

CO-FEDERATE GRAVES

Some Difficulties in the Way of the Foraker Plan

Washington, Jan. 19.—Secretary Root has forwarded to the Senate military committee a memorandum prepared by Quartermaster General Ludington in regard to the bill introduced by Senator Foraker to provide for the appropriation and the hope that Gonzales will recover. He passes his time with his friends and is apparently satisfied with his state. The term of his office as lieutenant governor will expire Wednesday, when the new administration will take charge of the affairs of the state, and doubtless he will be a private citizen again by the time it is determined whether he will be tried for murder or assault with intent to kill.

BASE BALL

Schedule of University Games for the Spring Season

Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 17.—The following base ball games have been scheduled for the coming season by Manager Graham: March 23 and 24, Lafayette at Chapel Hill; March 27, Brown University at Chapel Hill; March 28, Brown at Greensboro; April 3, Gettysburg College at Chapel Hill; April 7, open; April 10, South Carolina College at Columbia; April 11, Wofford College at Spartanburg; April 13, Davidson at Winston; April 14, Lehigh at Chapel Hill; April 18, 21, 25, open; April 23, Virginia at Chapel Hill; April 25, Virginia at Greensboro; May 1, Washington and Lee at Roanoke, Va.; May 2, Georgetown at Washington, D. C.; May 5, open; May 9, Virginia at Charlottesville, Va. The prospects for a ball team are good. The schedule speaks well for Manager Graham's ability. John H. Hensley of Charlotte is captain of the team this year.

JUST WATCH WATTS

Some Brief Deductions by a Lobby Lifer

"There's the most picturesque character in the House," said a lobby lifer, who has the reputation of being pretty wise in his deductions, as Representative Watts came in the hotel entrance. "Watts is a typical politician. He knows the ropes. If there is any matter that you do not know about state politics, ask Watts. I believe he is the best posted legislator in Raleigh. He lives in Ireland, you know, but I heard a man ask him the official vote in a small eastern town at the last election, only a few days. There was no hesitation about his answer. It came quick and it was correct for it was verified and twirling his cigar between his lips he turned to talk to a fellow legislator. I do not expect to see Watts, he congressman from his district next election but as to four years from now, well that's a different story. Watch Watts. It's worth doing and you will learn by it."

DR. HUBBARD CALLED TO SHELBY

"Rev. W. D. Hubbard, says the Shelby Aurora, who recently resigned the pastorate of the Tabernacle church at Raleigh, preached two able sermons Sunday morning and night at the First Baptist church here to large and appreciative audiences. "At the close of the night service a conference was held at which time an unanimous call, at a salary of $1,200 a year, was extended to Rev. W. D. Hubbard to the pastorate of said church. He has not yet accepted the call, but it is believed that he will. "We congratulate the church on the prospect of securing the services of this able, eloquent and Godly man. He is universally popular and the Tabernacle church, with its 500 members, flourished under his pastorate like a green bay tree. The coming of the new pastor and his family would be welcomed by all denominations."

Anti-saloon Work

Durham, N. C., Jan. 17.—Special.—The Anti-Saloon League is doing some work in Durham in favor of the bill introduced by Senator London. Several of the local ministers have blank petitions sent out by President J. W. Bailey of the league, and they are talking with the people with a view of getting signatures to the petition which asks for the passage of the law. One minister told me that every man he had gone to refused to sign the petition on account of the clause which compels the saloon men to get a majority of the voters to sign his application. Most everybody is in favor of that portion of the bill requiring the manufacture and sale of whiskey to be done within the corporate towns and cities.

Death at a Funeral

Rutherford, N. C., Jan. 17.—Special.—At the funeral of two negro men at Gold Hill church yesterday Uncle Jack A. Logan prayed and assisted in the funeral services. When the congregation rose to leave the church, Uncle Jack dropped dead. He had just finished his prayer and was to have concluded the services at the graves. He was left in the church until the remains of the other two were buried and was then brought to Rutherford. He was buried today at 1 o'clock at Gold Hill beside the two bodies over which he held services yesterday.

