

Strikers Make Trouble for Non-union Workers

Willesbarre, Pa., Sept. 2.—The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Company this morning added two more to its quota of working colliers by starting the Blaine at Nanticoke and the Pettibone at Dorchester near this city. Coal was cut and run through the breaker at each and the officials report between 100 and 125 tons mined and ready for shipment. The company has now six colliers under way. "At other mines in this section progress was made. Attacks upon non-union men were reported today. The most serious was at Beaver Meadow, where John Harvill, a non-union worker for Cox Brothers & Co., was shot and seriously wounded. Harvill was awakened during the night by men throwing stones at his house. He went to the door, but could see no one, and fired his revolver twice in the air. Later he was again awakened and this time went to the window. As he leaned out a shot was fired and a bullet struck him in the right eye. The eye is destroyed and the bullet lodged in his head, but it is said he will recover. He has no idea who his assailants are. At the Mineral Spring colliery, on a structure of the Lehigh Valley Company near Parsons, some eighty-five carpenters and miners at work. A mob of foreigners gathered this morning and tried to stop the men from work. Sheriff Jacobs sent a force of deputies to the scene and the mob was dispersed. A crowd of strikers attacked Richard Roberts and John Davitt, workers for the Lehigh Valley, this morning. Roberts was struck in the back with a coupling pin and badly injured, and Davitt was stabbed in the leg and badly wounded. They escaped and are now confined to their homes. This afternoon Deputy Sheriff Rhoda arrested three officials of Durvey charged with disarming and imprisoning two coal and iron policemen. They are Lawrence Cosgrove, chief of police; Thomas Joyce, president of the council; and Michael Kaskovitch, a constable. A week or two ago three men stopped Julius Morgan and Max Plant, guards at the Hallstead mine, as they walked through Durvey, and imprisoned them for carrying concealed weapons. The three officials were held under $2,000 bail each. President Mitchell returned this afternoon from Philadelphia.

DR. BENBOW DEAD

He Expired Surrounded by Members of His Family

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 2.—Special.—At two o'clock this morning, after a lingering illness of over twelve months, Dr. DeWitt Clinton Benbow breathed his last in his apartments at the Benbow Hotel, surrounded by his devoted children. Mr. Charles D. Benbow, Mrs. Mary B. Crawford, Miss Lily Benbow and numerous attached friends. Dr. Benbow was seventy-two years of age, and survived his wife who was Miss Mary Scott, daughter of Mr. Daniel Scott, five years. For more than a year his health had failed and several times his life had been expected. Last winter he went to Johns Hopkins for treatment, receiving some benefit, but each time he expired himself in business matters he would suffer a relapse. Two months ago he went to Atlantic City, and only returned last Wednesday, apparently some better, but he had only come home so the scenes of his long, strenuous, honorable business life, in the confines of the city he had done so much to bring forward after long years of exertion to the front rank of progressive towns of his native state and country. He will be laid to rest tomorrow in Green Hill cemetery at 9:30 o'clock, the funeral being conducted from the Benbow Hotel by pastors of the Friends' church of which he was a member.

A BURNING DISGRACE

A Letter That is a Shame to the Legal Profession

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 2.—Special.—That was an awful death yesterday of the negro man Ivey Atison, whose body was so horribly dismembered by the shifting engine near the depot here. To me it is little less horrible than a letter shown me this morning written by a lawyer to the boy's old father three hours after his son's life had been crushed out, through his own evident carelessness. The letter was to this effect: "I have been to your house twice to see you and you were not at home. I want to see that you get good pay for the death of your son, so just as soon as you can do not fail to come to see me about it." The old man took the letter straight to Col. Barringer instead of to the lawyer who wrote it, and was disarmed from further proceedings. He also showed the letter to two other gentlemen on the way. The lawyer who signed his name to it is said to be in active practice here, but is more of an agent for others. The incident is a burning disgrace to humanity and to the legal profession.

ELSIE GOT GAY

Just Bound to Shoot a Nigger, and She Did

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 2.—Special.—Elsie Ellis, a colored woman, was jailed last night for shooting a negro man in the ear with an old horse pistol. It was at a house party and Elsie, becoming gay, kicked her heels together and ejaculated: "You all clear de tunc for I jes got to shoot or nigger." She was taken at her word by all but one, and he received the contents of the old "horse" in the burr of the ear. His name has escaped me, but his injuries are said to be slight. Elsie claims that she was only "projecting; had not one bit of harm against nobody, and is firm in the belief that "somebody loaded dat ole weapon jes for git her into trouble."

A FORTUNE IN FLORIDA

Two Goldsboro Men Who Have Struck It Rich

Goldsboro, N. C., Sept. 2.—Special.—Mr. W. H. Smith who with Mr. E. B. Gordon, Jr., has just returned from Florida, where they own real estate which promises handsome returns, says that the 80 acres which they have secured control of is rich with phosphate rock. They have sold an option on the land for $5,000 a year for five years, and they are to receive 25 cents per acre for all the rock which is mined. Mr. Smith is confident that the investment will yield several thousand dollars. On the lands surrounding the 80-acre tract which Messrs. Smith and Gordon own

