THE AMERICAN BANKERS' ASSOCIATION

"Financiers differ as to the proper methods of assuring at all times a currency ample but not redundant, elastic but not capable of utter manipulation. 'Asset currency' and 'emergency currency' are terms not yet capable of exact definition. It has been said that 'fools often rush in where angels fear to tread.' In considering this question let's not emulate the former nor arrogate to ourselves the wisdom of the latter, but, as conservative, patriotic business men, may we solve the question aright, and, having once made up our minds, have the courage to enforce our convictions.

"In conclusion, gentlemen of the association, I wish as the most appropriate words to voice the sentiment which all of you must feel of good will and wishes for the president of the United States, who, in the high office which he fills with distinguished abilities, brings to bear upon questions of public moment a profound sense of patriotism and sincere desire for the nation's and the individual's good. I am sure I utter your thought in hoping for him continued health and strength and unmeasured success in his high endeavors.

"We congratulate him upon his happy and successful outcome of his long, wise and patient labors to bring peace to our unhappy and warring neighbors, and we express the hope that our country and our country's power and greatness may ever find its highest field of usefulness in promoting the arts and splendors of unbroken peace."

Reception at White House Fully five thousand people, the members of the American Bankers' Association and their families, crowded the White House this afternoon at the reception tendered by President Roosevelt. The reception began at 3, and while it had been announced that it would end at 5:30, the visitors were still in line at 5 p. m.

"At the Arlington Hotel tonight Secretary and Mrs. Shaw received until nearly midnight. The secretary and Mrs. Shaw were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Metcalf, the former representing the only purely commercial department outside of the treasury. His presence in the receiving line was deemed eminently proper. Others assisting in receiving were Miss Shaw, daughter of the secretary; William B. Ridegey, comptroller of the currency; Charles H. Treat, United States treasurer, and Mrs. Treat; Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Keep; Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Taylor, and Assistant Secretary Reynolds.

The Corcoran Gallery of Art was thrown open to the visitors from 8 to 11 p. m.

"The South Loves the President" Former Representative C. A. Pughly of New York was recognized at the close of the reading of the report of the secretary to present a resolution of congratulation to the president of the United States for his great achievement in bringing about peace between Russia and Japan.

Delegate Jennings of Florida, in seconding the resolution, declared that "the south loves the president," and that he could not remain seated while the resolution was before the house.

He said he could not too strongly emphasize the feeling of love and respect the south has for President Roosevelt.

The rules were suspended and the resolution was unanimously adopted by a rising vote, with a cheer that almost shook the building.

Secretary Shaw was then introduced and welcomed the delegates on behalf of the national government.

Speech of Secretary Shaw After acknowledging the applause that greeted his introduction Secretary Shaw spoke at length on the commerce of the country and what it means. He devoted himself particularly to a demonstration of the need of a larger merchant marine.

"The nations of the earth sell each other ten billion dollars worth of machinery per annum, one-eighth of which originates in the United States and one-ninth finds American ports for its consumption. With eighty or more countries selling ten billions worth of merchandise to each other, Americans sell to each other practically twenty-five billions worth of goods. The countries of the world come here for food, cotton, minerals, petroleum, raw material of all kinds and the world comes to get it in its own ships."

"We have the largest and cheapest and best railway system in the world, and the government is now enlarging its bounty by spending hundreds of millions to dig a canal across the isthmus of Panama."

The secretary then showed that the distance from San Francisco to Liverpool around Cape Horn is the same as from San Francisco to New York by the same route. With the Panama canal it will be the same distance from New York to Hong Kong as it is from Liverpool to Hong Kong.

The markets of the world are being developed, South America and South Africa are being opened up. The countries of Europe have their eyes on these places and are establishing banks and warehouses.

They have already established fast lines of steamers. The United States has neither banks or commission houses or warehouses within them, nor has it means of communicating with them except through old dilapidated ships sailing under foreign flags.

