Miss Cheshire was assisted by Mrs. Eliza and Miss Annie Cheshires. The guests included Misses Eliza Kay Brown, Sophie Busbee, Elizabeth Benge, Eddie Root, Betsy Montgomery, Sarah Marshall and Belle Pescud. Teaching Temperance in the Schools Miss T. Adelaide Goodno, superintendent of the work of the Raleigh W. T. U., contributes the following from the following Press: The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has proposed the systematic teaching in the public schools of the effects of tobacco and liquor. The proposal was universally opposed by almost all technical and professional education. Not one of them was ready to accept it, and most of those in charge of the schools objected both to this special teaching and to its compulsory incorporation in elementary text-books on geography. The Press itself was among the newspapers which pointed out the apparent dangers of the plan proposed. Experience has converted all who could be converted. There is no dissatisfied person who has watched during the past twenty years the steady growth of public sentiment against the use of liquor and tobacco who has not been convinced that the right course was taken in introducing teaching on these subjects into elementary school. Such an experiment takes time. It has taken ten years for this teaching to become more noticeable in the last decade than the decrease in drinking. Hence the license has come in. Legislation has done much. But these are only signs of a change of habit. As the present man knows, there is less drinking in American life than there was ten, twenty or thirty years ago. There is less drinking in business, in politics, less at public dinners, less in social life, and less treating. "Soft drinks" have multiplied. Their use has increased. "In every great city there are trolley parks and public resorts, such as the circle Philadelphia, where a vast concourse of people meet with all spirituous liquor wholly excluded. This would have been impossible twenty years ago. "These changes are a great national advance. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has a right jealousy to defend this teaching, after these wide visible marks of its success. The result of this experiment must encourage every one in the conviction that moral teaching should be made the basis of more systematic instruction in our elementary schools. "This country is great and prosperous, but the business being good has not as yet received all the attention which it deserves." Mr. and Mrs. Brown Praised The Public Ledger of Oxford, N. C., pays a high compliment to two distinguished musicians of Raleigh who gave an organ recital and musicale in that place recently. The Ledger says: "One of the best and most delightful entertainments given in Oxford for a long time was the grand organ recital at the Baptist church last Friday night at the installation of the handsome $2,500 pipe organ recently purchased by the church, and we congratulate the organ committee upon the success they have achieved. "Prof. Wade R. Brown of Raleigh presided at the organ and greatly delighted our people, as did his wife also. Prof. Brown is perhaps the state's leading organist and one of the best known musicians in the country—having studied his profession for years in Europe. Mrs. Brown is one of the leading soloists in North Carolina, and is heard everywhere with delight. Her rendition of a number of beautiful selections was received with pleasure by the entire audience." MISS UNSCHULD'S BRILLIANT DEBUT First Appearance in America—Proves Herself a Pianist of Highest Class The Washington Post: "The special attraction last evening was the first appearance in America of Miss Maria von Unschuld, the Austrian pianist, who has many royal triumphs to her credit, and is the court pianist of Her Majesty, the Queen of Roumania. Miss Unschuld has few equals as a pianist among her own sex. She made her debut in the Liszt concerto in E major. She dashed into this difficult and brilliant work with the confidence and repose of an artist who is thoroughly at home, and with the first few bars, riveted the attention of the audience. She has the strength and force of a man, her tone is full in color, her accents are clear and her rhythms perfect. She was absolutely in control of her instrument, and carried the orchestra with her. The concerto was a brilliant triumph, and at its close the young artist was fairly deluged with applause, both from the audience and the orchestra." Miss Unschuld will play a recital at the Baptist University Monday evening, December 12. MR. JAS. B. DUKE MARRIED IN CAMDEN, N. J., YESTERDAY Mrs. McCreecy the Bride of the Wealthy President of the American Tobacco Company Camden, N. J., Nov. 23.—James B. Duke, president of the American Tobacco Company, was married here this afternoon to Mrs. Lillian V. McCreecy, a wealthy New York widow, at the residence of James J. Seal, president of the Philadelphia Consolidated Stock Exchange. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Marshall Owen, pastor of the Century church, and not more than ten persons, most of whom are relatives of the bride or bridegroom, were present. Great secrecy about the wedding was maintained and no information could be obtained at the house. The ceremony took place in the parlor, which had been converted into a bower of flowers, and after the wedding breakfast the couple left for New York. They will sail for Europe tomorrow and expect to be abroad for about three months. When they return they will live at Scarsville, N. J., where Mr. Duke has a fine country place. GREAT HEIRESS MARRIED Miss Leifer, Possessed of Millions, the Bride of Major Campbell New York, Nov. 23.