Scotch Argument for Marriage. Jenny is poor, and I am poor, Yet we will wed-so, say no more! And should the bairnies to us come-As few that wed but do have some-No doubt that Heaven will stand our friend, And bread, as well as children, send. So fares the hen in farmer's yard; To live alone she finds it hard; I've known her weary every claw In search of corn among the straw: But when in quest of nicest food, She clucks among her chirping brood; With joy we see the self-same hen That scratched for one, could scratch forten. These are the thoughts that make me willing To take my girl without a shilling: And for the self-same cause, you see,

The Inspector of the Thirteenth precinct was determined not to be baffled by any device of magistrates, and took a plan to procure the most conclusive testimony. He sent out policemen to report violations of the law, providing them with vials and when they saw anybody drink and pay for liquor, they took a portion of the same, put it in a vial, sealed it up, and marked on it the time and place of sale. These vials were taken by the Captain, to be handed to the court, for the jury to determine the character of their contents, whether camphene or drinkable liquor. SAD EXPIATION OF A FLIRTATION.—Sarah Coffman, daughter of Mr. Joseph Coffman, near Columbia Furnace, in Shenandoah county, Va., committed suicide on the 20th ult., by taking half a paper of arsenic. The cause of the act is said to have been, that she unfortunately promised two young men to marry them, and the day for the celebration of the nuptials was fixed; both lovers expecting to lead her to the alter at the same time. She could not think of meeting them both under such circumstances, and hence the act of suicide.
