[Correspondence of the Daily Progress.] WASHINGTON, N. C., Nov. 29, 1858.

Dear Progress:-Last week was our Superior Court His Honor, Judge Heath, presiding. Our people over this way appear to like him very much, that is, if their sayings are a true index to what they really think. He seems to preside with that dignity and ease that frequently characterize great men. I believe that his charges and decisions were as satisfactory to all parties as the nature of the cases would admit. You know that every body in going to law disires to victorize over their opponents whether they are on the right side or not. The action of our Legislature in confirming Judge Heath's appointment was received here, by our citizens generally, with much so well that I should not wonder very much if another Judge was made Governor one of these

Last Thursday (being thanksgiving day,) our town was pretty quiet. Our people are generally divided upon such occasions. Some of them give thanks while others don't. A Governor can't exactly govern every body in all cases.

This morning the Judge and Lawers took passage in the Steamer Pamplico for the Hyde Coun- quality for sale by ty Court House, for the purpose of doing up the Court business in that County.

Our Railroad project, from here to Milton, is islature are favorably disposed towards the enterprise. Should we obtain such a desirable end, ty Court, the following tracts of land, to wit: how many daily papers will be started here is a matter to be studied about in future days. The buildings thereon, lying near the town of Newbern, two or three times in each day would change our Davis and others. present gloomy appearance very much, to say nothing about the extra employment that would be given to a portion of our youngsters who are now flying around at little of nothing. They might be Conductors, Mail Agents or something of the kind.

Our railroad men don't make enough fuss about their darling object, I should judge, as the papers in the State has not found out yet, that we had such a big meeting sometime ago, but it is hourly expected that some of them will skin their eve upon the subject.

The weather is moderately warm, and rather cloudy with some rain occasionally. Very Truly, ELM GROVE

Mr. Sydney Herbert on Anonymous

Journalism. The opening of the new buildings recently erected by the members of the Warminister Athenæum, different styles may be found: an institution established for the promotion of literature and science, was inaugurated in that town on the 28th October. A public meeting was held in the lecture room, at which the Marquis of Bath presided, supported by the Right Hon. Sydney Herbert, M. P., Lord Henry Thynne, the Hon and Rev. S. S. Best, Mr. Edward Baines, of Leeds, President of the Yorkshire Association of Mechanics' Institutes, the Rev. A. Fane, Vicar of Warminister, and a large number of the gentry and clergy of the town and neighborhood.

The Right Hon. S. Herbert, M. P., in the course of a long and able speech, said: There is no question abroad or at home, no question political, and very few scientific, which is not admirably discussed in the newspaper press of this country. The articles which appear in the newspapers, compressed into a short space, are the result of much reading and of much thought; and we who have not much time on our hands-we are all in this age pressed for time-get by that means great results and a vast amount of thought, elaborated, into what the Lancashire manufacturers would call the finished article. (Hear.) Depend upon it, the man who shuts his eyes to the con- very reasonable terms. temporaneous history of the newspapers is a man unfit to deal with the practical wants of society. (Cheers.) In speaking of newspapers it has always appeared to me that they might be much more useful than they are, and I have a strong belief that ultimately we shall see in the newspapers a change which will, I think, tend to make them much safer instructors of the public, for this reason-that the public would then more easily read and accept what it now takes cum grano salis. At the present moment newspaper writers are anonymous. My belief is that for the mission of public instruction that is a great disadvantage. It puts on a par, in point of weight and authority. the most scrupulous and the most unscrupulous writer-the most exact and most inexact.

Mr. Canning once held up two despatches written to him by two of the most eminent diplomatists-one of them resides in this neighborhood. Both were admirably written-both showed great knowledge of the world, and a finished style of writing. Mr. Canning held them in his hand and said, "Here are two despatches equally well written-I have not a fault to find with either of them, but I attach great weight to this one and none to that. I know the character of the two men who wrote them. One is a scrupulous investigator of the facts, and the other is a writer of effect. I shall therefore act on the one despatch and put the other on the shelf." Now, in reading newspapers, we want that source of confidence in some writers, and of caution in others. If we knew who the writers were we should know, in the case of a man whose character is established, that everything he says might be taken for gospel, whilst we should also know, in another case, that the writer was neither so accurat in his statements, nor so careful in sitting his facts. I think we should derive great advantage from such a state of things. Then, again, there is another matter connected with the anonymous writing of newspapers. A man knows that he cannot be answered. As I see some members of the clerical profession before me, perhaps they will parthe right to answer, the sermor would be somewhat different from what it now is. (Laughter and cheers.) A man would always be more careful in what he said when he knew that he would be liable to answer.

Compounded entirely from Gums, S one of the best Purgative and Liver Medicines I now before the public, that acts as a Cathartic, easier, milder, and more effectual than any other medicine known. It is not only a Cathartic, but a Liver remedy, acting first on the Liver to eject its morbid matter, then on the stomach and bowels to carry off that matter, thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful feelings experienced in the operations of most Cathartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it; and when taken daily in moderate doses, will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity. stomach is almost entirely dependent on the healthy action of the Liver for the proper performance of its functions; when the stomach is at fault, the bowels are at fault, and the whole system suffers in consequence of one organ—the Liver—having ceased to do its duty. HARPER'S MAGAZINE.

SEVENTEENTH VOLUME. The Publishers of Harper's New Monthly Magazine refer to the Sixteen Volumes already issued as the best assurance that no labor or expense will be spared to render it worthy of the liberal support which it has received. They believe that the Magcirculation has not been diminished even during the unexampled financial revulsion, which has proved disastrous to so many literary and commercial enterprises; and they are assured from every quarter that the Magazine is recognized as a necessity rather On and after MONDAY. than a luxury. They therefore announce no "New in Life and Morals; leaving, he heretofore, the discussion of sectarian opinions in Religion, and sectional questions in Politics to their own appropriate organs. Wise men and true patriets agree upon points far more numerous than those upon which they differ. The object of the Magazine will be to unite rather than to separate the views and feelings of the people of our common country.

The Publishers do not find it necessary or expedient to appeal to public attention by issuing "Specimen Numbers" containing an unusual amount of matter or illustrations. They intend that every Number shall prove the Magazine to be the best and cheapest periodical published. It will contain a larger amount of matter, more numerous and better, larger amount of matter, more numerous and self-illustrations, printed in a better manner, than any other Monthly Magazine; and the Publishers are confident that it will deserve and receive the same cordial appreciation and liberal patronage which have been accorded to it during the Eight years of its publication.
