayor of Jefferson City, La., was formerly a printer—and an excellent one he was—in the Bulletin office. A day or two ago he gave a collocation at the Lake end of the Carrollton Railroad to the attaches of our members and several other members of the craft, which was gotten up in the most liberal and sumptuous style, and passed off most pleasantly.

A young fop about starting down to New Orleans proposed to purchase a life preserver. 'Oh, you'll not want it,' suggested the clerk, 'bags of wind don't sink.'

An Irishman who was very near sighted, about to fight a duel, insisted that he should stand six paces nearer his antagonist than the other to him, and that they were both to fire at the same time.

A CLEVER DOCTOR.—Tom says he has cured a pain in the head of navigation and drawn teeth from the mouth of the Neuse! He has anatomized the side of the mountain, blistered the foot of a hill, felt the pulse of an arm of the sea, plastered a cut on the hand of nature and cured a felon on the finger of scorn.

The latest and most wonderful cure effected by a patent medicine, recorded, is the following:

'A boy had swallowed a silver dollar.— An hour afterwards the boy threw up the dollar, all in small change, principally five cent pieces.'
