

Golden Weed Market Formally Opens Today

Many Wagons Loaded with Tobacco Arrived Last Night—Some Fine Sales Made Yesterday

Today will be a red-letter day in Raleigh. It will mark the formal resumption of a branch of enterprise and business that for several years has been in the background—practically dead.

handsome premium for the highest crop average. One lot of his tobacco sold yesterday for $22 per hundred. But today is to be the red-letter opening day. A large number of wagons loaded with tobacco rolled into the city last night. They came from the counties of Johnston, Chatham, Franklin, a few from Granville, and many from all the tobacco-growing sections of Wake. Many others are traveling in the direction of the capital city and a busy, bustling and lively scene will be presented at the warehouses today when the sales open. Immense piles of tobacco will cover the floor space and crowds of buyers and sellers will mingle together in the busy scenes and excitement of a big tobacco-break.

JACKSON ELLIS KILLED HIMSELF

Crazed with Grief Over the Death of an Unfortunate Son

In a section of Wake county that is not accessible by either railroad, telephone or telephone lines, a sad and shocking tragedy was enacted last Monday afternoon. The news of which only reached the city yesterday. In Little River township, about twenty miles from Raleigh, lived Mr. Jackson Ellis, a well-to-do farmer. His son, John W. Ellis, was in the State Hospital in this city for treatment.

On last Friday the son died and the remains were carried to his father's home in the country, where the funeral was held and interment made on Saturday. The father was crazed with grief over the fate of his unfortunate child. He brooded over the death of his son and it is believed his mind became unbalanced.

The culmination of what may be termed a double tragedy was reached when Mr. Ellis went down to one of his tobacco barns Monday afternoon carrying a shotgun with him. There he fired the shot that ended his life, his head being literally blown off. On Wednesday the body of the dead father was buried near that of his son, for whom he grieved until reason was dethroned.

BRYAN GRIMES ON CROPS AND POLITICS

Hon. Bryan Grimes, Secretary of State, returned to the city yesterday. He left here to attend the Roanoke Island celebration and stopped by Grimsland and Washington, N. C., for a few days. He says a severe drought is doing much damage to the crops in that section. Speaking of the pending campaign Mr. Grimes expressed the opinion that he never saw a brighter prospect for a sweeping victory in that congressional district. He thinks Congressman Small will easily win by a good majority.

POSTMASTER BAILEY ON RURAL DELIVERY

Speaking of the rural free delivery yesterday Postmaster C. T. Bailey, who is postmaster for the North Carolina rural carriers, said that he is confident the number of rural free delivery routes will reach 250 by the first of January next. This will mean a carrier pay roll of $150,000 a year. The present pay roll is $100,000. These inspectors are now at work in this state and nine new routes have been added this week. This makes 49 new routes for July, and increases the total number of routes in the state to 164. Most of the new routes are now being laid out in Congressman Claude Kitchin's district. Several of them are in Nash county.

CLEMENT MANLY ON POLITICAL SITUATION

Democrats Can Win with Hands Down—As to Chairmanship

Hon. Clement Manly, ex-chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, was here from Winston-Salem yesterday on legal business. He says he never knew the Democracy of the Old North State to be in better trim. That the party will win in the approaching elections will hand down so to express it. The chairman can go to the seashore to the mountains or whatever resort he may choose and have a good time. The situation is so well taken that the chairman need not have much to do. Speaking seriously of the State chairmanship Mr. Manly referred in complimentary terms to the work accomplished by Senator Simmons as chairman and said the party ought not to insist on his serving another term if he felt it his duty to retire so that he might concentrate his energies on the work that has out before him as United States Senator. Mr. Simmons is, he said, a hard worker and he should have no impediment in his senatorial efforts that the party could relieve him of. Mr. Manly returned to Winston on the afternoon train.

He will carry with him a big Al-Vida panoramic camera which he will use in getting the views which are to be compiled and enlarged for an exhibit which the tobacco growers and manufacturers of the State will probably have at the St. Louis Exposition. They will also serve as the subjects for cuts to illustrate state agricultural publications, etc. Among the first farms visited will be those of Col. J. S. Cunningham and Mr. E. L. Doughtridge.

SOCIAL EVENTS ON ROANOKE ISLAND

Manteo, N. C., July 29. Correspondence of The Morning Post. While the brainy men of the state have been on historic Roanoke Island devising plans for the great celebration to be held at some time in the future, the youth and beauty of our island have not been idle, and Cupid's arrows have not been allowed to rest unused in his quiver. For the past month the brilliant and beautiful Miss Mamie Boddie of Nashville, N. C., has been visiting Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Moyle, her uncle and aunt. Needless to say she has completely captivated all hearts by her bewitching charms. On Friday evening the doors of the hospitable Methodist parsonage were thrown wide ajar to welcome the bevy of brave knights and fair maidens who had gathered to pay homage to this queen of beauty. The occasion was an Observation Party given by Rev. and Mrs. Moyle as a farewell to their niece who returned to her home today. Several hours were spent most pleasantly by the young people in amusements which were entertaining and instructive. The principal event of the evening was an observation contest in which those present competed for an elegant prize, and also a "booby." The first was won by Mr. S. B. Underwood, and the "booby" by Mr. O. J. Jones. These were presented by Miss Boddie with a few well chosen remarks.