"We have the most convenient form of money in the world. We speak the language of commerce. Our farms produce more than the farms of any other country. Our mines yield gold literally by the car load, silver by the train load, and there is unloaded on the shores of a single commonwealth more iron ore than any other country produces. Our forests increased one hundred million feet of lumber for every day of the year. Our factories turn out more finished products than all the factories of Great Britain and Germany combined by more than three thousand millions every twelve months. We transport this matchless product of our farm and factory, forest and mine from the interior to the sea at one-third what similar services cost anywhere else beneath the skies. We carry it from points along the coast in better vessels, on quicker time and at cheaper rates than others. But at our coast line we are brought to an abrupt halt. Here we are no longer independent. Our foreign commerce is four times as large as forty years ago, but we carry in our ships only one-third as many gross tons as forty years ago. Every year we protect and encourage every interest but our merchant marine, and every protected interest has flourished. We have every facility for international commerce except internal merchants, internal bankers and an internal merchant marine. Shall we not have these? I am not urging ship subsidies. I am speaking of results, not of methods. If we will but take advantage of our opportunities we will send these products of farm and factory under every sky and into every port and make our financial centers the clearing houses of at least a fraction of the world's trade."

The Business Outlook Following the reading of an action on various reports presented by officers and committees of the association, Frank A. Vanderlip, former assistant secretary of the treasury and now vice president of the National Bank of New York, spoke on "The Business Outlook."

He viewed the general situation with the eye of an optimist, but sounded a note of warning in these words: "Should a stock market speculation start from the present high level of prices in the face of the extraordinary demand for capital and money which crops and business alike are making," said he, "the result might easily be temporary disaster. Although there may be many favorable features to the outlook, it is no time for prudence to be cast to the winds and no time for speculative commitments which would yield disaster if temporary reverses came; no time for laxness in any of the forms of business prudence and conservatism."

At the conclusion of Mr. Vanderlip's address, Mr. William B. Ridegey, comptroller of the currency, was introduced.

Very soon after Mr. Ridegey had finished, the convention adjourned until tomorrow.

Joseph G. Brown Honored The nominating committee of the bankers' association held a meeting at 4:30 this afternoon and the North Carolina delegation nominated Joseph G. Brown of Raleigh as one of the ten members of the executive council which is to be elected on Friday. As nomination is considered equivalent to election, Mr. Brown's election is assured.

MR. FIELDS KNOWS The Man Who Can Explain Insurance Secrets Discovered

New York, Oct. 11.—That A. C. Fields, the Mutual Life Insurance Company's superintendent of supplies, is the man who can explain in detail the relations existing between the insurance companies of this state and the legislature at Albany, is practically certain.

Important information in regard to Mr. Fields' relations with the Mutual as a legislative supervisor reached the Armstrong insurance committee today and no effort will be spared by the committee now to bring the superintendent-supervisor before the committee as a witness. Up to the present, however, the committee has not learned definitely where he is.

Members of the committee heard today that Mr. Fields has for the last several years maintained a house in Albany, where he lived during the sessions of the legislature. The information also reached the committee that the Mutual has maintained in Albany for several years an establishment where entertainment was afforded to legislators whose good will it was desirable to retain.

This matter will be inquired into when the inquiry is resumed next week and it is predicted today that if the facts are brought out it will be found that other insurance companies contributed to the maintenance of the house. The Mutual officers have told the investigating committee that Fields is too ill for them to ask him to appear before the investigating committee and that the committee will have to subpoena him.

Whether the house which Fields had was the one in which the legislators were entertained was not stated today.

It was also brought to the attention of persons connected with the committee today that Fields was at one time a power in the Democratic party in Westchester county. His place of residence is Dobbs' Ferry, although besides the Albany house, he has places at the Thousand Islands, Nick and Asbury Park. His salary as superintendent of supplies is $10,000 a year. At one time Fields was chairman of the Democratic county committee in Westchester. That was some time back in the '90's, when the Democratic party was stronger in Westchester than it is now. Mr. Fields, the committee has been told, was a heavy contributor to the Democratic campaigns in Westchester. He was instrumental in electing Charles P. McClelland to the state senate in 1892 and in 1903, and William J. Craney in 1899. Both McClelland and Craney are said to be friends of Fields.

Fields is getting to be pretty well along in years now, and it is said that his health has been failing.

SULLY AT GOLDSBORO Five Hundred Farmers Heard Him Goes to South Carolina

Goldsboro, N. C., Oct. 11.—Special. The five hundred farmers who assembled in the opera house here this afternoon had an opportunity to see and hear the great cotton king, D. J. Sully, through whose efforts the farmers realized 17 cents a pound for cotton two years ago.