—Nancy Zetter, daughter of the late Levi Z. Leifer, and sister of Lady Curzon, the Vicereine of India, was married at noon today to Major Colin Powys Campbell of England. The wedding took place at the Leifer home on Dupont Circle. Twelve members of the Marine band rendered the wedding march from Lohengrin. Mrs. Leifer, her youngest daughter, Miss Daisy Leifer, her son, Mr. John Leifer, Mr. Berry, the intimate friend and attorney of the Leifers, witnessed the ceremony. The Episcopal ceremony was read by Rev. Roland Cotton Smith of St. John's church, Episcopal. Miss Leifer was gowned in heavy white satin and carried lilies of the valley. A prominent dressmaker was in attendance until after the ceremony to see that this exquisite creation was most becomingly arranged. The gown was high-necked, owing to the early hour at which the ceremony was performed and Major Campbell wore a plain business suit. Mrs. Leifer wore a heavy mourning which emphasized her widowhood and in every way the affair was as simply gone through with as was possible. Early in the morning Mr. Joe Leifer, who has been here with his mother and sisters for several days, gave his sister away and as soon as the ceremony was over, congratulations were over, Mrs. Leifer was led by her son-in-law Mr. Leifer to a waiting carriage which took her to the Arlington Hotel, where she will stay for the next few days, leaving the residence to the bride couple. Major Campbell and his bride will spend the day at the residence and may leave for New York, en route to England, tonight at midnight, but will in all probability remain two days longer. A wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony, at which were present all those at the ceremony except Mrs. Leifer, who was already on her way to the Arlington when the first strains of music provided at the luncheon were struck up. Telegrams of congratulation from the young couple's many European friends began to arrive before the ceremony was complete. "If I Were King" Acted Greensboro, N. C., Nov. 23.—Special. An occasion which was most highly enjoyable and instructive was the presentation at Greensboro Female College last night of Justin McCarty's novel, "If I Were King," by Miss Blanche Shattuck, teacher of expression in the college. The reading was given for the benefit of the Emerson literary society and an appreciative audience was present. The artist had selected vital portions of the story, portraying the whole in inimitable style and showing her undoubted ability in histrionic method. There was a complete presentation of the whole cast of characters, divided into four acts and her impersonations were wonderfully diverse and felicitous. The delightful program was interspersed with piano selections by Signor Carlo Mora and Miss Ethel Blalock of the faculty.

AMUSEMENTS Big Minstrels Tonight Christy Bros. Big Minstrels will appear at the Academy of Music this evening and lovers of minstrelsy will have the opportunity of witnessing a good show of the kind. The organization carries a fine band and orchestra. It is claimed to be one of the most complete minstrel organizations on the road. Besides an array of fine vocalists the show has ten big laughable vaudeville and specialty acts. Seats are on sale at the Tucker Building pharmacy. "Quincy Adams Sawyer" Monday The play of "Quincy Adams Sawyer" will come here just as did the book of the same name, from which the dramatization was made, and will spread sunshine and joy. It will leave a trail of good and wholesome atmosphere. The play is permeated with it, and it will linger in the minds of all who are fortunate enough to witness this truly "Best New England play ever written." There is a deal of satisfaction in laughing over the fun in a play that one is proud afterwards to remember, and tell one's friends about. Nothing so pretty and touching as the love story of Quincy and the blind girl, Alice Pettengill, has been seen on the stage in years. This attraction appears at the Academy of Music Monday night, December 5th. "Quincy Adams Sawyer" It may be said, owing its popularity most of all to the fact that every one of its characters is true to nature, and that the story itself rings true. It was not written along conventional lines, for it has no melodramatic coloring, no villain or villainy and not any very sensational climax. On the contrary, simplicity and naturalness are the keynote and foundation principle of the play. It is a pure, sweet, wholesome, rural drama, with plenty of sentimentality and pathos, to offset the comedy and give it a genuine heart interest. The nearest approach to villainy is to be found in the efforts of Aunt Heppy Putnam to wrong her adopted daughter by refusing to divulge the story of her birth and parentage and in the attempt of Obadiah Strout, the town organist and tax collector, to make "Quincy Adams Sawyer" unpopular among the folks of Mason's corner. The local atmosphere is good, bringing one in closest touch with the people of the Berkshire Hills town, where the rich Bostonian, Quincy Adams Sawyer, finds abundant opportunity for the distribution of his wealth. Shepherd's Moving Pictures A matinee and night production on Tuesday, December 6th, of Archie L. Shepard's high class moving pictures on its initial tour of the south. The success of this tour has encouraged the management to respond to the numerous appeals for a reappearance of the company here. This time, however, Raleigh is to be visited by the big No. 1 Company, which has previously confined its route to the larger cities of the east. It is the organization foremost in picture entertainment, having the greatest variety of high grade subjects seen on the stage. No expense has been spared in making this entertainment the first of its kind in the country, and the warmth of the welcome given in the east has proven to the management the merit of presenting the best of the kind on earth.
