Written for the "Daily Progress." BY A. W. B "

Love is a celestial harmony Of likely hearts, composed of stars' consent, Which join together, in sweet sympathy

To work each other's joy and sweet content. A woman's love, deep in the heart, Is like the violet flower,

That lifts its modest head apart In some sequestered bower. Unhappy fate of doubtful maid!

Her tears may fall, her bosom swell, But even to the desert shade Sae never must her secret tell. Oh, do not talk to me of love,

Tis deepest cruelty to me-Way throw a net around the bird, That might be happy, light and free?

MR. CRITTENDEN ON SLAVERY AGITATION AND CONVENTIONS .- We give the following extract from the speech of Mr. Crittenden delivered in New York the 1st inst:

" I am sick of this negro question in all the to God we could get back to those days when our fathers lived in harmony and peace together, and there was not one word on that subject between them. And why can we not? What have we gained by this enormous agitation ! Anything but dissension? What has been the result of it all? A united people divided, a sectional line almost established between us, and with that line will follow with uncrring certainty sectional feelbringing us !-we, whose fathers were united and stood side by side, whose patriot fathers and whose statesmen fathers fought side by side, and acted in the Councils of their country side by side ? Have we derived from them no other inheritance than that of perpetual sectional division, and perpetual controversy over it? What a mighty inheritance did we not receive? What mighty gifts the heart of any human being swell almost to bursting to look at the mighty progress we have made, and that still mightier progress which is infull view before us. We can secure all that. That is all ours if we but say so. Nothing can prevent it but we, ourselves. I think therefore that the people of this country are tending rapidly to a feeling of this sort. I think that but for the disturbances of parties, the people themselves would do right. Our government is founded upon the supposed intelligence and capacity of the people for self-government. I believe in it fully. But such has been the operation in the course of party management, that but little of this liberty is left to the people. This is effected with the aid of what is called organizations; that is, they make a mighty machine, by which a great multitude of people are to be controlled, and some two or three age to manage the machinery. When have the people merely managed their own government, and selected their own President ! Why, the nomination of a convention is just as imperitive on the party whose representatives, it is said, have chosen it, as the choice of the President himself whom they have made is conclusive upon them the day

A SHAMEFUL SLANDER .- A statement having been made recently, that a distinguished Senator in Congress had won $180,000 during one night at a notorious gambling hell in Washington city, some person started another story that the Sena-Caurches, Public Buildings; also for constructions Maryland. This was so inconsistent with the putation of such a man as Mr. Pearce is a part of the national wealth, which every patriot should rejoice to see preserved untarnished.

The Baltimore American says: " Scuator Pearce.-The story going the rounds that Senator Pearce, of Maryland, had won a large sum of money in a gambring house in Washington, is rigiculously false. HISTORY OF A NEWSPAPER .- Mr. Printice, editor of the Louisville Journal, although a defender His TABLE will always be furnished with the best sible point on the Atlantic & North Carolina Rail of abominable political principles, is a very clever quill-driver on other subjects. The following we quote from his remarks upon the 28th anniversity of his paper:

"The history of a newspaper is much of the world's history. The daily paper is the day's history-it clasps the world's daylight. Bound in its daily columns the world, with all its passing events, circles. In our modern life the news-

Yes: the world turns every day in the daily newspapers. Its columns are freighted with the world's merchandise. Through their avenues ring merily the marriage bells, and through them hearses move and funeral knells are tolled. Such must every daily paper be; such the Journal has
