THE STOCK MARKET

Efforts of Bull Traders to Hold up Prices Were Unavailing in Face of the Lendency to Go Lower

New York, Dec. 5 .- The attendance at the stock exchange at the opening was very small. Dealings were unimpertant and the price changes were insignificant, and were evenly divided Setureen gains and losses.

The light demand for stock at the opening induced moderate sales for both accounts, and Louisville and Balmore and Ohio lost a point each. substantial fractions, including St. Paul, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific July. . . . . 8.22 and aMnhattan. St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Sansas City Southern preferred and - Louis and San Francisco and the school preferred 1 to 1%. Shorts cught here and there around 1 clock and the market hardened alightly.

There was another dip which carried prices lower than before, and then a rally on covering by room shorts which caused some full recoveries The market was narrow and listless and reflected an obvious disposition to await developments in the money mar ket. Bonds were about steady and very quiet at noon.

The bulls attempted to unload stock et, the rally, but the room traders tool the market away from them. St. Paul ran off to 172% and other leading stocks touched the lowest. Minneapolis and St. Paul preferred declined 2% and Sugar, Consolidated Gas and ending first preferred I to 1%.

Lending stocks fluctuated narrowly and continued heavy on nominal dealings until near 2 o'clock, when another rally occurred. Colorado Fuel advanced 1% and immediately lost it, and Delaware and Hudson lost 312.

The hardening of prices was due to rebuying of stocks sold earlier in the day by the room traders. As a result prices generally came back to last hight's level and in some cases above. Manhattan gained about a point and Sugar ex-dividend 1%. Prices did not hold and the closing was heavy .

narrow limits that it calls for no extended notice. Trade was brought practically to a standstill by interruption of communication with south and west and nearly all sections of the country. This made it for the most part a narrow board room affair destitute of features of striking interest. Liverpool was slightly higher. Recelpts light and the weekly statistics favored the bulls rather than their opponents. But nobody was inclined to trade heavily on either side of the market preferring to wait further developments.