REPUBLICAN PAPER AT LEXINGTON

Lexington, N. C., Jan. 17.—Special.—There has been a rumor afloat for some time that a Republican newspaper would be established here at an early date. It is now learned that the movement will take shape about the opening of spring. It is stated that Mr. Z. I. Waiser will be editor. The interesting feature about this movement is that it is believed to be the practical evolution of the scheme reported to have been recently chalked out by the state and national leaders of the Republican party to win North Carolina back to the Republican column. The plan is to secure control of as many as possible of the leading weekly Democratic newspapers of the state. Where this is impossible or impracticable new Republican papers will be established.

Episcopal Convocation

Durham, N. C., Jan. 17.—Special.—The Raleigh convocation is in session at St. Philip's church. It will adjourn tomorrow evening. Today two business sessions were held and two devotional exercises. The convocation is being attended by all of the ministers in the district. The devotional services were attended by large congregations this morning and evening. The last service in connection with the meeting will be held tomorrow night.

Death of Jacob Taylor

New Bern, N. C., Jan. 17.—Special.—Mr. Jacob B. Taylor died this morning in his 68th year. Mr. Taylor was for forty years master car builder of the Atlantic and North Carolina railroad shops in this city. For the last two years, owing to ill health, Mr. Taylor has been unable to attend to his duties. The funeral services will be held Monday and the interment will take place in the family burying plot. He leaves two daughters and one son who are residents of the city.

To Improve Hotel

Mr. John A. Mitchner, who has given the Wyoming House at Selma such a good reputation, since he became the proprietor, assisted by his good lady, on yesterday bought the entire property and will greatly improve it during the coming spring, doubling its capacity.

ROMANCE OF FEERS

It is one of the many curious things disclosed by the remarkable story of our peerage that a member of a noble family, however obscure he may be and however far removed from a title, need never despair of waking up some morning and finding himself an earl or a duke. Few of the stories of these unexpected promotions are more remarkable than that of the present Duke of Hamilton, who, by an astonishing sequence of accident, found himself transformed, seven years ago, from an unknown lieutenant to the premier peership of Scotland, with three ducal titles and as many marquiseships, to say nothing of earldoms and baronies sufficient to equip half a dozen average peers, says a writer in Tit-Bits.

On the Great River of Nam

The river is a hush thoroughfare, and we never wearied of watching the passing boats, says the Southern Workman. Besides the innumerable smaller craft, we passed whole fleets of rice boats, the loaded ones going down and the empty ones returning, for rice is the great staple of this rich, low lying, alluvial plain. One such fleet numbered forty-four boats, and as the tug owner receives from 25 to 50 tons for each, according to its size, this tow brought him 1650 tons, or $462, for the ten day trip from Bangkok to Paknam. As these long lines of clumsy boats cannot easily change their course, and as the current is often swift, we had to dodge around considerably, and not always successfully, in order to avoid collisions.

The Guinea

The question why professional fees should be in guineas and not in sovereigns, says the St. James Gazette, has been asked often, and no more satisfactory answer can be got than that it is a survival of days when a coin of guineas was well known in these islands. A writer in the Lady has been looking into the history of the guinea. Sir Robert Holmes, one of the most picturesque figures in the annals of the Isle of Wight, was really responsible for it. Half soldier, half sailor, half English, half Irish, wholly loyal to the crown, the merry, stalwart, silver-tinged hero was equally popular with both the Charleses, and made Governor of the Island by Charles II. Sir Robert it was who in 1666 captured a golden prize in Schelling Bay that consisted of bullion and gold dust from Cape Coast Castle, in Guinea. This rich prize was coined into gold pieces stamped with an elephant, and to commemorate the capture these pieces of money were coined guineas. Sir Robert seems to have had plenty of these golden coins. At Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, so long the site of the Governor's house, shrimpers and lobster catchers still look out for the stray gold piece he was wont to scatter, or that may have been lost or hidden in the smuggling raids so common in his day. The guinea is not nearly so ancient as many of the coins now in circulation. The simple, respectable sovereign is more than a century older, and dates from the time of Henry VII. The guinea displaces it, but sovereigns were recognized in the early part of the last century, and soon after that they completely ousted the guinea piece.