He spoke just fifteen minutes, but in that short time he delivered a concise and comprehensive elucidation of the cotton situation. The address was a liberal education in cotton facts and figures. The desire on the part of the farmers to hold cotton for higher prices was considerably increased by the sage advice of the speaker, who, with argument and conclusive evidence gathered from material sources, showed such a course to be not only feasible, but highly practicable. His audience was often enthusiastic.

He left here tonight for South Carolina.

BLOODHOUNDS NO GOOD Hunted Negro Ties Dogs of Rowan Sheriff and Moves On Spencer, N. C., Oct. 11.—Special. Deputy Sheriff J. S. Dorsett, "Squire" W. D. Pethel and B. F. Van Canon of Spencer had a novel experience in chasing Geo. Boger, colored, near this place yesterday with bloodhounds.

Boger was wanted for a number of infractions of the law and had evaded the officers for several months. He was located yesterday in a colored settlement and the above named officers went in pursuit armed with shotguns and bloodhounds procured from the county convict camp. When the posse approached the house where Boger was hiding the latter fled through the thick woods and the hounds were placed on his trail at once. The chase was interesting from the start, but the hounds were soon beyond hearing distance. The officers followed the trail for an hour or more and were losing all hope when to their astonishment they found the two dogs tied to trees and the negro made good his escape, leaving both the officers and the dogs in the woods.

JUDGE BAKER'S OFFENCE Charges Referred By Civil Service Board to Department of Justice

Washington, Oct. 11.—The charge of soliciting and accepting campaign contributions in the campaign of 1902, made against United States Circuit Judge Baker of Indiana by the civil service commission, has been referred to the department of justice by the commission.

In connection with the reference the commission today gave out an official statement of the case, in which it was said: "The statute of limitations is the only defense which can be opposed to the charge."

Judge Francis B. Baker was one of the first federal judges appointed by President Roosevelt after he succeeded to the presidency on the death of Mr. McKinley. At the time of his appointment he was serving as one of the judges of the Indiana superior court to which he had been elected by popular vote. As United States circuit judge he succeeded the late Judge William A. Woods and ranked his father, Judge John H. Baker, now retired, but who at the time was United States district judge for the district of Indiana.

New $100,000 Investment Co

Salisbury, N. C., Oct. 11.—Special. With an authorized capital of $100,000 the Mutual Investment Company has been organized here for the purpose of buying, holding and developing real estate in and around this city. Mr. Whitehead Klutz, C. B. Jordan, Dr. R. V. Brawley and other leading Salisburyans are behind the new corporation, which begins business with bright prospects. The plan is a new one and contemplates a systematic saving on the part of the share-holders who are among the younger business and professional men in the community.

Prof. Chas. Leonhardt, the champion Greco-Roman wrestler of the world, who is spending some time in Salisbury, states today that he has accepted the challenge of Joe Maybelle of Canada for a contest at an early date, but that no place has been decided upon for the match. The people of Salisbury are, however, anxious to have the champions meet in this city.

New Asst. Sec'y of State

Washington, Oct. 11.—Mr. Robert Bacon of New York today took the oath of office and qualified as assistant secretary of state, and Mr. Francis B. Loomis vacated that office. The ceremony was simple, taking place in the office of the assistant secretary, the only persons being present being Mr. Bacon, Mr. Loomis and Mr. Dean, chief of the department, who administered the oath of office.

It happens that Secretary Root is absent from Washington for the day, so that Mr. Bacon, by virtue of the fact that he outranks Mr. Adee and Mr. Pierce, the second and third assistants, was obliged to begin his services in the department as acting secretary of state, an exceptional occurrence.

Alphonso Opens Cortes

Madrid, Oct. 11.—King Alfonso in person today opened the cortes with the customary elaborate ceremonial. His majesty read his speech opening the session. The king further said the government would submit a bill making military instruction compulsory.

Alluding to a new navy as a necessity, he said that Spain needed a squadron sufficiently powerful to insure respect among the powers.

The circumstances which caused his death are singular. Mr. Cherry had gone out into the woods and secreted himself for the purpose of finding out who he thought was hunting unlawfully on his land.
