S. A. L. MECHANICS FIRED BY WHOLESALE Directors Deferred Final Action on for all political offences committed

Resignation of St. John

Portsmouth, Va., Jan. 11 .- Wholesale discharges have been made at the Seaboard Air Line shops in conformity with the determination of President Williams and the new board of directors to reduce expenses. One hundred and fifty men were discharged.

Aside from the natural effect of this policy upon local affairs, the principal criticism offered upon it is by the practical men of other lines of railway, who ment as good authority, and increase the assert that the reduction of force in the mechanical department especially will render necessary the employment later on of a larger force. The skilled labor which has taken years to gather will not remain idle for any considerable time, and the mechanics will scatter in search of profitable employment elsewhere.

It became known today that the board of directors, at its meeting Wednesday, did not take final action upon the resignation of Vice-President and General Senator Ward: I do not understand Manager St. John, and in the general office building the hope was expressed that this bill is designed especially for that he might be induced to reconsider his resignation. Of this, however, there is little possibility. The resignation of a number of officials of the Seaboard though he should have the benchit of its passage. I did not vote for it in cominitiee solely on account of Mr. Aycock, Air Line are expected as a natural sequence of the resignation of the vicenor in the Senate will that feature of president, but none of those of prominent officials have as yet been made pubit control my action.