THE PRESIDENT TALKS ON TRUSTS

He Makes a Speech Intended as an Answer to His Critics

Fitchburg, Mass., Sept. 2.—The first important step of President Roosevelt after he had resumed his travels through Massachusetts today was at this city, where he found the people keeping a general holiday. A stop of an hour was made here and the President delivered an address, thousands of people being assembled to hear him. The president devoted himself almost exclusively to the trusts, which he intended as an answer to his criticism. He said in part: "If some of those who have been caused for wonder in what I have said this fall on the subject of the great corporations which are popularly known as trusts, would take the trouble to read my messages while I was governor, and what I said on the stump two years ago, and what I put into my first message to congress, I think they would have been less astonished. I said nothing on the stump that I did not think I could make good, and I shall not hesitate now to take the position which I then advocated. I am even more firmly convinced that you who hear what I say should think of it than that you should applaud it." Referring to the conditions which existed in 1883, the president said: "There was no trust about anybody making too much money then. The trusts were down, but the trouble was that we were all of us down. Nothing but harm to the body politic can come from ignorant agitation, carried on habitually against real evils, partially against imaginary evils, but in a spirit which would substitute for the real evils just as real and infinitely greater. Those men, if they should do anything, could be nothing to bring about a solution of the great problems with which we are concerned. If they should destroy certain of the evils at the cost of overhauling the well-being of the entire country, it would mean merely that there would come a reaction in which they and their remedies would be hopelessly discredited. Now if we could have any good, and it will do most of us a great deal of harm to take steps which will check any proper growth in a corporation. We wish not to penalize, but to reward a great captain of industry or the men banded together in a corporation who have the business forethought and energy necessary to build up a great industrial enterprise. Keep that in mind. A big corporation may be doing excellent work for the whole country, and you want, above all things, when striving to get a plan which will prevent wrong doing by a corporation which desires to do wrong, not at the same time to have a scheme which will interfere with a corporation doing well, if that corporation is handling itself honestly and squarely. "Now, what I am saying ought to be treated as elementary truth. The only reason it is necessary to say them at all is that apparently some people forget them. I believe something can be done by national legislation. When I state that I ask you to note my words, I say I believe. It is not in my power to say I know. When I talk to you of my own executive duties I can tell you definitely what will and what will not be done. When I speak of the actions of any one else I can only say that I believe something can be done by national legislation. I believe it will be done. I think we can get laws which will measurably increase the power of the federal government over corporations; but, gentlemen, I believe that in the end there will have to be an amendment to the constitution of the nation conferring additional power upon the federal government to deal with corporations."

THE AL G. FIELD GREATER MINSTRELS

The Academy Season Opens with a Superb Performance

It is almost sufficient to say that Al G. Field's Greater Minstrels occupied the boards at the Academy of Music last night. That statement, in fact, tells the story of a great performance, for the name, Al G. Field, is a synonym for musical excellence. He always fills the house and always delights all who are fortunate enough to get in. There is not a single exception. The Academy was full. The company is an aggregation of the best talent. The first part was gorgeous and dazzling. The songs and jokes were new. The singing was completely captivating and charmed the great audience and there were repeated encores. The solos were of a high and raly musical order, not the kind of stuff that shows simply skill in execution, but things that have melody, that charms the listener and causes him to involuntarily clap his hands as the last rich tones float away until the singer reappears, and sings again. The performance bristles with things that are new. There was not a dull moment or tiresome wait. The curtain was up from start to finish and the stage was a constant changing scene of beauty, fun and interesting situations. The D'Arvilles, Royal English Hand Bell Ringers, appear just after the first part, and their work is pleasing. Then comes "Echoes from the South," a dancing act in which Doc Quigley is the star. You have heard of things "working on an eccentric." Well, Quigley's legs tell the crier. They are on ball-bearings and are self-defeating. They are loose-jointed and seem inclined to act independent of the body, but somehow Quigley handles them up just in time to keep from parting with them. The Mignani family, musical barbers, were an attractive and interesting feature, while the nine members of the Fugate family, acrobats, are just a little ahead of anything seen here in a similar line. The performance concludes with a travesty entitled "King of the Philippines," which graphically portrays both the American and the insurgent side of skirmishing in the Philippines. Prof. Guley, dean of law at Wake Forest College was here yesterday and said that 14 out of a class of 16 law students from Wake Forest who stood the examination recently before the Supreme Court procured licenses. A splendid record, this. Mr. Thomas T. Candler of Selma is a Raleigh visitor.

Melancholy Ending of a Life Sadly Misspent

Durham, N. C., Sept. 2.—Special.—Developments in the suicide of D. A. Simpson yesterday morning prove that there are many things yet to come to light. He decided that he would end his life in the only question. Little by little there is being connected with the case a woman, and when the facts are known, if ever this is the case, it will be a pathetic story. Driven to desperation by the hounding of his footsteps by a woman, he gave way under the strain. He wanted to marry a young lady to whom he was engaged, but was afraid to do so and as a last resort he ended his career by taking poison. For a month or more he had decided to end his life. He spoke of it often and said that he was going to leave Durham by September 1. When asked where he was going on one occasion he said: "I am tired of life and want to get away from every human being. I want to go to a country where I will see no face. After preparing for his funeral and telling his friends goodbye he went to the drug store of R. Blackmail & Son Sunday night and wrote notes to his friends, one of whom was a young lady. While writing these letters he was joked and teased about writing to his girl. He appeared in his usual humor and no one suspected that he was then telling what disposition to make of his body and saying farewell to his friends previous to taking his life. He went to West Durham on the 11 o'clock car Sunday night and left one of these notes he had written for John Maddox, who was clerk in the store with him. He then came back and went to the drug store again and was busy writing for some time. Then leaving his letters for delivery he went to his room and swallowed the fatal drug. There is much in the story that will come out as the days pass. It will involve more than one person and will show up the sad side of a misspent life. The young man who committed suicide was 26 years of age and came here more than two years ago from Roxboro. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Simpson of Roxboro and left two sisters and a brother. He was of a rather gloomy disposition and did not have a confident, so far as can be learned. The woman in the case was introduced to his friends as his cousin, a married lady. As a matter of fact she was not his first cousin. He has no relatives in Durham. The remains were taken to his old home in Roxboro for interment, notwithstanding the fact that he requested