Under Great Identities

"Resourcefulness in a lawyer is the actual trial of a case is necessary as the actual quality in a general on a battlefield," said Representative Champ Clark to a Washington Evening Star reporter. "I saw my own old law partner, ex-Lieutenant Governor David A. Ball, as a steady force once under difficult circumstances. He was, scratch victory from the jaws of defeat—by a happy exercise of that wondrous common sense with which he is so lavishly endowed, and without which in any man all other gifts are only vanity and vexation of spirit.

"Ball had for a client a wizen faced, shambling, wild eyed old chopper named Sam Barnes, slim as a racer and short of stature. A fat, stocky, 200 pounder named Zach Boothe had accused Barnes of stealing his bacon, and had forced Barnes in his own opinion, in the presence of his wife and children, to hold out his foot for measurement to see if it would fit certain suspicious tracks.

"Barnes was poor as Job's turkey; but Ball is a sort of heaven appointed Attorney General for the poor. They are always with him, both in court and at the polls. Consequently, Barnes went to Ball with his bleeding heart and shattered reputation straight as a bird could fly. Suit was promptly instituted against Boothe. The case came up for trial and poor Barnes began to howl up as usual. Ball unceremoniously jalled him in his back office for three days, leading him to court as a policeman would a prisoner—but he kept him sober until victory perched upon his banner.

"On the witness stand Doothe swore that the reason he knew that Barnes stole the meat was that the thief entered the smokehouse through a window 10 by 16 inches, where two 5 by 10 panes had been broken out, and that Barnes was the only man in the neighborhood small enough to get through that hole.

"The jury scowled on Barnes and smiled on Boothe, and Boothe beamed along on everybody. He metaphorically patted himself on the back as a sure winner. But a change came over the spirit of his dream very suddenly. Ball had heard that he was going to swear that way, was loaded for him, and was laying for him.

Fall in Berlin (Chicago)

The fall issue of the quarterly magazine, Municipal Affairs, contains a series of articles on the housing problem in Germany, France, England and the United States from which considerable help might be obtained toward the solution of that problem in Chicago. But the survey is too comprehensive to treat briefly as a hole, and we propose to select from it a few facts that relate to one department of one subject, namely, the limitation upon the height and ground area of buildings, the purpose of bringing the new building ordinance that has been similar laws elsewhere.

This comparison will be confined to Paris and Berlin, which are near of a size, and it will show that we are not becoming ferociously and exceptionally radical. The Chicago ordinance provides that the height of a tenement shall not exceed the width of the widest abutting street by more than one-half. The Berlin general rule is that the height of a building may not exceed the width of a street, and it is subject to those modifications only: Where streets are less than 70 feet wide, 72 feet is retained as the limit of height.

The Chicago ordinance provides that a building shall not cover more than 70 per cent. of an inside lot nor more than 90 per cent. of a corner lot, and that where there is no rear alley a yard space of at least ten feet must be left. The corresponding Berlin regulation is that buildings may not occupy more than two-thirds of the lot area. As regards courts, the Chicago proposition is that there must be 100 square feet of space, with a minimum width of six feet for two storied tenements, and a proportionate increase for an increase of stories until in an eight storied building the court space must be 350 square feet and the smallest court for lots fronting on the street is 60 square yards, while the minimum for corner lots is 40 square yards. "All houses must be connected with some street, and buildings when separated must be distant nine feet each other." The Berlin regulations also provide that rear houses and wings may not exceed the width of the court in height by more than 22 feet. Of course, eight possible buildings, front or rear, are limited under these modern rules, and it is equally a matter of course that the restrictions mentioned and others have aroused the protest of property owners. But it would appear that they are still considered advisable. In the main, in spite of protest and criticism,
